Albany Convention Advances It After Debate Lasting Until 2 o'Clock This Morning.

TEST VOTE IS DECISIVE

REVIEWS RULE OF BOSSES

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The Constitutional Convention at 2 o'clock this morning advanced to third reading on the Short Ballot proposal under which four State officers only would remain elective—the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Controller, and the Attorney General. The vote was viva voce and seemed overwhelmingly in the affirmative. Apparently only a handful of Tammany men voted in the negative.

A test vote taken soon after midnight indicated that the extreme strength of the opposition was 52 votes out of 168 in the convention. This was on an amendment to make the office of Secretary of State elective. About thirty up-State Republicans voted with the Tammany men.

An important amendement to the general proposal, which was adopted by the convention, gives the Governor the right to name the Secretary of State, State Treasurer, the Secretary of Charities, and the Commissioners of Accounts, Health, and Agriculture without the consent of the Senate. Nominations of all other appointive officers will require the confirmation of the Senate.

The debate on the proposal itself was long and bitter. Chief of those who favored it was ex-Senator Elihu Root, who at the afternoon session denounced boss rule and pleaded with the delegates to accept the new plan.

The opposition was as much in earnest as were those who favored the short ballot. Both sides insisted that a vote must be taken before adjournment. The long night session was enlivened by many clashes between the leaders.

Day Crowded With Debate.

Mr. Root spoke for an hour at the afternoon session. His address, easily the feature of a day crowded with debate, created a decided stir. After Mr. Root had finished delegates crowded up to shake his hand and congratulate him. William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who was a visitor to the Capitol, called Mr. Root's speech "a truly masterful address."

In the closing moments of his speech Mr. Root was much affected by emotion, and many of Mr. Root's friends in the convention could not conceal their feelings. General Wadsworth, father of the junior United States Senator, and ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham both were brushing away tears as Mr. Root concluded. It was not what he said so much as the manner in which he said it—an undertone with a tense note of deep conviction in it.

The consensus among the delegates was that such a speech had never been heard before at the Capitol. Every delegate was in his seat, and the galleries were crowded with spectators when Mr. Root began; for word had gone out that he was to speak and that what he had to say would be worth listening to.

Root's Appeal to Convention.

Mr. Root began his appeal for the short ballot by reviewing some recent party history. He showed that following the recommendations of a message from Charles E. Hughes, when he was Governor, a constitutional amendment, looking to the inauguration of the short ballot in this State was introduced in the Assembly in 1910. Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., who was Speaker of the Assembly in that year, left the rostrum and made a speech in support of the measure, which was passed by the Assembly with every Republican member voting for it. It never came to a vote in the Senate.

Mr. Root then read to the convention the short ballot planks in the platforms of 1912 and 1914 and also resolutions indorsing the short ballot adopted at the Republican conference held at the Waldorf-Astoria in December, 1913. There were present at that conference 970 Republicans representing every part of the State. In 1914 the Assembly again passed a short ballot resolution which failed to pass in the Senate. And last year, Mr. Root pointed out, the Republican State Convention and the Democratic State Convention put short ballot planks in their platforms and the Democratic plank recommended the very plan under debate.

"So you have this movement," Mr. Root said, "not coming out of the dark, but begun by a great Governor and advocated by a great Speaker, both of whom have received the approval of their country, one by being elevated to the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States and the other to the Senate of the United States.

"You have the movement progressing step by step until it had received the almost universal assent, the final and decisive action of the party to which that Governor and that Speaker belong, repeated over and over and over again, fully thought out and discussed, and you have the other party accepting the principle and agreeing to the application of it, with the exception of the Controller and the Attorney General.

"Now we must vote according to our consciences. We are not bound, no legislative body is bound legally by a platform. But, if there is faith in parties, if there is ever to be a party platform put out again, to which a man can subscribe or for which he can vote without a sense of futility, without a sense of being engaged in a confidence game, if all the declarations of principle by political parties are not to be regarded as false pretenses, as humbug, as a parcel of lies, we must stand by the principles upon which we were all elected to this convention.

"There is one thing, and, in so far as I know, only one thing, that the vast majority of us have assured the people who elected us we would do in this convention, and that is that we would stand

NEW AIR TACTICS OF FRENCH SUCCEED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The new French system of handling the air fleet, described in the dispatches last week, has greatly restrained the German air activities, according to a letter from a German aviator printed in the Temps today. He says:

"My squadron has been withdrawn because the French aeroplanes now appear only in large numbers, either for reconnoissance or to bar our scouts systematically. The latter task is accomplished thus: Ten machines patrol our line at a height of 2,000 meters and ten more at [illegible], but flying in the opposite direction, so that if the German scout tries to get through he is attacked by the nearest two Frenchmen above and below simultaneously, others joining if the two are insufficient to stop him. The bomb-throwing is operated with similar numbers. We must follow their example or yield command of the air."

BULGARIA'S TREATY WITH TURKEY SIGNED?

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Aug. 30, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—According to information from one of the local legations, it is confirmed that the Turco-Bulgarian treaty has been signed.

It is reported from Rumania that Austro-German troops are massing on the Austro-Rumanian frontier, and that Germany is threatening to prohibit the exportation of Rumanian grain to Germany and Austria-Hungary, the object being to force Rumania to allow free passage for war material to Turkey.

On the Serbian frontier, near Orsova, there are 120,000 troops massed. It is, however, considered unlikely that they will attack Serbia as long as the attitude of Greece and Rumania remains undefined.

TO ADD DUMA MEMBERS TO RUSSIA'S CABINET

Five May Be Chosen and Five from Empire's Council to Make Body Representative.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The enlargement of the Russian Cabinet by ten members, five to be chosen from the Duma and five from the Council of the Empire, has been tentatively agreed on as a means of making the Government more truly representative of the people, according to The Daily Telegraph's Petrograd correspondent.

"Since Parliament assembled," the correspondent adds, "vigorous efforts have been made to devise some means by which the Government and the representative chamber could co-operate more closely and effectively. The parties on the Left of the Duma would have preferred an immediate transition to a Parliamentary Government, but this idea naturally found many opponents. An agreement was finally reached on a project under which five members each of the Council of Ministers and the Duma should enter the Cabinet as Ministers without portfolios.

"At first the Ministers were opposed to the plan, but now they have modified their views, and at a conference yesterday between the Duma leaders and M. Krivoshein, Minister of Agriculture, (who has been mentioned as a possible successor to M. Goremykin as Premier,) and Prince Cherobatoff, Minister of the Interior, a tentative list of the new 'popular' members of the Cabinet was drawn up."

SAY ARMY OFFICERS TOASTED THE KAISER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Secretary of War Garrison will have investigated a complaint received today through Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon of unneutral remarks alleged to have been made by two officers of the United States Army at a banquet held in Astoria, Ore. The officers in question, Captain L. T. Waldron, and First Lieutenant H. L. Gardiner, both attached to the Ninety-third Company of Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Stevens, Ore., are alleged to have proposed toasts to the German Kaiser and in favor of German victory.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 30.—The charge that two officers of the United States Army in uniform drank to the toast "Deutschland über Alles," ("Germany Over All and Germany Forever,") at the Imperial Grill in Astoria on the night of Aug. 20, was filed with Senator Chamberlain by George S. Shepherd, a Portland attorney. Mr. Shepherd's letter, witnessed by E. W. Wright, manager of the Port of Portland Commission, has been forwarded to the Secretary of War. The two officers mentioned are Captain Leonard T. Waldron and Lieutenant Harold L. Gardiner of the Ninety-third Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Stephens, Ore. It is said some one proposed the toast in German, and the officers, not understanding the language, drank to it.

TEUTONS PRESS IN RUSSIAN FLANKS

LIPSK, NEAR GRODNO, TAKEN

VILNA HEARS CANNONADING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 30, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The Germans are now energetically pushing operations on the northern flank, still having Riga as the main object. They are moving on Friedrichstadt, to the westward of which the Russians, holding the left bank of the River Dwina, are prepared to defend the crossings and the town.

On the southern flank the part of Field Marshal von Mackensen's army, which is with the Austrians, has the task of compelling the Russians to abandon the last sectors which they hold in Galicia. In the effort to carry out this plan von Mackensen, while developing an offensive against the Russians on the Zlota Lipa, has started a turning move on Lutzk and southward of Wladimir-Wolynski. As a result of this the Russian rearguard has become engaged in a stubborn fight at Lutzk, covering the retreat of the main forces.

Experts here point out that the Poliesse region, to which the Russians are retreating, will not favor a rapid advance of the Germans. There are thick forests extending over an area of 450 miles, with swamps and numerous cross-cutting streamlets, all of which will prevent the enemy from moving on a wide and compact front. Hence only engagements between separate groups may be expected.

It is reported from Vilna that violent cannonades from the fights, fifteen miles distant, are heard in the town daily.

German cavalry scouts, captured by Cossacks and brought to the town, have all been found to be wearing torn clothes and boots. They say that the German troops expect new clothes before the Winter campaign, for which Germany is actively preparing.

Advancing Teutons Take Lipsk.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—Conspicuous among the tangible results of the day's operation in the eastern theatre of war is the capture by the Germans of Lipsk. This lies just west of Grodno, the only one of the fortified positions in the Russian second line which has not yet been taken.

To the southward, in the Brest-Litovsk region, the Austrians and Germans are chiefly concerned in driving Grand Duke Nicholas's forces further into the Pripet marshes, apparently with the idea of repeating the early success of the Germans in the Mazurian Lake region of East Prussia.

Evidently the Austrians and Germans are trying to clear the last corner of Galicia still held by their opponents, as well as press the Russians, opposing the Riga movement, which is apparently progressing slowly.

The Russian lines on the Upper Bug and the Zlota Lipa have been pierced, but it is not yet certain how serious a resistance is being offered to the enveloping movement from the south. Having lost Brest-Litovsk, Grand Duke Nicholas cannot afford to hold the river positions in the south in the face of an energetic movement.

With the opening of the Autumn military observers here point out that the Russian equinoxial storms are due about Oct. 21. They assert that these are the danger limit to operations in the eastern field and think that they will halt the forward movement of the Teutons and force them to be content with the fruits of their present successes as Winter falls upon them.

It is recalled by some observers that the autumnal equinox marked the turning point in the Napoleonic campaign. The first warning was a light snowfall, preceding the equinox, but soon afterward heavy snows fell and with them came disaster to the Corsican.

REPORTS ON OPERATIONS.

Teuton War Offices Tell of Continued Successes.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The headquarters staff report has this to say concerning operations in the east:

Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The troops of General von Beseler are stationed in the region surrounding the bridgehead south of Friedrichstadt. In an engagement, east of the Nieman, the army of General von Eichhorn reached a point northeast of Olita. An additional 1,600 prisoners and seven cannon were captured.

In the direction of Grodno the town of Lipsk, on the Bobr River, was taken by storm and the enemy forced to surrender. The Widra, a tributary of the Sukelka, was crossed by our troops. The Eastern border of the forest directly East of Bialystok has been reached at several points.

Army group of Prince Leopold: In the Bieloviezh Forest, fighting goes on for possession of the crossing over the Upper Narew. German and Austro-Hungarian troops under General von Woyrsch drove the enemy out of his position at Suchodol, on the Eastern border of the forest, and at Szereszowo and are now closely pursuing him.

Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: In order to render possible the retreat of their rear guard divisions through the marsh district, the Russians made a stand once more yesterday on a line in the Koddubno district, south of Kobrin. They were defeated, although they brought back and threw in to the battle some divisions which previously had been falling back.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—This statement was given out by the War Office tonight:

The armies of Generals Pflanzer, Baltin and Bothmer have advanced to Stripa. At several points the enemy attempted to arrest our pursuit, but was everywhere repulsed. Especially stubborn resistance had to be broken at the lower Koropice rivulet.

The troops of General Boehm-Ermolli encountered strongly manned positions east of Zloczow and on the line running from Bialy-Kamien across Toporow to Radziechow. The enemy was attacked and repulsed at several points along this front.

In Volhynia, our forces advancing toward Lutsk gained ground. Swin-

Admits That the Balkan Situation Affects Germany's Attitude Toward Us

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Theodore Wolff, Editor of the Berliner Tageblatt, who is close to the Chancellor, writes significantly:

"While the German armies in the east are solving a knotty problem, here behind the front must be found the right solution for two problems which are surrounded by all sorts of difficulties, a solution which might be decisive, and in any event is serious and pressing.

"The Balkans, including Bulgaria, have not yet committed themselves to a binding policy, and the sinking of a great pasenger steamer, the Arabic, has led to new diplomatic pourparlers between Germany and America. It might seem as though the two problems had nothing to do with one another, as if there was no connection between America and the Balkans, but the political battlefields are not so sharply separated.

"Those who, like us, desire a 'free road' to Constantinople must see that in order to achieve this task, rich in future possibilities, we must not split our strength and pile up avoidable difficulties. Those who with clear insight are fighting for a free road to Constantinople will not forget this most important goal in considering the American question, which apparently is so remote from the Balkans.

"Even without this consideration the responsible leaders of the German foreign policy harbor a very natural wish to work toward improving German-American relations and as far as possible preventing a serious conflict, which no sensible person, either here or in America, desires. It is safe to assume that Ambassador von Bernstorff has been instructed to work in behalf of such an understanding, and that the means of achieving it have been given to him.

"So much one can say without going further into the Lusitania-Arabic affair. Discussion of this theme is barred by an order which is quite understandable."

ACCUSED OF KILLING WIFE IN HIS OFFICE

PISTOL IS FOUND NEAR BY

Eighth Street was crowded at 6 o'clock last night with homeward-bound workers when the reports of several revolver shots sounded from the office of Samuel Leitner's private detective agency at the top of the high stoop building at 52 East Eighth Street, not far from Mercer Street, and only a little more than a block from Broadway. A bullet flew through the plate glass window in the front of Leitner's office, making a small, round hole, from which long cracks shot upward toward the corners of the window.

Men ran up the long stairs from the street and rushed into the office, where they came on Leitner holding a woman in his arms. At sight of them he shouted:

"Some one shot my wife. She's dead. Telephone for the police."

Bert Meyers of 229 East Ninth Street, who had run from his father's trucking stand across the street, raced up to Broadway, where he found Traffic Policeman Smith. The policeman ran back with him, stopping only long enough to call an ambulance, and presently Dr. Mahoney arrived from St. Vincent's Hospital. He found that two bullets had struck Mrs. Leitner in the right breast, two in the left, and one in the right hand. She was dead.

Several detectives from Headquarters arrived with Inspector Cray, Acting Captain Deevy of the Mercer Street Station, and photographers and finger-print experts. They found seventeen men and women, who had crowded into the small office, and detained all of these long enough to take their names and addresses before driving them out of the office. Then they questioned Leitner.

Empty Revolver Found.

He declared that two men wearing gray caps had entered the office, murdered his wife, and fled to the street. Later, however, a revolver containing five empty shells was found shoved out of sight beneath the tin apron of an unused chimney opening where a stove pipe might fit in nineteen shells were found in a closet and Leitner was invited to Police Headquarters, where he was closeted with Inspector Faurot in the latter's office. At midnight it was announced Leitner had been arrested on a charge of homicide.

Leitner said his home was at 1,213 Forty-first Street, Borough Park, Brooklyn, and he had five children, the eldest 10 years old and the youngest 9 months, although his wife, Sarah, was only 27 years old. He did not tell anything of his home life, but Marion Sweet, a servant employed by the Leitners for the last two months, said that husband and wife had quarreled constantly since she had been with them. This had grown worse in the last two weeks, the girl said, and only last Thursday night, she said, Leitner had driven his wife from the house at midnight clad only in her nightdress. Neighbors took her in and later persuaded Leitner to let her return, the girl said. The quarreling did not cease, however, said the servant, and once she had heard Mrs. Leitner say:

"Now you have gone the limit. I'm going to expose you and your methods to the police."

She said Leitner and his wife had left the house together yesterday morning, for on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays Mrs. Leitner went to the German Hospital for treatment for a threatened nervous breakdown. Leitner, in his talk to the police, mentioned this and said also his wife had been hunting for new quarters and had called last evening for him to escort her home after a day of house hunting. She had been more than usually nervous, he said, and had kept calling to him, "Hurry up, Sam, I want to go home."

Wife Near His Desk.

He said he had been at work at his desk while his wife walked uneasily up and down beside the desk. Leitner's office is at the left as one enters the building. A door gives into a small space shut off from the rest of the office by a wooden railing, in which there is a gate. This gate is close to an iron grille that crosses the width of the office and shuts Leitner and his desk into a small space by the window. There is a door in this, also giving into the inclosed space behind the wooden railing, and at the other end is another door in a tall wooden petition shutting off the rear of the big room. Leitner's quarters occupy only half of the front space, a glass petition extending from floor to ceiling shutting him off from the quarters of the New York and Brooklyn Window Cleaning Company, whose office is entered only from the rear room.

Leitner's high roll-top desk is backed against the grille, so that its top shuts off his view of the outer office when he is seated at it, though the floor on which it stands is elevated a foot above the general floor. It was on this platform that Mrs. Leitner walked up and down in front of the door in the grille, which was open.

Leitner said the shots came so fast that the two men were already hurrying from the office even when he sprang up from his seat at the desk. He caught his wife as she fell, exclaiming: "Sam, I'm killed."

He lowered her to the floor, he said, and ran through the door and gate, out the front door of his office and to the top of the stoop. Below him the sidewalk was jammed with men and women, but no where did he catch sight of men in gray caps. He ran back, and then the crowd from the sidewalk surged in. Others came downstairs from offices

SAN ANTONIO RISING CHECKED BY POLICE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 30.—With the arrest here today of twenty-six Mexicans, twenty-three of whom were held late today, Chief of Police Lancaster and Federal authorities tonight announced that a plan to incite the Mexican population of San Antonio to deeds of violence had been frustrated.

The order for a general arrest of all Mexican agitators was issued after a disturbance that was a sequel to a street meeting last night, during which one of the speakers declared that it was "no harm to kill a Gringo and an Allemante," meaning Americans and Germans, according to Chief Lancaster. The police charged the crowd and arrested the leaders after a fight in which one of the Mexicans shouted: "Now is the time to rise! Let us kill the Gringoes!" A dragnet was then thrown out and suspects arrested today.

Those held will be placed in the custody of Federal officials, who said tonight that charges of treason, alleging an effort to set on foot an armed expedition against the United States authorities, would probably be filed against them.

The prisoners, according to Chief Lancaster, were adherents of the so-called Plan of San Diego—a wild scheme to recapture Texas for Mexico.

A recent uprising in a portion of the Lower Rio Grande Valley caused the program to go amiss, and at the same time Federal officials were put on their guard.

Since the disturbances in the Brownsville district Special Agents of the United States Department of Justice and police officers have been keeping a close watch to prevent a possible uprising in San Antonio. They learned that several agitators were here; but until last night's meeting these men did not attempt to create any disorders.

LAREDO, Texas, Aug. 30.—Highly prejudiced news articles against the United States appearing in the Mexican press along the border, especially in some of the Monterey papers, have so inflamed the Mexican populace that United States customs officials have received orders, they admitted today, to confiscate any papers that tended to incite race hatred. Postal officials were reported to be taking steps to bar such papers from the mails.

An instance of the extreme lengths to which some of the stories go was seen recently in a local Mexican paper, which reproduced an article published in Puebla, Mexico, saying that Major Gen. Hugh Scott, Chief of Staff of the United States' Army, had advised Villa to attack Nuevo Laredo and force intervention by the United States.

A Monterey paper published an appeal to Mexicans to rise and recover portions of the United States formerly governed by Mexico. All copies of the issue reaching here were confiscated by customs officers.

LIKELY TO IGNORE CARRANZA.

Conferees Almost Certain to Refuse Him Recognition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Strong influences have been at work to induce General Carranza to accept the invitation of the Pan-American peace conferees for a meeting of Mexican factional leaders with a view to seeking a solution of the Mexican problem. It was intimated here today that Carranza's delay in making response to the appeal might have been due partly to pressure exerted to show him that he would make a mistake if he rejected or ignored the invitation. However, there is every indication that Carranza will reject it and will take the position that his Government is in control of nineteenths of Mexico's territory and entitled to recognition.

The Villa and Zapata factions have accepted the invitation from the United States and Latin-American nations for such a conference, and while it is the hope of these Governments that Carranza will also accept, it was intimated here today that Carranza would be ignored if he rejected this invitation and that the conference would be held in any event.

It is practically certain that the Carranza Government will not be recognized; indeed, it was pointed out that it would be rather inconsistent for the United States and the Pan-American nations to recognize Carranza, should he reject their appeals, after the other factional leaders to whom the invitation was sent had accepted the plan for a conference.

Reports to the State Department from Torreon late in the day said the Villa forces had begun an attack upon Monterey, the capital of Nuevo Leon, which is in possession of Carranza troops under General Trevino. The message said heavy fighting was in progress, but gave no details.

State Department advices also said railroad communication between Piedras Negras, on the Mexican border, and Monterey still was interrupted and that the American Red Cross was unable to get a trainload of supplies through to Monclova and Saltillo, where there has been destitution among natives for some time.

WARRING NATIONS IN KEEN RIVALRY FOR FRIENDSHIP OF UNITED STATES; BERLIN NOW WANTS QUICK AGREEMENT

Germany Ready to Punish for Arabic Sinking; Kaiser Reported Won Over by Chancellor

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The German Government considers the Arabic incident closed and has declared its willingness to punish the commander of the submarine which sank the steamer, according to a dispatch which the Exchange Telegraph Company's Amsterdam correspondent says has been received there from Berlin.

There is reported to be considerable feeling in German militarist circles because of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's so-called "weakness" toward the United States.

BERLIN, Aug. 30, (via London.)—It is understood today that Germany's course with regard to the Arabic case has been decided upon, and that it is in line with the recent conciliatory statement by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor.

This development followed the return to Berlin of the Chancellor, Admiral von Tirpitz, and other participants in the conference with the Emperor at his headquarters on the eastern front. No official statement has been made regarding the German decision, but there seems to be good ground for the belief that the Government has adopted the view set forth by the Chancellor.

In a statement made by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor, on Aug. 25, he said that the circumstances surrounding the sinking of the Arabic had not been fully cleared up, because no report regarding it had been received, and that it was not even known whether a mine or a torpedo sank the Arabic, nor whether the actions of the liner might not have justified the attack. The Chancellor added:

"Only after all these circumstances have been cleared up will it be possible to say whether the commander of one of our submarines went beyond his instructions, in which case the Imperial Government would not hesitate to give such complete satisfaction to the United States as would conform to the friendly relations existing between both Governments."

ATTACKS GERMAN PRIZE COURT RULE

England Declares It Abolishes Distinction Between Absolute and Conditional Contraband.

CITES TWO RECENT CASES

Rarely Possible to Furnish Proof of Destination Demanded, Says London Statement.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The British Foreign Office issued the following statement tonight:

"Judgments recently have been delivered by the German Prize Court at Hamburg in the cases of the steamships Maria and Batavier V. The Maria, a Dutch vessel, was carrying a cargo of wheat shipped from Portland, Ore., to Belfast and Dublin. She was captured and sunk by the Karlsruhe, a German cruiser, in the Atlantic on Sept. 21. The Batavier V., a Dutch vessel, bound for London, was captured in the North Sea on March 18 and taken to Zeebrugge on suspicion of carrying contraband.

"The sinking of the Maria was justified by the German Prize Court on the ground that, having regard for the place of capture, the commander of the Karlsruhe was unable to take the vessel into a German port or a port of an allied power, and so acted pursuant to Article 113 of the German naval prize regulations. This was said not to require any further explanation, and payment of indemnity to the owner was refused.

"The judgments show that, in considering the question of destination of conditional contraband, the German Prize Court held that it is to be guided by a communication of the Chief of the General Staff of the navy, addressed to the court on Aug. 17, 1914, concerning ports to be regarded as fortified places or as bases of operations and supply for the British armed forces in Great Britain, issued by supreme command. As the court in other cases held that such places as Ipswich, Poole, Barrow-in-Furness, and Grangemouth are bases or fortified places, it may be inferred that these also are included in the list referred to.

"In order to rebut the presumption thus set up, that conditional contraband destined for such places is intended for military and not for civil use, the court held that counterproof must satisfy the most rigorous condition. It would only be possible to furnish it in rare cases. With regard to the cargo of wheat aboard the Maria, they held that there was no means of ascertaining with the least certainty what use the wheat would have been put to at the arrival of the vessel at Belfast, and whether the British Government would not have come upon the scene as a purchaser.

"The effect of these decisions appears to be to abolish in practice the distinction of absolute and conditional contraband of war."

TIRPITZ'S FRIENDS ANGRY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Daily Mail says today:

"Admiral Tirpitz's two mouthpieces, Count Reventlow and the leader writer of the Hamburger Nachrichten, are extremely indignant with the Washington correspondent of Wolff's Agency because he dared to telegraph that the German Government had better produce some kind of excuse for the Arabic business. Here are some of the excuses he suggested, adding that almost any excuse would apparently be accepted. Americans in the Arabic were guests, that is persons granted free tickets on condition that they sailed in the ship; the Arabic either made or appeared to make such a manoeuvre as justified or might justify the submarine commander in thinking she meant to ram or to escape.

"'No excuses,' shrieks the Hamburger Nachrichten. 'If a German submarine really sank the Arabic the whole German people approves its action.' Similarly Count Reventlow urges that 'whatever the facts may have been the German Empire has neither reason nor occasion to offer apologies.'"

BRITISH MODIFY BLOCKADE ORDER

FREES CHRISTMAS CARGOES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The British Government has made some concessions in the enforcement of that portion of the Order in Council covering shipments of goods of German or Austrian origin via neutral ports to the United States as a result of informal negotiations just completed by the foreign trade advisers of the State Department. The details of the arrangement have not been perfected in form for announcement, but the plan contemplates the perfection of facilities for the identification at Washington of goods owned in America, bought in Germany, but not paid for before March 1, and which have been held up at Rotterdam.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, gave the assurances during a call at the State Department today. He said that details would be given later in a memorandum from the Foreign Office in London.

The plan is to have American importers submit proofs to the foreign trade advisers of the State Department at Washington, both as to identification of the cargoes and of American ownership and other necessary particulars, and thus establish a system by which the examination of the cases and claims of American importers can be carried on in Washington, through informal conferences between the trade advisers and Sir Richard Crawford of the British Embassy.

The purpose of this arrangement is to facilitate the procedure of procuring the release of those American-owned, German-made cargoes, now at Rotterdam, which the British Government may be willing to permit to be shipped to the United States. It is in line with Sir Edward Grey's note of July 31, in which he gave assurances of Great Britain's willingness to "make reasonable concessions to American interests" and to accord special consideration in all cases where the enforcement of the British Order in Council might be causing undue hardship. During the past week the British Government has issued special permits for the shipment of some consignments of German goods which were ordered by American importers before March 1, but were not paid for, and had been held up at Rotterdam.

Christmas Goods Held Up.

Large quantities of such goods are tied up at Rotterdam and are badly needed for the Christmas trade in this country. The foreign trade advisers are acting informally and not in an official capacity, but they feel that the arrangements that have thus been made will greatly relieve the situation. Information in the hands of the State Department showed that private brokers and attorneys were obtaining special permits in London for shipment of some of these goods from Rotterdam.

Under the arrangement now being perfected it is expected that the trade advisers will be able to procure the issuance in London of special permits for the movement of a large quantity of goods greatly needed in this country. In these cases the shippers will give the foreign trade advisers the necessary information upon which the special permit is to be based, and this information, it is understood, will be presented through the trade advisers to the representatives of the British Government and forwarded to London.

It is understood to be the purpose, after proper identification of the goods and presentation of the other necessary information, to permit the passage through the blockade of goods for which American importers entered into contract with Austrian and German firms before March 1, even though these goods may not actually have been paid for. Until last week the only goods permitted to pass through the blockade lines under special permits were those that were or had been contracted for before March 1.

GERMANS SEEKING OUR AID

British Also Make Concessions and Government Expects Still More to Follow.

ARABIC SETTLEMENT NEAR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A great game of world politics is being played with the friendship of the United States as the grand prize. Diplomats and officials of the Washington Government are watching the moves with great interest, some of them with anxiety, for they realize the vast possibilities involved in the outcome.

Dovetailing into the situation are the Balkan diplomatic crisis, the submarine issue between the United States and Germany, the differences between this Government and Great Britain over the restrictions on American commerce through the application of the British blockade, the munitions shipment question, the German propaganda in this country, and above all what seems to be an effort to create the impression that President Wilson may be able to take the lead in a new and positive proposal for peace between the waring powers of Europe.

Today's developments in the great game involved the Arabic incident, which at one time threatened to cause a break in American relations with Germany, and the British policy of restricting the shipment of German goods to the United States. A dispatch to the State Department from James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador at Berlin, told of opposition by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz to the promised program of giving complete satisfaction to the American Government for the sinking of the Arabic. The British Embassy notified the department that it was due to German and not British opposition that cargoes of dyestuffs bought in Germany by American firms were not shipped to this country. The British notification showed that Great Britain was willing and ready to modify some of the restrictions on American trade with Germany and neutral countries contiguous to German territory for which this Government had been contending.

Whole Situation Brighter.

Altogether, from an American viewpoint, the present status of the situation is very promising. The prospect is that serious controversy with Germany over submarine attacks is to be settled amicably and in a way fairly to satisfy the demands of the United States. And the outlook is brighter for an adjustment of the less dangerous troubles over the administration of the British blockade. That President Wilson appreciates the importance of the position occupied by this Government, and intends to take advantage of it, is indicated by the announcement that the President has given up a plan to spend September at Cornish.

It appears from Ambassador Gerard's report that Grand Admiral von Tirpitz is not willing to go so far in giving satisfaction to the United States as has been indicated in the assurances given to this Government. Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, has promised "complete satisfaction" to the United States in connection with the deaths of Americans in the Arabic disaster in the event of proof that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine. It has been made known that "complete satisfaction" meant more than a disavowal of responsibility or intention to cause the deaths of Americans. The understanding was that in addition to disavowal Germany would show her good faith by disciplining the commander of the submarine that attacked the Arabic, provided always that Germany acknowledged that the White Star steamship met her fate in that way.

While the details of Ambassador Gerard's dispatch are not made known officially, the opposition of the Grand Admiral is understood to be directed to assurances regarding the punishment of the submarine commander. To this the Grand Admiral is said to object on the ground that it would have a bad effect on the discipline and activity of the submarine fleet. Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Grand Admiral von Tirpitz have returned to Berlin from the Eastern front, where the matter of dispute was placed before Emperor William. It is not doubted here that the Emperor's decision was on the side of the new German policy of doing everything to win the friendship of the United States.

Delayed Order Embarrassing.

One interesting feature of the situation, that may possibly explain the attitude of Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, is found in the report that reaches Washington in an official way that there is some doubt whether the decision of the Imperial Government, reached as a result of the anger of the United States over the sinking of the Lusitania, to abandon the practice of attacking passenger ships without warning was carried out in orders to submarine commanders. The German Government is represented as being embarrassed by this possibility, and for that reason has been unable to make a definite promise to discipline the submarine commander responsible for torpedoing the Arabic.

Most of the moves in the great game of world politics, with Washington in the centre of the board, are being played by Germany. To her the friendship of the United States has become the most desirable thing to be attained, for on it may depend the course of the Balkan States, and possibly Greece, in the present war. It is well understood by diplomatists that Italy declared war against Turkey partly to induce the Balkans to follow her example. From the German viewpoint a break with the United States might be the deciding factor in influencing the Balkan Governments in determining whether they shall stay out of the war or come in on the side of the quadruple alliance on the theory that America's enmity meant Germany's defeat.

May End Propaganda.

In line with Germany's new policy there are indications that the pro-German propaganda in this country has been or is to be less active, perhaps abandoned. The original purpose of the propaganda was to influence President Wilson to place an embargo on shipments of war munitions to the Allies. That having failed, the propaganda was directed to arousing a popular feeling that would induce Congress to adopt embargo measures. But the chance that Congress might carry out the German wish has been thrown into the discard by the declaration of American policy concerning munitions exports in Secretary Lansing's recent note to Austria-Hungary. Even if there should be reason to expect Congressional action, the note to Austria-Hungary shows that President Wilson would veto any enacted resolution of that character.

It is now evident that Germany realizes that the propaganda has done more harm than good to the German cause. Charges that President Wilson and the officers of his Administration were active partisans of Great Britain have served only to create a feeling of resentment among many Americans of neutral tendencies and to embitter officials who had resolved that by no word or deed, personal as well as official, would they show bias for one side or the other in the great European conflict. Such German propagandist organizations as "Labor's National Peace Council" and the "Friends of Peace," from which responsible trade unionists are rapidly disassociating themselves, simply created the impression among officials that Germany's friends were attempting to embarrass the American Government. The movement did not have the intended effect of frightening the Prsident and his associates into the belief that for political reasons it might be well to alter their course concerning munitions.

Moved by President's Warning.

It is now known that the impressive warning of the United States with respect to repetitions of such acts as the destruction of the Lusitania had its effect on the German Government. The Berlin authorities decided that there should be a softening of submarine activity, especially against passenger vessels, but it is not clear yet how far the new policy was carried out. It has been made plain since the Arabic was sunk, however, that the German Government became impressed with the idea that President Wilson was determined to obtain satisfaction, and that a break in the relations of the two countries was impending. So Germany asked the United States to refrain from action until a report could be obtained from submarines operating off the British coasts. That report is now being awaited, but pending its receipt the Washington Government has received assurances from Germany that give advance confirmation of the understanding that there has been a change in the conduct of submarine activity.

The Arabic incident has been fortunate for Germany to the extent that it affords an opportunity of declarations as to future submarine policy that she hopes will lessen the intense feeling aroused in this country over the sinking of the Lusitania. That the destruction of the great Cunarder and the sacrifice of many women and children aroused the American people, has been duly impressed on the German official mind.

Denounced by Our Navy Men.

Aside from its effect on the American Government, it caused such expressions of horror in the press and among the people that it brought Germany to a realization of her loss of prestige in the country where she was making such a patent bid for sympathy. The resentment here over Dr. Bernhard Dernburg's justification of the Lusitania tragedy was so marked that his return to Germany was necessary. The admiration that had been excited among some American naval officers for Germany's splendid military efficiency, with the degree of sympathy for the German cause that might be an accompaniment of this admiration, changed to a feeling of horror over the German plan of naval operations against passenger vessels. Naval officers are not commenting publicly on the subject, but privately some have not hesitated to say that they would surrender their commissions rather than obey an order to sink a ship filled with women and children and other noncombatants. One high ranking officer said that if he could ever be brought to obey a command such as that executed by the German submarine commander who sank the Lusitania he would have blown out his brains immediately thereafter.

All these things have had their effect in Germany, and the necessity of undertaking a new method of dealing with the United States has been due in part to them and in part to the exigencies of the Balkan situation. In addition, there has been an idea that sympathy for the German cause might be aroused in this country by placing Great Britain in the position of showing an unfriendly spirit toward American commercial interests, while Germany would be doing everything to prove that she loved the United States as a brother.

When the Arabic case has been settled Germany will offer a plan of settlement of the Lusitania incident and will notify this Government that she accepts its offer to act as "the common friend" of the European belligerents to obtain "the freedom of the seas." The acceptance of the offer means that Germany will expect the United States to back up the representations made to Great Britain on the subject of British interference with American trade with Germany and neutral countries of Europe.

Delayed by German Crisis.

As is well known here, this Government was delaying its answer to the recent British communications on the subject because of the crisis in its relations with Germany. Germany expects to satisfy this Government with regard to their differences, and will then leave it to the Washington Administration to press Great Britain for modifications of her Orders-in-Council. If the diplomatic situation thus created brings sharp exchanges between Washington and London, Germany will feel that she is making progress. It is not doubted here that Germany is hopeful that American anger may be aroused, and that by the rule of comparison, the sympathy of the United States will be turned to the German cause.

The British Government has already indicated a disposition to show consideration for American commerce, and to make modifications in the enforcement of the blockade policy. A step in that direction was taken today in the notification to the United States of willingness to let goods contracted for in Germany by American firms prior to a certain date, go forward to this country. The outlook is brighter for an adjustment of the differences between London and Washington growing out of the Orders-in-Council. It is not doubted here that the British Government is alive to the German effort to placate the United States in the hope of putting Great Britain in the position of injuring American trade and commerce.

Underlying the great game that is being played is the hope of the Berlin Government that efforts of the United States to have Great Britain and Germany make mutual concessions toward lessening the severity of the British blockade and the German submarine warfare will lead to exchanges looking to the restoration of peace. That this hope exists has been made obvious within the past few days. President Wilson has a standing offer to exercise his good offices toward that end, but experience has shown the necessity of caution, and it is believed in well-informed circles here that the Government will not approach any of the European belligerents on the subject of peace until it has made sure in advance that none of them will take offense at it.

A feeling of great satisfaction exists in Washington over the trend of relations between the United States and Europe. The Government is anxious to have the pending differences with Germany and Great Britain adjusted as quickly as possible, but everything indicates that both countries are disposed to look more favorably on the position of the Administration in the vital matters growing out of the war that have caused the United States to take issue with Berlin and London.

SAW SUBMARINE PURSUIT.

Chasing Transport, Which Was Firing at Periscope, Skipper Says.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30.—The pursuit of a British transport by a German submarine while the transport was endeavoring to hit the periscope of the undersea boat was witnessed by Captain Mikkelsen of the Danish steamship Olaf, which arrived today from Bristol, England.

Captain Mikkelsen said that on Aug. 15, the day after the Olaf left Bristol, the transport was seen going at high speed and from time to time firing at the periscope of the submarine. The distance between the vessels was less than two miles. At short intervals the submarine would rise to the surface, exposing its periscope, and dive again to escape the fire from the transport.

"I could not make out the name on the transport on account of the distance," said Captain Mikkelsen, "but I watched the chase for some time and could see that the submarine was making a determined attempt to get into position to launch a torpedo. Whether it was successful I do not know, for when last seen the race was being continued. The submarine was a fast one, and the transport was only holding its own."

DENOUNCES BELGIUM, TOO

Reiterates the Chancellor's Latest Statement That She Broke Her Own Neutrality.

BERLIN, Aug. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung publishes an official reply to the recent statement by Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, with relation to the speech of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg at the opening of the last session of the Reichstag. The Overseas News Agency today summarizes the reply as follows:

"At the beginning the article alludes to the fact that Sir Edward Grey diplomatically ignored the valuable material contained in reports from Belgian Ministers at various European capitals prior to the war, recently published in Germany, but goes exhaustively into the subject of threats against Belgian neutrality. The Chancellor never said that Belgian sold her neutrality to England, but asserted that it had been proved by documents that Belgium had fostered British military plans, thus herself violating her neutrality.

"The article points out that the discussion of all eventualities by British and Belgian military officers must have been reported to the British Cabinet. Documents found in Brussels, it is asserted, show conclusively that a British military attaché coolly told his Belgian colleague that Great Britain would land troops in Belgium without Belgium's consent, and that Belgium never had protested against this, having decided not to resist a British violation of Belgian neutrality; but that upon the mere supposition that a German invasion was possible the Belgian Government prepared complete plans for co-operation with British forces. Such a country, it is declared, is not a neutral country.

"Other documents found, the reply continues, show that the British General Staff received, reviewed and discussed important reports of attachés stationed at Brussels.

"The Chancellor, it is added, did not endeavor to bring to light facts that would justify a violation of Belgian neutrality in August, 1914, and stated the reason in his Reichstag speech, declaring that German troops invaded Belgium after the latter had already broken her own neutrality.

"Besides, it is added, the excitement over the morals of a violation of a 75-year-old treaty made for entirely different purposes was ridiculous for a country which unconcernedly disregarded a promise solemnly given twenty-five years ago to all Europe, and which continuously supported French violations of the obligations accepted in 1911 regarding Morocco."

The Overseas News Agency here takes up the assertion by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg in his recent Reichstag speech that Sir Edward Grey had said to the German Ambassador, as he was taking leave of him after the outbreak of the war, that it might be possible that England could be of more assistance to Germany at the war's close by entering the conflict than if she had remained neutral. It notes the Zeitung's assertion that Sir Edward Grey had denied having made such remarks as the German Chancellor in his Reichstag address had interpreted as meaning that Sir Edward would be able to aid Germany against Russia. The next of the memorandum in which Prince Lichnowsky, the German Ambassador at London, recorded the part in question of his interview with the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs is reproduced from the newspaper by the Overseas News Agency as follows:

> Sir Edward Grey sent word that he would like to speak to me at his home before my departure and bid me farewell; also that he had a confidential communication to make that possibly would be valuable in the future. I answered that in view of the turn affairs had taken it would be painful for me to meet him again, but would yield to his request, as I did not wish to miss an opportunity that might possibly be important to the future of both nations.
> Sir Edward Grey was visibly moved as he greeted me. He said the decision he had been obliged to take was the gravest of his entire life, and that the deciding consideration was that participation in the war would injure England little more than a passive course; moreover, that England as a participating power would be in a better position to throw her influence into the balance than by remaining neutral, because she would be able at any time to threaten to withdraw from the conflict.
> The violation of recognized international treaties guaranteed by England, he said, made it impossible for her to stand aside. Also, he regarded it as inexpedient to consider the suggestion of the Imperial Chancellor establishing conditions for Great Britain's neutrality. From the British standpoint such a transaction impressed him as improper, and he could not enter into negotiations with a power that could make such propositions. As in former interviews, he laid chief stress upon the Belgian question, without adding, as he did in his speech in the House of Commons, that England could not look on while Germany endeavored to reduce not only France, but also Belgium and Holland, to a state of dependency.

The Foreign Secretary's confidential communication to Prince Lichnowsky is thus summarized:

"The confidential communication was to the effect that, should events not take the turn anticipated by the German military party, or should Great Britain wish for other reasons to bring the war to a speedy end, he always would be prepared, if he remained in office, to undertake the task of mediation and be of assistance to Germany. He had not the slightest intention to crush Germany, and wished only to restore peace upon acceptable conditions and put an end to unspeakable misery for the civilized world.

"Prince Lichnowsky remarked that the rôle of arbiter would be easier for Sir Edward Grey had Great Britain maintained neutrality. He answered that the participation of England would shorten the duration of the war."

"Fighting to Liberate Europe."

The agency, in concluding its summary of the Zeitung's reply, says:

"If Sir Edward Grey had assented to the acceptance of the proposals for a conference he would have maintained peace. If Germany had quietly looked on while Russia gathered her millions of soldiers at the frontier, Germany today would look as East Prussia did after the Russian invasion; and Sir Edward Grey himself had read the report of the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg that Russian mobilization must lead to German mobilization and war. If the Foreign Secretary had told St. Petersburg that Great Britain would not enter a conflict, war would have been avoided instead of being precipitated by the promise of support.

"Germany fights not for supremacy, as Sir Edward said, but for the liberation of Europe from the brutal supremacy that England had maintained over it by her powerful fleet and with her policy of dividing the European powers into two hostile parts, attacking each other in the interest of Great Britain and permitting that nation to throw her weight where it best served her egoistic ambitions."

HOLD BACK NAVAL DATA.

"Fighting Ships" Voluminous on All Countries Except Britain.

The 1915 edition of "Fighting Ships," founded and edited by Fred T. Jane and published in London by Samson Low, Marston & Co., Ltd., was received by THE TIMES yesterday, and is the most remarkable number issued during the eighteen years of its existence.

It contains the latest available information on the navies of Germany, the United States, Japan, France, Italy, and the other countries, but not one mention of the British Navy, except the following announcement:

"Purchasers of the public edition of 'Fighting Ships' will be entitled, after the war, to the British section, which, for the time being, is supplied only to the order of his Majesty's Government. It is, perhaps, unnecessary to emphasize the historic value of the British section, which puts on record for all time the strength of the navy in the war period, and completes the record of maritime powers in this important epoch."

The announcement ends with the statement that the British section may be obtained after the war by depositing a coupon from the book with the publishers, as it is part and parcel of the public edition.

but should have been paid for. The understanding is that under the new plan it will be sufficient to show in each case that the goods were regularly contracted for by American importers before March 1, that the American importer is in reality the person responsible for them, and that the title rests with him.

It is asserted here that the success of private interests, represented by special attorneys in London, in obtaining the release of about $600,000 worth of these goods at Rotterdam, was due, mainly, to the fact that the attorneys there were able to present the required proof as to the character of the goods and the condition of the contract. It is now planned that American importers may present proof to the foreign trade advisers in Washington, to be submitted to the commercial attaché of the British Embassy in Washington and that this will greatly facilitate the procedure and result in the issuance of special permits by the British authorities for the movement of American goods from Rotterdam.

The British Embassy today issued a statement placing the entire responsibility for the holding up of dyestuffs of German manufacture, intended for American consumption, upon the German Government. The statement read:

"April 14 a formal notice was issued by the British Government that they would allow vessels carrying two shipments of dyestuffs, which were paid for by delivery in Germany of certain cotton cargoes, to pass without interference provided the vessels sailed under a neutral flag; that the shipments were made from Rotterdam, and the dyestuffs consigned to the Secretary of Commerce for distribution directly to the textile industries. This offer, which was refused by Germany, still holds good."

MARVEL AT OUR COURSE.

London Newspapers Think We Are Too Forbearing with Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The London Times, in an editorial on the Arabic disaster, says:

"The Americans have certainly surprised their friends in Europe, and may even have surprised themselves, by the quite unprecedented self-restraint and charity with which they have suffered at Germany's hands an equally unprecedented series of insults and injuries. That there is a limit to their forbearance we are well aware. But it seems tolerably clear that it has not yet been reached. On this point the sequel to the sinking of the Arabic appears conclusive. The act itself precisely fulfilled all the conditions of deliberate unfriendliness which the President had postulated.

"In the face of the appeals and warnings they had repeatedly addressed to the German Government it was not easy to see how the American authorities could any longer refrain from positive action. President Wilson, however, very properly waited until the facts could be collected and examined.

"That Germany will abandon her submarine program in order to appease the United States and without solid compensation to be provided at our expense we do not believe, nor is it at all likely that the President will consent to be used as a Teutonic catspaw. The mere hint that the German Government is meditating any such surrender has stirred the von Tirpitz press to furious protests. It could, indeed, only be carried out by a radical displacement of the present balance of military and political power in the empire. Failing in some such upheaval, the probabilities are that Americans will again have occasion to display the largeness of their self-control and their eminent devotion to peace."

The Daily Mail says: "The situation that has arisen between Germany and the United States as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania and the Arabic affects those two powers exclusively. The air is full of rumors that Germany may once more offer to abandon submarine attacks if Washington will use its good offices to modify the Orders in Council. It is not likely that Mr. Wilson will lend himself to any such compromise, and even if he did we could not be a party to it. This country has no intention of sacrificing its legitimate naval advantage in order to assist Germany in escaping the consequences of her criminal practices. She must settle with the United States as best she can at her own expense and not at ours. We will pay no blackmail."

RUSSIA TO RELEASE GOODS FOR AMERICA

Finally Arranges to Modify Embargo—Shipments to Be Delivered Under Bond.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Final acceptance by Russia of the agreement for modifying the Russian embargo against exports to the United States was communicated to the State Department today.

Under the agreement, all goods coming to the United States from Russia will be consigned to the Secretary of Commerce, and will be distributed to the importers only when the Secretary and the Russian Embassy are convinced that the goods will not be re-exported to enemies of Russia.

Applications for export permits will be handled by the commercial agent of the Department of Commerce in New York and the Russian commercial agent there. Bonds to guarantee against re-exportation will be required. The agreement is expected to release millions of dollars' worth of merchandise which American importers have been trying to obtain. Hides and skins, furs, vetch seed, and mineral oil are some of the more important products involved.

DACIA FIGHT TO GO ON.

Government Will Take It Up if the Owners' Appeal Fails.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Diplomacy will not be resorted to by the United States in the case of the steamer Dacia, which was condemned by a French prize court, until the ship's owner has exhausted his right of appeal in the courts of France.

It was officially announced here today that the decision holding the transfer of the Dacia from German to American ownership and register illegal, was based on an erroneous finding of facts in several particulars. The court acted on the assumption that the cargo of cotton carried by the Dacia was purchased with the ship from the German owners, although, according to evidence before the State Department, a new cargo was loaded on the vessel after she changed hands.

FEARS NO GERMAN ATTACK ON BALKANS

MASSING TROOPS A BLUFF

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The Daily Chronicle's diplomatic correspondent says:

"It would be only fulfilling the malicious intentions of the central powers to accept the present military demonstration on the frontiers of Serbia and Rumania at its face value. Its purpose in the most favorable circumstances must be more political than military. The expense of the suggested German plan to break through Serbia and Bulgaria to Constantinople, even if it proved successful, which is decidedly improbable, would be out of all proportion to the military value of the achievement. Any fresh attack on Serbia will certainly recreate the Balkan League, and such a contingency—bringing into action against the Teutonic powers over 1,250,000 men—German diplomacy cannot possibly contemplate.

"It seems most likely, as a reliable authority remarked yesterday, that the latest military move on the part of Austria and Germany is intended doubly as a sinister support of the political projects their agents are assiduously advancing in Sofia and as a further menace to Rumania. Meanwhile the last-named State, I learn from a well-informed source, is steadfastly rejecting alternately coercive and conciliatory advances made by Germany concerning the transport of munitions to Turkey. The Rumanian army, which would certainly co-operate with the other Balkan States in resisting the German invasion of Serbia and Bulgaria, numbers nearly 600,000 men, and may be relied upon to render a vigorous account of itself."

TURKS RETAKE TRENCHES.

Report a Successful Counterattack in Western Gallipoli.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 30, (via London.) — The following communication on the progress of operations in the Dardanelles was issued today by the Turkish War Office:

> The enemy on Saturday renewed stubborn attacks in the district of Anafarta, which were repulsed with losses to the enemy. Counterattacking, we recaptured trenches before our centre, killing the occupants.
>
> Inu the fighting of the last two days our losses were comparatively small.
>

BLOCKADE IS PROCLAIMED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Secretary Lansing today made public a cablegram from Ambassador Sharp, at Paris, to the effect that the French Government had given formal notification of the establishment of a blockade of the entire Turkish coast of Asia Minor, extending from the island of Samos to the Egyptian frontier. The island of Samos is opposite the port of Smyrna. Accordingly, the blockade will operate against Smyrna, as well as against the ports of Alexandretta, Beirut, Tyre, Acre, Jaffa, and Gaza.

FRENCH GUNS WRECK GERMAN TRENCHES

LONDON, Aug. 30.—French fighting to the frequent accompaniment of big artillery in duel make up the only feature of the fighting on the western front. At some points the exchange of missiles has been violent. This is particularly true of the Argonne and the Lorraine front.

The Paris night bulletin says:

> Artillery fighting has taken place in Artois and in the region of Quennevières, where our fire has scattered some of the enemy's trenches and hit some German encampments.
>
> In the Argonne our batteries have several times stopped attempted bombardments by the enemy.
>
> A rather violent cannonade has taken place in Lorraine toward Moncel, Bezanges, and Chazelles, and also in the Vosges in the region of Rabodeau, Launois, and Linge.

The day communication reads:

> Yesterday evening saw severe artillery fighting, accompanied by the explosion of mines and engagements with bombs and hand-grenades at a large number of positions in the Argonne district. The trenches of the enemy were seriously damaged at Courtes Chaussées, Meurissons, and at Bolante.
>
> The advent of night brought relative quiet to this region, as well as on the rest of the front.

A report from Field Marshal Sir John French, Commander in Chief of the British Army, was given out by the British War Office tonight. It reads:

> Since my last communication of Aug. 18 there has been no fighting on our front to record. There has been a certain amount of mining activity, but conditions generally have been normal.
>
> Both on the 18th and the 21st we succeeded in shooting down enemy aeroplanes.
>
> On the 25th our heavy artillery set fire to a railway train at Langemarck station (about five miles northeast of Ypres. On the same evening our royal flying corps co-operated with our allies in an aerial attack on the forest of South Hurst, which was successfully carried out without the loss of any machines.

The German headquarters staff has only this to say:

SAY GERMANS ARE DRILLING

But Reports from Various Cities Fail to Alarm Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Letters from various cities telling of quiet but regular drills held by Germans in Turn-Verein and other halls have been referred by the War Department to the Department of Justice for investigation. According to one of the writers the Germans were supposed to be preparing to aid in repelling an invasion from Canada.

Secretary Garrison indicated today that little importance was attached to the reports, and that they had been turned over to the Department of Justice as a matter of course.

BOHEMIANS HERE DENOUNCE AUSTRIA

REPUDIATE "APPEAL" ADV.

Characterize Embargo Propaganda as Unneutral and Crave American Citizenship.

The Bohemian (Czech) National Alliance in America, with headquarters at 2,613 South Auers Avenue, Chicago, has issued a statement condemning the demand of the Austro-Hungarian Government that the United States place an embargo on munitions of war, the alleged scheme of the Austro-Hungarian Government to have Austrians and Hungarians in America organize so as to interfere with the manufacture of war material, and the "Appeal to the American People" which was published as an advertisement in many American papers a few weeks ago, attempting to create public sentiment in favor of an embargo.

The Czech manifesto condemns the proposed embargo on the accepted grounds that such an embargo would be an unneutral act operating against the Entente powers. As to "the scheme of mobilizing of Austrians and Hungarians, of whom there are 6,000,000 in the United States, so as to interfere with the manufacture of war materials," it "is the sheerest sort of insolence and impudence," and for this reason:

"The Bohemians, (Czechs,) unfortunately enough, are still under the iron heel of Austro-Hungarian absolutism, but they are not in sympathy with the aims of these governments in the present war, and the American citizens of Bohemian extraction are only too glad to have severed all ties that have ever bound them to the Austrian Government. Indeed, the Bohemian papers of America carry now a standing proclamation of the Bohemian National Alliance to all Bohemian residents in the United States to become as quickly as possible naturalized citizens of the United States, and thus to rid themselves of the odium which Austro-Hungarian citizenship in their minds carries. * * * The majority of the Austro-Hungarian population is entirely out of sympathy with the desires of such government, and with German desires."

The Bohemian manifesto declares that the advertised "'Appeal' was signed by newspapers whose publishers did not understand the real intention of the document and did not read its full text. Their signatures were obtained by false pretenses," and adds:

"We condemn severely, this hypocritical agitation, because it is plainly intended to secure to Germany and Austria permanently the advantage of their long continued preparation for war and thus to handicap the Allies whose industries had not been devoted to the building up of tremendous armaments."

To this repudiation of the "Appeal" are attached the names of Bohemian, Croatian, Slovak, Polish, and Italian societies, papers and periodicals, many of whose officers, publishers, and editors had signed the "Appeal."

ITALIANS WIN PEAK NORTHEAST OF TRENT

They Conquer and Hold Summit of Cima Cista, 6,500 Feet High.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Capture by the Italian forces of Cima Cista, a peak held by the Austrians, east by northeast of the important stronghold of Trent, is announced.

A communication received from main headquarters of the Italian Army says:

> In Val Sugana our reconnoissances, pushing out toward Cima Cista, (6,500 feet high,) which dominates from the northwestern side our position on Monte Salusio, found the summit held by strong enemy infantry detachments with machine guns. On the 28th Cima Cista was attacked by our troops, and, notwithstanding the fire from the enemy artillery, was conquered and retained.
>
> In Carnia on the evening of the 27th, the enemy, after a long period of inactivity, hurled himself on our positions at Palpiccolo, and, as always, was repulsed.
>
> In the Plezzo (Flitsch) Basin our troops succeeded several days ago in advancing beyond that important township, and now cover it from a strong position, barring the approach by Predil Pass, by the Upper Isonzo, and by the Slatenik Valley. The enemy, powerless to repulse us, opened, as usual, an intense artillery fire on the houses of Plezzo, causing several outbreaks of fire.
>
> In the Tolmino sector fresh progress has been made with great difficulty by our trops.
>
> On the Carsol the enemy, as the result of a skillful advance of our troops, abandoned several trenches, which we found full of dead and army munitions.
>
> Our air raids continue and are carried out boldly and successfully. They are always directed against military objectives. Yesterday we bombarded the railroad station of Vogearko, an enemy's camp near Kastanjeveka and munition depots at Sesana. Our aeroplanes suffered no damage.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—The War Office bulletin had this to say today of the operations on the Italian front:

> Yesterday the enemy maintained an artillery fire of intermitten strength along the fronts in the coastal district. Hostile attacks against several points were repulsed. In the Carinthian and Tyrolean frontier districts the situation is unchanged.

CUTS WIRELESS BUSINESS.

Tuckerton Plant to be Used Only for Government Messages.

The following notice was sent last night to telephone and telegraph offices:

"The wireless station at Tuckerton advises that no new business will be accepted until further notice. All wireless messages for Germany, Austria, &c., must be forwarded via Sayville. Rates same as via Tuckerton. If messages are held by censor for explanation of the text, the published rates for messages from the censors to the sender, and also for the reply, must be charged to the sender. Only Government or Embassy messages can be handled via the Tuckerton Station."

The naval officer in charge as censor at the Tuckerton Station referred inquiries as to the reasons for this to the Superintendent of the Naval Radio Service at Radio, Va. It is believed that the reason may be in the numerous messages being passed between Berlin and Washington in the negotiations over the Arabic incident. Officers of the company which is at present owner of the Tuckerton Station could not be reached last night.

"Austro-Hungarian troops, fighting in the Bieloviezh region, defeated the Russians near Szereszowo, and are pursuing them toward Pruzany.

Russians Still Retiring.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 30.—An official communication from the War Office says:

> To the west of Friedrichstadt (Courland) the engagements Saturday and Sunday continued to be of the same stubborn character as previously. Developing their operations, the Germans simultaneously opened attacks against our troops on Troncou, on the Eckau-Neuhut Railway, and against the village of Birschaten.
>
> In the direction of Dvinsk there is no essential change. At some points on Saturday our troops assumed the offensive.
>
> In the direction of Vilna the fighting continues on approximately the same front. The enemy, having crossed to the right bank of the Niemen in the region of Olita, attempted Sunday to advance in the direction of Orany.
>
> On the remainder of the front along the middle Niemen and toward the south as far as the River Pripet our armies continue their retirement, covered by rearguards, which on Saturday repulsed a series of German attacks in the region of Lipsk, inflicting heavy losses.
>
>

RUSSIA TO DIVERT TRADE.

Transfer of Plants from German Border a Sign of Her Purpose.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 30, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Prince Vsevolod Shshavskoi, Minister of Commerce and Industry, in an interview discussed the prospects of Russian trade. He said:

"We are determined not to permit any relapse into the old state of affairs and we are taking steps to prevent Germany reasserting her economic power here. Our first care is naturally to promote the independent development of Russian industry, but it will be some time before we are able to produce all we need.

"The development of Russian industry in Poland and the Baltic region was partly due in the first place to German merchants, who established branch factories just over the frontier with the object of tapping the rich Eastern market without the impediment of customs duties. We have now transferred to the interior all those mills and the factories in Warsaw and Riga that are directly useful to the State. We believe that this transfer will ultimately prove beneficial to Russian industry. The Government has granted subsidies for the transfer of plants and workmen and has made further advances for the purchase of land and the erection of buildings in the new centres.

"It must not be supposed that a large proportion of these factories were German-owned. Many were Russian, but the propinquity of many factories to frontier made them unnecessarily susceptible to German influence. The existence of coal fields near the frontier is not a sufficient reason for the concentration of such a large proportion of Russian industry in a region to which so many disadvantages have attached. We have coal and ore in many other parts of Russia. Our resources have as yet been only faintly vitalized by industry. The Ural region, in particular, is an inexhaustible mine of wealth."

Prince Shshavskoi pointed to the great expectations centered in the opening of the Dardanelles. Freedom of the straits, he thought, would not only have an immediate effect in liberating supplies of corn, but would guarantee a fresh route for all kinds of other Russian produce and mean a steady gravitation of Russian industry to the Black Sea basin. In other words, the main tendency of Russian industrial and commercial development would point away from Germany to the south and southwest and in a certain degree to the northern sea.

GRAIN CROP LARGE IN EUROPEAN RUSSIA

Total of 2,000,000,000 Bushels Is Now Expected—Much Stored for Dardanelles Opening.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Daily Mail telegraphs:

"M. Krivosheen, the Minister of Agriculture, has given me definite assurances in figures about the Russian harvest which dispel all the doubts thrown by German agents upon its unusual size and value.

"In Siberia, it is true, the year has not been favorable, and the yield of grain is below the average, but the amount of Siberian wheat is negligible compared with the yield of Southern Russia, and the proportion available for export is small.

"Taking all the crops together, these figures indicate that when the cutting is finished, in a few weeks' time, the yield will be about 2,000,000,000 bushels. The Winter-sown grain is harvested already, and also a large proportion of the Spring-sown crops. The figure arrived at is 446,000,000 bushels better than last year's total, and 201,000,000 in excess of the five-year average. Of wheat altogether there will be harvested 571,000,000 bushels, against 428,000,000 in 1914 and the five-year average of 478,000,000 bushels. For export there will be available some 450,000,000 bushels of grain, the greater part of it wheat.

"The difficulty of finding sufficient harvesters has been successfully overcome, and there will not be, I am authorized to say, any difficulty in transporting the wheat to the Black Sea ports as soon as grain ships can steam through the Dardanelles. Great quantities of grain at these ports are already awaiting the success of the operations in Gallipoli."

"NEXT MOVE" AS THE LAST.

Discussing "The Next Move," Herman Ridder says in the Staats-Zeitung this morning:

"With the [German] line from the Baltic to the Black Sea, far inside the Russian border, held against all possibility of successful assault, with the Allies in the west fought to a standstill by a handful of Germans, and with Italy impotent for months to come, Germany and her allies can remove the Allies from the Gallipoli Peninsula without great difficulty.

"'And when that is accomplished, or the Allies are definitely stayed in their offensive, the Teutonic allies and Turkey will be well positioned to await proposals of peace from any or all of their assailants.

"Will this be 'The Next Move'—or the last?"

PETROGRAD RUSH FOR COIN.

Public, Stirred by Rumors, Drain Stocks with Paper Money.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 30.—The silver and copper coin supplies of Petrograd shopkeepers and tram conductors were drained speedily this morning by the general presentation of paper money of large denominations. Naturally when the public began accumulating change business was seriously embarrassed.

State and private banks are said to be well stocked with coin and are paying it out in unlimited amounts.

Officials express the belief that the action of the public was due to the dissemination of false reports, possibly by agents of one of the countries at war with Russia.

PROPOSES AN ARMY OF 1,000,000 BOYS

Col. Robert M. Thompson Also Insists $500,000,000 Should Be Spent for Warships.

FEARS WAR IF UNPREPARED

New Head of Navy League Thinks Our Hoard of Gold Will Invite Attack by Europeans.

"To avoid becoming entangled in a disastrous war with one of the highly developed fighting organizations of Europe the United States must appropriate $500,000,000 for a vast naval increase at once, and must raise a standing army of 1,000,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 21."

This opinion was advanced last night by Colonel Robert M. Thompson after he had been elected President of the Navy League. The annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the League was held at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria in the afternoon, and General Horace Porter tendered his resignation as head of the organization on account of his advancing years. He was elected Honorary President, and Colonel Thompson, who is President of the New York Metal Exchange and was formerly well known as a cotton operator, and who had been Chairman of the Executive Committee of the league since 1904, was elected unanimously to General Porter's place. It was at a dinner tendered to Colonel Thompson at the Waldorf that he expressed his views on the military and naval needs of this country.

"Before going into the details of the defense needed," continued Colonel Thompson, "let me say this: At the end of the war in Europe we are going to have practically the entire stock of gold of the world in this country. History has proven that treaties and moral obligations are nothing to nations that covet what another possesses, and with the gold and trade that will be this country's there will be a great deal that will be coveted.

Europeans Can Invade America.

"Modern conditions of transportation, it is calculated by best authorities, would make it possible for one of these European fighting organizations to land 300,000 soldiers, fully equipped for aggressive warfare, on our shores within fifteen days after war had been declared. In three months they could have a million fully equipped men here to make a Belgium of our unprepared country. In our present condition it would take us several months to get together a few hundred thousand men. Belgium's fate has shown the effectiveness of willing but untrained citizenry. And England's experience is showing how long it takes to make soldiers out of citizens. We should have to officer our forces with those who are now privates in the regular army, and Russia is learning the lesson of poorly officered forces.

"The only way to protect our country is to give it a protecting force that will make it foolhardy for a foreign nation to attack us, that will make it impossible for the foreign nation to land and entrench the first 300,000. We must have 600,000 men ready to be thrown against that first army of 300,000, and to have a mobile force of that size we must have a total force of 1,000,000.

"We would create the navy that is needed by one single outlay of a large amount and then repay the amounts gradually in installments little larger than our present annual budget for this purpose. Then, instead of patching up from year to year a navy that is inadequate, we would have a great navy that would mean genuine defense for little more in the long run than the present cost.

"The standing army should consist of boys. There should not be a man, except the officers, more than 21 years of age in the whole army. I say this because in all real fighting it is being proved that the boys are those who make the real fighters. Instead of being a drawback, however, this fact makes the problem of our national defense simpler. We have proved that schools such as West Point and Annapolis not only create the best soldiers there are, but that they develop remarkably fine, well-educated men, who make the best citizens when they go into private life.

"Every year there are 800,000 boys who reach the age of 18 years in this country. It is admitted that the Government benefits itself when it takes upon itself the obligation of educating these boys. The answer to the military side of the problem is this: the Government must educate these boys, or the percentage of them required, at schools similar to West Point and Annapolis, and in this way equip them not only to make the United States formidable and unattackable, but to take their places in the community as splendidly educated, splendidly developed citizens. There would be no loss of time on the part of the boys and there would be no economic loss to the country, but no nation on earth would dare attempt a war of conquest at our expense."

Albert B. Lambert, President of the Lambert Pharmacal Company, of St. Louis, who is President of the Aero Club of St. Louis and a member of the Aero Club of America was elected Second Vice President of the league, and at the dinner spoke on aviation in warfare. Mr. Lambert lived in France three years, and holds an air pilot's license in that country. He is said to have made 3,000 flights in aeroplanes.

Great Need of Aeroplanes.

"The American Navy has no aeroplane scouts worthy of the name," Mr. Lambert said. "In case of war our fleets, as they are now constituted, would be sent to face certain destruction at the hands of fleets supplied with aeroplane spotters. On land the story would be the same. Masses of troops could be concentrated to be hurled against our lines, while we remained utterly in ignorance that an attack was to be made. According to the best reports the Germans have been able to inflict the terrible defeats of the present war on the Russians largely because the latter had no aeroplanes worth mentioning, and fought in the dark, unable to tell at what point the Teutons were massing for the attack. And yet at the outbreak of the war Russia had many more aeroplanes than the United States.

"Some idea of the enormous number of aeroplanes needed for modern warfare can be gained from the fact that England is anxious to purchase 10,000 aeroplanes here for delivery within two weeks. Statistics prove that the average life of the aeroplane is about 100 hours of actual flying. On the French front there are about 1,500 aeroplanes and on the British front there are about 1,000. The aeroplane departments of both armies complain they have not enough machines to do full scouting duty. Yet England and France are probably able to turn out 1,000 machines apiece a week. The United States, including all its public and private resources, can turn out only 300 to 400 aeroplanes weekly."

At the afternoon session of the league reports were heard from all sections of the country, and it was stated that everywhere in the United States there had been a swift change in sentiment during recent months in favor of greatly increased armament for defense. A campaign was decided upon by the directors for the purpose of urging the next Congress to make ample appropriations for the navy.

The Secretary, Arthur H. Dadmun, reported that there were 11,000 men in the Navy League and that the "Women's Section of the Navy League," which was created on July 4, had gained a membership of 15,000 since that time. On the women's membership committee are Mrs. William Cumming Story, National President of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. C. R. Bleakley, National President of the Daughters of the Revolution; Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, National President of the Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. William Gerry Slade, President of the Daughters of 1812; Mrs. Mary A. Jamieson, President of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic; Mrs. E. B. Sherman, Mrs. Frances W. Baker, Mrs. Reynold F. Hall, and Mrs. Charles H. Masury.

Henry H. Ward was re-elected First Vice President of the League. Henry B. Joy, President of the Packard Automobile Company of Detroit, was elected Third Vice President, Mr. Dadmun was re-elected Secretary, and Lewis L. Clarke, Treasurer. Robert Bacon and John Temple Graves were elected Directors, and Colonel Thompson's former office of Chairman of the Executive Committee will be filled by appointment.

NEW NAVAL AUXILIARY.

New Yorkers Organize to be Useful in Time of War.

The United States Volunteer Naval Reserve, an organization for the preparation of civilians for naval duties, was launched last evening at a meeting held at 61 Park Row. The meeting was attended by about 200 men, and Charles M. Steinert, a lawyer, elected Senior Lieutenant of the organization, explained its purposes. Mr. Steinert, who is an ex-naval militiaman, said he had submitted all of the society plans to Rear Admiral Adolf Marix, retired, and that they had his approval.

The organization is open to all American citizens between 18 and 45, and aims to equip them with enough nautical knowledge to make them valuable to the Government in time of need. Members will meet on Sunday afternoons on the waterfront at the foot of Ninety-second Street, where instruction will be given by former naval men.

The members, it was said, hope to obtain Governmental recognition and thereby enjoy more privileges, such as the use of warships for instruction at times, and the use of Government reservations. To this end a committee will present the society's plans to the Secretary of the Navy.

The officers are G. Raymond Hall, Ensign; Charles M. Steinert and Edward Hamburg, Lieutenants.

FRENCH PLAN REPRISALS ON GERMAN PROPERTY

Provoked by Forced Loans Assessed on French Estates in Germany.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Official circles are discussing what the French Government should do in the way of reprisals for enforced subscriptions to German war loans from properties of French citizens, which have been sequestered in Germany. One example cited is the case of M. Haeffle, proprietor of spinning mills at Gebweiler, in Alsace. M. Haeffle is a French citizen. He departed with the French Army on its retirement in August of last year.

The official German receiver of his properties is said to have subscribed 100,000 marks ($25,000) to the first German war loan, placing it against the personal property of M. Haeffle, and an additional 500,000 marks against the spinning mills. When the second war loan was raised the receiver is said to have subscribed 300,000 marks more, placing it as an obligation upon the mills, notwithstanding the fact that two-thirds of the shares of the company owning the mills are held in France.

The French Government has sequestered German properties in France of values exceeding 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000). Hitherto these properties have been protected carefully, but it is now being considered whether a part should not be taken as penalty for the confiscation of French property in Germany by means of forced loans.

ATTACK PRESIDENT WILSON.

"Friends of Peace" Hold Meeting in Hoboken High School.

Speaking in the auditorium of the Hoboken High School at a meeting of the "Friends of Peace," held with the permission of the Hoboken Board of Education, Jeremiah A. O'Leary said last night in the course of an attack on President Wilson:

"Does President Wilson think that by drenching the battlefields of Europe with American blood he can get himself re-elected? Such a war would be an unsuccessful war. We might succeed in having crosses erected over the graves of American soldiers in France and Flanders as monuments to American heroism, but that is all. It is true that we are now virtually partners of the Allies in the war. The mental slickness of Lansing and the cleverness of Wilson in trying to explain away our shipments of munitions to the Allies fail to excuse us from the participation in murder."

Mrs. Marie M. McDonald of New York urged an embargo on arms and ammunition and the Government ownership of munitions plants. The Rev. Father McLaughlin of Jersey City said he indorsed all that O'Leary and Mrs. McDonald had said. Supreme Court Justice James S. Minturn of New Jersey praised the President, calling him the "wise man in the White House," and added.

"Germany had a right to sink the Lusitania. As far as the Americans who were drowned are concerned they were themselves to blame for being so silly as to sit upon a keg of powder."

OPPOSES DRAINAGE PLAN.

Health Commissioner Supports Protest on Mohansic Hospital.

Health Commissioner Goldwater said yesterday that he heartily supported the protest by Commissioner Williams of the Department of Water Supply against the proposal to drain the sewage of Mohansic State Hospital so that the treated effulent would be discharged into the Croton watershed. Commissioner Goldwater sent a letter to State Commissioner of Health Biggs referring to Commissioner Williams's suggestion that the effluent of such drainage, after filtration, be carried over to the Hudson River.

"According to the estimate of Commissioner Williams, the additional cost of carrying the effluent of the sewage disposal plant to the Hudson would be about $120,000," says Commissioner Goldwater in the letter. "Such expenditure for such a purpose seems to me justifiable and imperative."

It was through a bill introduced into the Legislature by Assemblyman MacDonald calling for enlargement of the hospital that drainage into Crom Pond, near Mohansic Lake, was arranged for.

GERMAN WAR ORDERS HERE?

Getschow Says Our Manufacturers Are Filling Them.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—George H. Getschow, Secretary of Phillips, Getschow & Co., is quoted in The Daily News today as saying that he is a stockholder in a firm which is making 100,000 six-inch shells for the United States army, and that the German Government, like the Allies, is purchasing munitions of war in the American market.

"As to the American order, I am not at liberty to disclose the name of the firm, further than to state that the contract is worth about $640,000," Mr. Getschow is quoted as saying. "A month after the war broke out this firm ordered 150 lathes for making shells, but they arrived only recently. This firm has no orders from the European belligerents.

ADMITS GERMANY'S SUBMARINE FAILURE

POINTS OUT DIFFICULTIES

In line with English intimations of a growing dissatisfaction in Germany over the diminishing results achieved by the von Tirpitz submarine campaign is an article by Captain L. Persius, the naval expert of the Berliner Tageblatt, published in its issue of Aug. 10, just received here. The article is the more notable since Captain Persius has in the past been one of the most ardent champions and praisers of the U-boat warfare.

"It is to be recalled," he says, "that at the beginning of February hopes in the submarine warfare rose high, and it was widely believed that just as the British fleet had cut off our imports from overseas, so our submarines would have little difficulty in doing the same to England. A part of our press, unfortunately, is responsible for the exaggerated expectations which the public frequently hitched to the submarine warfare on merchant shipping. It was often emphasized here that with an expert estimate of the submarine weapon, and particularly with consideration of the quantity, &c., of our submarine fighting forces, the results and effects of the new method of warfare could be gathered only after a considerable time. Ever and again we counseled patience!

"How necessary this was is shown by the simple fact, which it is today considered unwise to conceal, that the result of the activities of our submarines in warfare on commerce is regarded in wide circles—let us say—as 'very modest.'

"According to an announcement by competent authority, there were sunk up to July 25 by our submarines 229 English and 30 other hostile ships, that is to say about 1.5 ships a day since Feb. 18. The line of the submarine warfare results ran in strong courves. There have been weeks in which scarcely a single enemy ship was torpedoed, others in which one or more dozen ships were destroyed. Thus the Reuter Bureau reported that in the week ended Aug. 4 six English merchant and nine fishing vessels were sunk by German submarines. It was added that 1,435 ships had arrived at the ports of the United Kingdom and departed from them. One may regard this number as possibly too high, and may think that probably they were in many cases the same ships. But it is probably not to be doubted that at all events at least 1,000 ships traffic with British ports in a week. If we consider the results of our submarine activities up till now—that is to say, of these 1,000 ships ten were destroyed—it is understandable that many a one will not declare himself satisfied.

"To attack about 1,500 vessels which visit English ports in a week requires not a small number of submarines! According to the Nauticus of 1914 we had in May, 1914, twenty-eight finished submarines. The statements of the submarines. The statements of this book are based upon official sources. There is no reason why they should not have unqualified belief. Now, it is often assumed that 'such a little submarine' can be completed in the briefest time. But a modern high-seas submarine is by no means 'small.' It displaces 1,000 tons or more, and is thus considerably larger than a torpedo boat. Inasmuch as it represents a collection of the most subtle miniature mechanisms, and in view of the fact that everything aboard a submarine must be fashioned for the smallest possible space, it becomes evident that the period for building a U-boat cannot be quite as short as we might wish. There is no more complicated instrument of battle than the submarine, and that means also that its direction and manipulation cannot be quickly learned, and that before a commander and his crew are entrusted to their boat and before it can be reported ready for service a considerable time must elapse.

"'At the beginning of the war our submarines laid low a series of warships, and now we hardly ever hear of anything of that sort.' So speak at times 'naval heroes of the seashore.' There is no better school than the war. Only, it is regrettable that it is not we alone who learn in it. To reproach the Englishmen with 'poor seamen' is worthy only of a child. They understand how to defend themselves, and now they have thought up many a measure of defense and safety. It is made ever more difficult for our submarines to get into the vicinity of the enemy ships and to launch a torpedo. A larger warship outside of a safe harbor is nowadays a rarity. If, on the other hand, it is obliged to take to sea, hundreds of eyes equipped with glasses gaze out carefully from its railing for the danger-announcing periscopes, and an escort of torpedo boats, madly crisscrossing through the water, surround it. England has more than 300 torpedo-boat destroyers and torpedo boats, more than 100 submarines, and hundreds of armed fishing vessels and other escorting vessels that are all assigned for insurance against the German submarine danger. Thus the submarine warfare is today verily not a simple matter. It requires fabulous good luck to avoid the many bad pits, the mines, the blockades, the spread nets, &c., to escape the submarine-boat hunters, and still to carry out a successful attack."

MRS. OAKLEY LOSES LEGACY IF SHE WEDS

Her Third of Father's Estate Will Go to Other Heirs if She Becomes Mrs. Leo Fassler.

E. B. SEAMAN LEFT $170,347

Egbert B. Seaman, who died June 27, 1914, left a net estate of $170,347, according to the appraisal filed with the State Controller yesterday. The will divided the estate into three parts, one part going to Egbert B. Seaman, Jr., another to Mrs. Carrie L. Eidlitz, a daughter, and a third to another daughter, Mrs. Frances P. Oakley, in case she did not marry Leo Fassler, a lawyer.

If she did marry him she was to receive only the income of her share, and at her death the principal was to be divided between the other heirs. If Fassler died before her she was to receive the principal. Mrs. Oakley refused to discuss the provisions of the will when it was filed, and the appraisal contains no suggestion as to Mrs. Oakley's present status concerning her share of the estate.

Mr. Seaman's realty consisted only of a fifth interest in two parcels aggregating $2,439. He owned stocks and bonds valued at $93,980. Among his other holdings was an income note of the Mason-Seaman Transportation Company that is to be payable only when the net earnings of the company exceed $125,000 in any one year.

ASSAILS BRITISH CABINET.

London Times Military Writer Says They Haven't Genius for War.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 31.—The Times's military correspondent this morning makes an attack on the higher direction of the campaign from the British side, which he says is the subject of severe criticism in the fighting services.

Pointing to the "Antwerp fiasco," "the Dardanelles mistakes," and the failure to organize a munitions supply, the correspondent says that the Cabinet has shown no genius for war.

"To put it brutally," the correspondent says, "we have not been governed in a strategic sense. We have merely drifted."

DEFIES MILITIA COURT.

Colorado Witness Races with Officer to Governor to Get Backing.

DENVER, Aug. 30.—The investigation of charges against Adjt. Gen. John Chase and the men who made the charges was temporarily halted today when witnesses defied the authority of the military court of inquiry and refused to answer questions. The question of the authority of the court was referred to Attorney General Farrar for an opinion.

C. B. Elliott, former Adjutant General of West Virginia, now alleged to be a detective in the employ of the United Mine Workers of America, refused to answer questions regarding the alleged plot of detectives and labor leaders to hinder reorganization of the militia.

Later Philip S. Van Hise, who commanded the "college company" in the strike zone in 1913-14, and, it is said, was afterward a leader of the anti-Chase faction in the National Guard, refused to answer questions, and was ordered under arrest.

Van Hise refused to regard himself as under arrest, and he and Major Edward J. Broughton of the military court raced a dead heat to Governor Carlson's office to ask his support. The Executive, after conferring with each in turn, held that Van Hise should be released and the legal tangle submitted to the Attorney General.

GERMAN HELD AS DYNAMITER

Special to The New York Times.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 30.—After several hours' work on the part of the Provincial officers who made the arrest, assisted by Detroit detectives, the identity of the man arrested on Bois Blanc Island, opposite Amherstburg, Sunday afternoon, on suspicion of being one of the gang responsible for the Windsor dynamite outrages, was definitely established early this morning. He is Karl Respa. The name he first gave, Karl Schmidt, was assumed by Respa in a vain attempt to hide his own identity.

Respa is 28 years old and a brother of Mrs. Karl Schmidt, whose husband was arrested with Gustav Stevens for an attempt to dynamite the Nipigon Bridge of the Canadian Pacific Railway last Spring. Both men are interned at Kingston. Ever since the attempt to dynamite the Peabody plant in Walkerville the Dominion police, provincial police, and Detroit detectives have known of Respa's alleged connection with the plot. In order to divert suspicion, they gave out information that Karl Schmidt was the third man implicated.

SWISS THANK FRANCE FOR GILBERT'S RETURN

Say Aviator Who Escaped Had Not Been Released from Terms of Promise.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Eugene Gilbert, the French aviator whose return to Switzerland after his escape from internment in that country was ordered by the French Government, arrived in Berne yesterday escorted by Captain Dufour of the Swiss Army, according to a Havas News Agency dispatch from Berne. The aviator, whose escape was said to have been effected after he had withdrawn his promise not to try to get away, was received by the Swiss staff and informed that he was considered as an officer interned without having given his word of honor.

Gilbert arrived this morning at the village of Hospenthal, where he was interned anew.

All the Swiss newspapers, according to the dispatch, assert that a most excellent impression has been created in Switzerland by the return of Gilbert.

Dr. Lardy, the Swiss Minister to France, called on Minister of War Millerand today to present "the thanks of the Swiss Government for the courteous and chivalrous decision taken by the French Government concerning Second Lieutenant Aviator Gilbert."

It has developed that Gilbert, before escaping, had written a letter to the Swiss General Staff withdrawing his word of honor that he would make no attempt to escape. The letter was received several hours before the attempt was made, but was left unopened at Army Headquarters, and the General Staff maintains that Gilbert had not been released from his word of honor.

GIRL IN LOVE DRINKS ACID.

Dying in Hospital After Persistent Effort to Commit Suicide.

Sadie Horn, a stenographer, 18 years old, 201 Hewes Street, is dying in Williamsburg Hospital, Brooklyn, from carbolic acid poisoning. She approached a boy in the street yesterday and asked him to go to a drug store and buy ten cents' worth of the acid. When the druggist refused him the girl went to the store, said her mother wanted the poison, got it, and went to the bathroom at her home and swallowed it. Her groans were heard by her mother, and Ambulance Surgeon Feller of Williamsburg Hospital was called.

The police were told by the girl's mother that the attempted suicide was probably due to a love affair.

higher up in the building, but no one had seen two men such as Leitner described.

Saw No One Leave Building.

Meyer and John Belmont of 125 Second Avenue and Theodore Miller of 981 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, who ran over with Meyer, said they had seen no one descend the stairs after hearing the reports of the shots, and said they had not even seen Leitner come to the door and look up and down the street.

Coroner Feinberg, with Deputy Police Commissioner Guy Scull and Assistant District Attorney Skinner, took charge of the investigation. The Coroner said the bullets had been fired very close to Mrs. Leitner, for there were powder marks on her left hand and her underwaist showed marks also. Her outer waist was black and the marks were not so distinct. It was the bullet that struck her right hand that afterward passed through the window, and the Coroner said the shots had evidently been fired so close to the woman that probably she had raised her hand to grasp the pistol.

Leitner said he had been threatened frequently by friends of thieves he had prosecuted and suggested the murder had resulted from some of these. He could give no description of the men he said he had seen, however.

Inspector Cray said he arrested Leitner in 1902 on a charge of picking pockets, but Leitner was discharged. Cray said that seven years ago Leitner's picture was removed from the Rogues' Gallery.

MERCHANT MARINE GROWS.

More Ships Engaged Than for Half a Century.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The increase in the tonnage of ships in the foreign trade under the flag of the United States since the passage of the new registry law has been four times the average for the ten years past. In consequence, there are now more ships flying the American flag in the foreign trade than at any time since 1863.

The increase in our tonnage in the fiscal year ended on June 30 last, according to a statement given out at the Department of Commerce today, was 737,623, divided among 363 ships. The relative increase may be understood by a comparison with the increase in merchant tonnage under British registry in the same time, which was 229,019 tons, the average before the war being 403,000 tons.

Germany's tonnage in the merchant marine in the same period was reduced by 753,269. The average annual increase for the ten years to 1914 was 189,000 tons. Norwegian tonnage increased in the last fiscal year of the United States by 24,466 tons. Japanese tonnage increased 117,682, the average before the war being only 95,000 tons.

by the position of Hughes and Wadsworth. I for one, am going to do it. If I form a correct judgment of the self-respecting men of this convention, it will be with a great company that I do it.

"But, Mr. Chairman, don't let us rest on that. Why was it that these conventions, one after another, four of them, declared to the people that they were for the principle of this bill? In the first place, our knowledge of human nature shows us that the thousands of experienced men in these conventions and meetings had come to the conclusion that that principle met with the opinion of the people of the State.

"It all very well for Mr. Quigg to tell us what the men he met in Columbia County said; for Mr. Greene (ex-Senator George A. Greene) to write letters to his friends in Binghamton; but 970 men in that mass-meeting on the fifth of December told you what their observation was, that they would commend their party to the people of this State by declaring this principle. A thousand and odd men in the Republican conventions of 1912, 1913 and 1914 have given proof conclusive of what their observation of public opinion was. A thousand and odd men in the Democratic convention of 1914 have given proof conclusive of what their observation of public opinion was. Conventions don't put planks in platforms to drive away votes.

"Why was it that the people of the State had given evidence to these thousands of experienced men in the politics of the State that those principles would be popular? Well, of course, you cannot escape the conclusion that it was because the people of the State found something wrong about the Government of the State. My friend, Mr. Brackett, sees nothing wrong about it. He has been for fifteen years in the Senate. I suppose he could have stayed there as long as he wanted to. He is honored and respected, and has his own say in Saratoga County. Why should he see anything wrong? Mr friend, Mr. Greene, is comfortably settled in the Excise Department, and he sees nothing wrong.

Obstacles in Reform's Way.

"There never was a reform in administration in this world which did not have to make its way against the strong feeling of good, honest men, concerned in existing methods of administration, and who saw nothing wrong. It is no impeachment of a man's honesty, his integrity, that he thinks the methods that he is familiar with and in which he is engaged, are all right. But you cannot make any improvement in this world without overriding the satisfaction that men have in things as they are, and of which they are a contented and successful part.

"I say that the growth, extension, general acceptance of this principle shows that all these experienced politicians and citizens in all these conventions felt that the people of the State saw something wrong in our State government and are here charged with a duty, not of closing our eyes, but of opening them, and seeing, if we can, what it was that was wrong.

"Now, anybody can see that all these departments—these 152 outlying agencies, big and little, lying around loose, accountable to nobody, spending all the money they could get, violate every principle of economy, of efficiency, of the proper transaction of business. Every one can see that all around us are political organizations carrying on the business of government, that have learned their lesson from the great business organizations which have been so phenomenally successful in recent years. I refer to the government of our cities.

"Twenty years ago, when James Bryce wrote his 'American Commonwealth,' the government of American cities was a by-word and a shame for Americans all over the world. Heaven be thanked, the government of our cities has now gone far toward redeeming itself and us from that disgrace, and the government of American cities today is, in the main, far superior to the government of American States.

"I challenge contradiction to that statement. How has it been reached? How have our cities been lifted up from the low grade of incompetency and corruption on which they stood when the 'American Commonwealth' was written? It has been done by applying the principles of this bill to city government, by giving power to the men elected by the people to do the things for which they were elected.

Assails the System.

"I am going to discuss a subject now that goes back to the beginning of the political life of the oldest man in this convention, and one to which we cannot close our eyes if we keep the obligations of our oath. We talk about the government of the Constitution. What is the government of this State? What has it been during the forty years of my acquaintance with it? The government of the Constitution? Oh, no—not half the time or half way!

"When I asked what the people find wrong in our State Government my mind goes back to those periodic fits of public rage in which the people, roused up, tear down the political leader, first of one party and then of the other party. It goes on to the public feeling of resentment against the control of party organizations, of both parties and of all parties.

"I treat this subject in my own mind not as a personal question to any man. I am talking about the system. From the days of Fenton and Conkling, and Arthur and Cornell, and Platt; from the days of David B. Hill down to the present time, the government of the State has presented two different lines of activity—one of the constitutional and statutory offices of the State, and the other of the party leaders—they call them party bosses.

"Invisible Government."

"They call the system—I don't coin the phrase; I adopt it because it carries its own meaning—'invisible government.' I don't remember for how many years Mr. Conkling was the supreme ruler in this State. The Governor did not count; Legislatures did not count; Controllers and Secretaries of State and what not did not count. It was what Mr. Conkling said, and in a great outburst of public rage he was pulled down.

"Then Mr. Platt ruled the State; for nigh upon twenty years he ruled it. It was not the Governor; it was not the Legislature; it was not any elected officer; it was Mr. Platt. The Capitol was not here; it was at 49 Broadway. It makes no difference what name you give, whether you call it Fenton or Conkling or Cornell or Arthur or Platt, or by the names of men now living. The ruler of the State during the greater part of the forty years of my acquaintance with the State Government has not been any man authorized by the Constitution or by the law.

Sees Sullen Deep Resentment.

"There is throughout the length and breadth of this State a deep and sullen and long-continued resentment at being governed thus by men not of the people's choosing. The party leader is elected by no one, accountable to no one. Bound by no oath of office, removable by no one.

"My friends here have talked about this bill creating an autocracy. The word points with admirable facility the very opposite reason for the bill. It is to destroy autocracy and restore power so far as may be to the men elected by the people, accountable to the people, removable by the people. I don't criticise the men of the 'invisible government.' How can I? I have known them all, and among them have been some of my dearest friends. I can never forget the deep sense of indignation that I felt in the abuse that was heaped upon Chester A. Arthur, whom I honored and loved, when he was attacked because he held the position of political leader. It is all wrong. It is all wrong that a Government, not authorized by the people, should be continued superior to the Government that is authorized by the people.

"How is it done? It is done by the use of patronage, and the patronage that my friends on the other side of this question have been arguing and pleading for in this convention is the power to continue that 'invisible government' against that authorized by the people.

Conflict Is Irrepressible.

"Everywhere that these two systems of Government coexist there is a conflict day by day and year by year between the two principals of appointment to office—two radically opposed principals. The elected officer, or the appointed officer, or the lawful officer, who is to be held responsible for the administration of his office, desires to get men into the different positions in his gift who will do their work in a way that is creditable to him and his administration.

"How is it about the boss? What does the boss have to do? He has to urge the appointment of a man whose appointment will consolidate his power and preserve the organization. There has been hardly a day for the last sixteen years when I have not seen these two principals come in conflict. The 'invisible government' proceeds to build up and maintain its power by a reversal of the fundamental principles of good government, which is that men should be selected to perform the duties of the office, and to substitute the idea that the men should be appointed to office for the preservation and enhancement in power of the political leader. The one, the true one, looks upon appointment to office with a view to the service that can be given to the public. The other, the false one, looks upon appointment to office with a view to what can be gotten out of it.

"I appeal to your knowledge of facts. Every one of you knows what I say about the use of patronage, under the system of 'invisible government,' is true. Louis Marshall told us the other day about the appointment of Wardens in the Adirondacks—hotel keepers and people living there—to render no service whatever. They were appointed not for the service to the State that they were to render; they were appointed for the service they were to render to promote the power of a political organization. We all know that the halls of this Capitol swarm with men during the session of the Legislature on pay day. A great number, seldom here, rendering no services, are on the payrolls as a matter, not of service, but of party patronage. Both parties are alike. All parties are alike. The system extends through all.

"That system finds its opportunity in the division of powers, in a six-headed Executive, in which, by the natural workings of human nature, there shall be opposition and discord and the playing of one force against the other, and so when we refuse to make one Governor, elected by the people, the real Chief Executive, we make inevitable the setting up of a chief executive not selected by the people, not acting for the people's interest, but for the selfish interest of the few who control the party, whichever party it may be.

"Think for a moment of what this patronage system means. How many of you are there who would be willing to do to your private client, or customer, or any private trust, or to a friend or neighbor, what you see being done to the State of New York every year of your lives in the taking of money out of her Treasury without service?

No Escape from Duty.

"We can, when we are in a private station, pass on without much attention to inveterate abuses. We can say to ourselves, 'I know it is wrong. I wish it could be set right, it cannot be set right. I will do nothing.' But here, here, we face the duty, we cannot escape it. We are bound to do our work, face to face, in clear recognition of the truth, unpalatable, deplorable as it may be, and the truth is that what the unerring instinct of the democracy of our State has seen in this Government is that a different standard of morality is applied to the conduct of affairs of State than that which is applied in private affairs.

"I have been told forty times since this convention met that you cannot change it. We can try, can't we? I deny that we cannot change it. I repel that cynical assumption which is born of the letharagy that comes from the poisoned air during all these years. I assert that this perversion of democracy, this robbing democracy of its virility can be changed as truly as the system under which Walpole governed the Commons of England by bribery, as truly as the atmosphere which made the Credit Mobilier scandal possible in the Congress of the United States has been blown away by the force of public opinion.

"We cannot change it in a moment, but we can do our share. We can take this one step toward not robbing the people of their part in government, but toward robbing an irresponsible autocracy of its indefensible and unjust and undemocratic control of government, and restoring it to the people to be exercised by the men of their choice and their control.

"This convention is a great event in the life of every man in this room. A body which sits but once in twenty years to deal with the fundamental law of the State deals not only for the present, but for the future, not only by its results, but by its example. Opportunity knocks at the door of every man in this assemblage, an opportunity such as will never come again to most of us.

"While millions of men are fighting for their countries and dying for their countries across the ocean, while government is becoming serious, sober, almost alarming in its effect upon the happiness of the lives of all that are dearest to us, it is our inestimable privilege to do something here in moving our beloved State along the pathway toward better and purer government, a more pervasive morality and a more effective exercise of the powers of government which preserve the liberty of the people.

"When you go back to your homes and review the record of the Summer, you will find in it cause for your children and your children's children, who will view the convention of 1915 as we have been reviewing the work of the preceding convention, to say, 'My father, my grandfather, helped to do this work for our State.'

"Mr. Chairman, there is a plain old house in the hills of Oneida, overlooking the valley of the Mohawk, where truth and honor dwelt in my youth. When I go back, as I am about to go, to spend my declining years, I mean to go with the feeling that I can say I have not failed to speak and to act in accordance with the lessons that I learned there from the God of my fathers. God grant this opportunity for service to our country and our State may not be neglected by any of the men for whom I feel so deep friendship in this convention."

Nicoll Opens Debate.

The debate was opened by De Lancey Nicoll, Democrat, of New York, who praised the short ballot proposal and expressed his regret that it did not go even further and make the Attorney General and the Controller appointive officers too. The "Simon Pure" short ballot advocates, of whom Mr. Nicoll is one, hold that the Governor and Lieutenant Governor only should be elected. The argument that the short ballot plan would make the Governor an autocrat was not worth answering, Mr. Nicoll said.

Nathan Burkan, a New York Democrat, who followed Mr. Nicoll, said that the short ballot plan was undemocratic and denounced those who had written it into the Democratic state platform as traitors to their party.

"I would like to ask Mr. Burkan," said John B. Stanchfield, "if William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is sitting by my side at this moment, should not be recognized as leader by all who follow the Democratic Party?"

"He would be and he should be," said Mr. Burkan.

"Then I would like to call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the short ballot plank in the Democratic State platform was written by Mr. McCombs."

"I know that," said Mr. Burkan, "but, nevertheless, I declare that it is not binding on any Democrat. It does not represent sentiment either in the Democratic party or among the people throughout the State."

After Mr. Root had spoken in the afternoon, Charles H. Betts of Lyons, a member of the reactionary group of up-State Republicans opposed to the short ballot asserted that the short ballot movement was financed by "big business." This raised a laugh in the convention.

Ex-Senator E. T. Brackett of Saratoga, another opponent of the short ballot, said that Mr. Root's theory was that the power of the boss should be transferred to the Governor. Mr. Brackett said that he wanted it broken, not shifted, and for that reason was in favor of extending the list of elective officers elected by the people directly.

William Barnes said that there was no principle involved in the short ballot proposal; that it was simply a question of expediency.

"The chief argument in favor of the plan is that the people do not know how to vote intelligently for a great number of offices and that those far down on the list are elected and defeated by default," Mr. Barnes said. "Recent experience does not bear out that contention. In the last election, when we had a new kind of ballot which required scrutiny and care, there was less than 1 per cent. difference in the vote of the candidate leading the list and the one at the bottom. The people know how to vote all right."

William F. Sheehan, Democrat, said that while the Governor under the new plan would have greater power than ever had been bestowed on any official in this State, this was offset by the provisions in another proposal from the Tanner Committee making a Governor ineligible to succeed himself.

To Those Who Want Electric Light in Their Homes And to Those Who Are Paying Too Much for It Now.

We have secured the American rights of the famous Bruston Unit System of England for light and power.

An absolutely automatic plant by which you generate your current in your own home at a cost of less than one-third the charges of public lighting corporations.

Labor and care almost entirely eliminated. Does not require an engineer or even experienced attendant.

Two thousand plants in successful operation for three years furnishing light and power for the modest fishing camp up to the complete lighting of a small town.

The Bruston System is making the isolated electric plant popular, and is filling a long-felt demand.

Inquiries from discriminate investors are invited.

If a King's Doctor told you to take Sanatogen—

you would be impressed—for you know that a King's Doctor must be a man of highest professional standing. You would take Sanatogen feeling confident that it would do the things promised; give you fresh vigor, fortify your system as no other tonic could.

Now it is a fact that the private physicians to seven Emperors and Kings, after personal observation of its effects, have endorsed Sanatogen in writing. (See, for instance, the accompanying letters of Dr. Ott and Dr. Kuhn.)

So you see a King's physician might recommend Sanatogen to you, if you could consult him—indeed there are over 21,000 practicing physicians who would tell you to take Sanatogen, because all have written us, some telling of its power to strengthen the nerves, others of its power to enrich the blood and upbuild the system, and still others of its wonderful qualities as an aid to digestion.

Such are the credentials of Sanatogen—they should, they must convince you that Sanatogen has a service to perform in your case.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes from $1.00 up.

Dr. Ernest Ott, Late King Edward's physician, Marienbad, writes: "I have been using Sanatogen for a number of years in my practice with excellent results. These results have been notably good in the case of elderly people when it was desirable to build up the strength, to stimulate bodily functions, and to improve the circulation of the blood."

Dr. Conrad Kuhn, Physician to the Court of H. I. M., the Emperor of Austria, writes: "I have had the very best results from Sanatogen in the treatment of frail, anaemic children and patients suffering from wasting diseases."

RECRUITS DEFEAT THE RED INVADERS

UNDER FIRE FOR HOURS

Third of Business Men's Regiment Mowed Down Before the Enemy's Trenches Are Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

ROUSES POINT, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The quiet of a century-old peace was disturbed on the Canadian border, one and one-half miles north of this little frontier village, this morning. The occasion was the battle of Fort Montgomery. Fought to a deathless finish by the Blues and Reds of the war of August, 1915, it was a struggle that brought hundreds of Americans and Canadians scurrying to the boundary line to watch a sham battle that had all the ear marks of the real thing in war. The Blues won, driving the Red invaders back.

The battle of West Chazy, fought on Saturday, and that of Cooperville, which raged on the Big Chazy, four miles south of here yesterday, were both thrilling and instructive, but neither of those engagements approached in interest or excitement that which was fought under the shadow of the ancient walls of Fort Montgomery this morning. The business and professional men's regiment, now a provisional regiment of infantry, U. S. A., was in the very thickest of today's fight, and the only reason at least one-half of the bankers, lawyers, diplomats, merchants, and others who constitute its personnel are not tonight numbered among the dead, wounded, or missing, is due to just one thing, and that the fact that the Regulars of the Second Cavalry and the Thirtieth Infantry used blank cartridges. Indicative of the deadliness of the fire of the Red Army is the fact that Colonel Glenn, the chief umpire of this war, ruled out one-third of the "rookies" as among those who no longer exist in the flesh.

Fort Montgomery is situated on the west bank of the beautiful Richelieu River, the outlet through which the excess waters of Lake Champlain reach the St. Lawrence. It is a stone structure of ancient design, built to command the entrance to Lake Champlain from the Richelieu River. The fort mounts no guns and it has never had a garrison.

Invaders Strongly Intrenched.

The battle of Fort Montgomery started about one mile north of Cooperville this morning. The situation was one in which a large Red force was supposed to be in position near the village of Champlain, three miles west of this place. Another big Red force occupied the Federal reservation of Fort Montgomery. Colonel McCoy, the commander of the loyal Blue army, divided his forces, sending a part to the west to hold the Reds at Champlain in check, while the other part was to dash north and drive the enemy occupying the Fort Montgomery reservation out of their trenches and across the border. The enemy force at Champlain was an imaginary one, as was also the force that was supposed to have been detached to hold it in check and to prevent the reinforcement of the Red army at Fort Montgomery.

Colonel McCoy intrusted to Captain Halstead Dorey, the commander of the provisional or business men's regiment, the task of driving the Red Army, under Colonel Dickman, into retreat. For the first time these soldier bankers, lawyers, and others, were to have the honor of forming the backbone of the attacking army, with the Third Infantry, under Colonel Hirst, acting as the reserve, and with Battery D of the Third Field Artillery banging away from the crest of a hill three miles in front of the intrenched Red line. The Red Army was composed of the Second Cavalry, the Thirtieth Infantry and a battery of field artillery, the latter operating from old Fort Montgomery.

Captain Dorey's command came up from Cooperville as a right flank, his orders reading to "drive the enemy from American territory." The outposts of the Reds and the advance guards of the Blues came in contact about a mile south of this place. It was about 8 o'clock when the first shot was fired. This was when one of the Blue sharpshooters, who was of the advance guard, spotted a venturesome Red scout. The Red was tagged "wounded in the neck," and was compelled to drop out of action and lie still in the grass until the hospital contingent came along and took him in charge and dressed his imaginary wound in exactly the same fashion as if he really had been wounded.

Blues Cautiously Advance.

Cautiously the Blues under Dorey advanced. Company A, with Lieutenant Robert L. Bacon, Lieutenant John Purroy Mitchel, and Sergeant "Bill" Meloney in the lead, operated as an advance guard. Right behind Company A, in true warlike fashion, Company B, with Lieutenant "Teddy" Roosevelt and Crawford Blagden, who is just an ordinary Corporal, crawled along.

The Blues detoured around the village by the dirt road that parallels the Delaware & Hudson Railroad tracks on the west, and at 9 o'clock the advance guard was in range of the guns of the Red forces. The Red cavalrymen were operating as infantry, and with the entire Thirtieth Infantry, awaited the coming of the Blues in their "Flanders" trenches, which started from a point about fifty yards west of Fort Montgomery and stretched across the Government reservation in a zigzag line that was nearly two miles in length. Colonel Dickman directed the trench fighting.

The progress of the battle could be followed by the raising and dropping of the little red flags in the hands of the umpires. If the signal indicated that the Reds had gained the superiority in fire the Blues had to retire, and vice versa.

The Blue artillery under Lieutenant Locke began its direct fire about fifteen minuntes before the Blues reached the battle zone. According to the umpires the shells were falling dangerously near the trenches most of the time, and later in the day the artillerymen found the range of the Red artillery in Fort Montgomery and proceeded to demolish that useless, old ornament.

Every man in the business men's outfit carried his 35-pound infantry pack as he went into action. Captain Dorey and his staff were everywhere behind the men, cautioning them to be calm and not to fire except when there was a target.

The business men's command advanced by short rushes. For more than a mile they proceeded in this fashion. The Reds met the advance with a withering fire, and time and again the umpires raised those little red flags calling a halt in the Blue advance and indicating the superiority of the Red fire. Then the Blues would reform their shattered line and dash forward again, only to be mowed down again. The artillery was directing a terrific fire against the loyal troops, and the situation soon became such that the Third Infantry, under Colonel Hirst, was ordered to the firing line to reinforce the sorely pressed soldiers of the business men's organization.

Three Hours of Rushes.

Nearly three hours was consumed in that advance by rushes to capture the Red trenches. All this time the "taggers" were as busy as the fighting men. Captain Charles E. Kilbourne was "chief tagger," and was ably assisted by Lieutenant J. F. Taulbee of the Second Cavalry and a dozen other young officers. Each of these officers had a handful of tags. When a man was caught in the line of fire and it was certain that he had been "hit" he would receive a gentle tap on the shoulder and would be ordered to lie down.

The turn in the battle came with the arrival on the firing line of the Third Infantry. The seasoned regulars filled up the gaps in the shattered business men's regiment, and the reinforced line charged the Red trenches. The machine guns of the Third were brought into action. The Blues won and the Reds were driven helter-skelter from their trenches.

SERENO S. PRATT VERY ILL.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, N. J., Aug. 30.—Sereno S. Pratt, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of New York City and widely known in the financial district, where he was formerly editor of The Wall Street Journal, was taken this afternoon from his Summer home at Dorset, Vt., to the Troy Hospital. He is very ill with gall and bladder trouble and will probably be operated on Thursday by Dr. David W. Houston, who has been in consultation with Professor James B. Herrick of Chicago on the case. His family accompanied him here.

Mr. Pratt was operated on two months ago, but failed to recover properly, and was taken from his home, 104 Cambridge Place, Brooklyn, to his Summer home, in the hope that the change would benefit his health.

He was born in Vermont, but had lived in New York for many years, and was correspondent of The Philadelphia Public Ledger for a long time. Mr. Pratt is considered an authority on financial matters and is the author of "The Work of Wall Street."

MAROWIJNE SEARCH FAILS.

No Trace of Missing Ship's Company, but Wreckage Is Found.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 30.—Search of Cozumel Island, off the Yucatan coast, has revealed no trace of any of the crew or passengers of the missing liner Marowijne nor wreckage of the vessel, according to a wireless message received by the United Fruit Company here this afternoon from its steamer Coppername. The Coppername was one of three vessels sent out to investigate statements in an anoymous letter that Captain McLaren, two wireless operators, and two passengers of the Marowijne had been rescued and were being held for ransom on Cozumel Island. The Coppername's crew searched the island, but found nothing to indicate that any of those aboard the Marowijne had been there or that the missing liner had been wrecked at that point.

The first positive evidence of the destruction of the Marowijne was brought to New Orleans tonight in the form of wreckage picked up in the Gulf of Mexico nearly 200 miles north of the Yucatan coast by the Suriname, sister ship of the Marowijne. Partial identification of bits of the wreckage was made upon the arrival of the Suriname in New Orleans.

The Suriname sighted the wreckage at 11 o'clock Sunday morning 185 miles due north of Progreso, indicating that the Marowijne sank in the middle of the Gulf.

MEXICAN RAIDERS KILLED.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Aug. 30.—Five heavily armed Mexican raiders were killed today near Hillsburg, Texas, twenty miles east of Sierra Blanca and near the border. The killing was done by a posse of Texas Rangers, customs river guards and citizens. In response to a telegram to officers here, a man who knows Pascual Orozco, the former Mexican General, left here tonight on a limited train for Sierra Blanca to identify a body thought to be Orozco's. It is possible that Huerta's ex-commander was among those who were killed, as he was known to be in the Big Bend country with a body of men.

The killing of the five men occurred after a raid on a number of ranches in the Van Horn-Sierra Blanca district. On Sunday the raiders took some horses from the Allamore and R. C. Love ranches, one of which was recovered this morning. Later the bandits were seen riding hard toward the Eagle Mountains, and it was feared that they would cross the line and disappear in Mexico, as a number of other bands had done. But they were overtaken near Hillsburg, and five of them shot in a running fight and several others wounded. The posse is now in pursuit of the others, and an effort will be made to wipe out the entire band, for the raids are becoming more frequent and United States troops are to be sent from Texas City to protect the border.

If Orozco has been killed, the posse will collect a big reward, as he is a fugitive from the United States Court, having escaped after his arrest with Huerta.

RUTHERFORD ESTATE INQUIRY IS REFUSED

BACHELOR LEFT $2,000,000

Injunction Asked For by Twelve Maternal Cousins Is Denied and Executor Sustained.

Declaring that frivolous and unfounded attacks upon wills bring no credit to the law, Justice Shearn of the Supreme Court yesterday denied the application of the twelve maternal cousins of Henry Rutherford for an injunction restraining the executor from distributing the estate, pending a judicial inquiry into a charge that the will was the result of undue influence. The defendants were Charles K. Phipard of the Stock Exchange firm of Whitehouse & Co., the executor; Dr. George E. Steel, an eye and ear specialist, and Miss Edith Culver, a trained nurse. Two of the plaintiffs were J. Franklin Gulick and Bertrand L. Gulick.

Mr. Rutherford died in the Hotel Astor on Feb. 25, 1913. He was a bachelor and lived mainly in big hotels, moving from one to another. He was a heavy drinker, and it was charged that he made his will while under the influence of liquor and drugs administered to him so that he might be influenced in leaving his estate of more than $2,000,000 according to the desires of the defendants.

The affidavits in the suit said that because of this influence Mr. Rutherford gave $50,000 to the wife of Dr. Steel, $50,000 to her sister, and $100,000 to Mr. Phipard. It was also charged that he left $200,000 to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research because a son of Mr. Phipard was connected with the institute.

Concerning this accusation Justice Shearn said:

"The fact is, as shown by affidavits of the bursar of the institute and of the executor, that the executor's son was never, in any way, connected with the Rockefeller Institute, and was, at the time the will was made, a student in a medical college. This bequest was as natural as it was commendable, the executor's wife and sister having both died of cancer. The testator, in making the bequest, directed that the income should be devoted to ascertaining if possible the cause and nature of this disease and the methods of its prevention and treatment."

The residuary estate was bequeathed to the paternal relatives of Mr. Rutherford, the maternal relatives being excluded. Justice Shearn said this was no sign of incapacity on the part of the testator because his property was inherited in the main from his paternal relatives. The decision of the court cleared the defendants of the accusations against them. It said:

"The papers contain no basis whatever for any of these accusations, all of which are made on information and belief, the grounds for which do not rise above the dignity of gossip and interested suspicion. Not only was there no proof whatever submitted to establish this charge, but there is sufficient answer to it in the will itself which was prepared by the attorney of the testator under his direction and without any other person being present at the time his instructions were given."

The will was drawn by Charles Fox, a lawyer of thirty years' standing at the bar. Justice Shearn said that to hold up the final distribution of an estate upon such proof would be tantamount to holding that upon a mere filing of a notice of contest, the administration of the estate of a decedent should be halted which would place a will made in this State on a parity with letters patent.

NO BREAK, SAYS COL. HOUSE.

Emphatically Denies Reports of Differences with the President.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—A Washington dispatch printed in a morning peper said that President Wilson and Colonel E. M. House had broken over the Mexican situation. Colonel House was represented as having favored the recognition of General Carranza, and the President as having ignored his suggestion.

Colonel House, who is spending the Summer at Manchester, Mass., was asked today if there was any truth to the story. "Not a particle," he said. "It would be important if true," he laughingly added.

The Colonel's telephone was busy most of the forenoon. From various parts of the country friends telephoned him to ask if the story was true and to each the Colonel emphatically said that it was not.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Colonel E. M. House of New York and Houston, unofficial adviser and emissary of President Wilson, is not in the bad books at the White House. Oswald Garrison Villard of New York, editor and publicist, has not supplanted Colonel House in Presidential favor. These things were made sufficiently clear in official circles today and it did not require the denial that came from Secretary Tumulty in behalf of the President to bring conviction as to their inexactness.

Mexico City Hospitals to Get Drugs.

Daily passenger trains are running to Mexico City without interruption.

MAY STOP I. W. W. MEETING.

Bayonne Police Fear Agitators Will Try to Renew the Oil Strike.

A clash between the I. W. W. and the Bayonne police is likely to take place tonight if the I. W. W. insists upon conducting a public meeting in Mydosh's Hall on Prospect Avenue, which the Standard Oil strikers made their headquarters during the trouble last month. When the attention of Director of Public Safety Henry Wilson was called last evening to the advertised meeting he said that he would not permit it to be held. He feared the I. W. W. might attempt to get the workmen at the plants of the Standard and Tide Water Oil Companies and those of other Bayonne concerns to go on strike

Police Chief M. F. Reilly will be at the hall with a detail of men. It is understood the I. W. W. leaders will try to hold an open-air meeting if shut out from the hall. Elizabeth Gurley is one of those billed to speak.

Conditions were normal at the oil plants yesterday and none of the 800 employes of the Texas Oil Company quit work. A dozen ironworkers employed by the Pittsburgh Iron Company building tanks in the yard were still idle. They quit when their foreman, George Blackwell, was discharged.

RAINCOAT MAKERS STRIKE.

5,000 Are Now Out and 25,000 More Will Follow Them.

Five thousand raincoat makers quit work in 110 shops in this city at 2 o'clock yesterday in obedience to a general strike order which Joseph Sachs of the Strike Committee says will call out 25,000 more workers today in Jersey City, Hoboken, Newark, Paterson, and other towns in New Jersey, Mamaroneck, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, and Yonkers, and in Boston, Philadelphia and Rochester.

According to Sachs, the demands are for 70 cents an hour for operators and cementers, 50 cents an hour for finishers, and 5 cents a coat for button sewers.

Several years ago, when there were few workers in the trade, wages were very high, skilled workers getting as much as $60 to $80 a week, according to union men, in the busy season. Now wages are said to average about $18 a week.

LOCK OUT 1,000 PLASTERERS

Employers Allege Violation of the Union's Overtime Agreement.

Secretary Samuel W. Donnelly of the Building Trades Employers announced yesterday that 1,000 members of Local Union 60 of the International Plasterers' Union had been locked out because the union had refused to observe the overtime rule provided for in an agreement between the plasterers and employers. By the agreement the plasterers were to work overtime when called upon to do so, but this, the employers say, they refused to do.

No sympathetic action on the part of the other building trade unions is expected. Secretary Roswell D. Tompkins of the United Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades said that general conditions in the building industry are good, and that the relations between employers and the unions are peaceful.

MACHINISTS QUIT AT DUNKIRK

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The machinists employed in two of the shell departments at the Brooks plant of the American Locomotive Company, which is turning out shrapnel for the Allies, went out on a strike tonight.

The men demand an increase in wages. The shell department of the big plant has had a large force of men working night and day for several weeks.

It was said tonight that an amicable agreement will probably be made between the company and the strikers within a few days.

Dispute Over Cloak Workers' Pact.

The Executive Committee of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association yesterday made public a letter which they wrote to the officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union answering their charge that the Protective Association had placed an arbitrary and unwarranted construction upon certain points in the agreement recently concluded. The Executive Committee says: "To categorically meet all the contentions set forth in your letter we would consider unwise, as it would mean the framing of issues, and further litigation which apparently leads nowhere. Our committee is ready at any time to confer with your committee on any question upon which our respective organizations may not be in accord."

Seattle Sun Again Suspends.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 30.—The Seattle Evening Sun, which after a suspension of several months resumed publication four months ago, the employes having obtained possession of the plant by means of labor claims, again ceased publication today, and a trustee was appointed to wind up the affairs of the paper.

FREIGHT CAR TRIP FOR CHILD ELOPERS

"HAVING A GOOD TIME"

Postcard from 16-Year-Old Max Starts Girl's Mother for Phillipsburg—$500 Reward Offered.

When Max Goodman, the sixteen-year-old son of William Goodman, a woolen merchant of 709 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, called on her a week or ten days ago, and solemnly asked for the hand of her fifteen-year-old daughter Viola in marriage, Mrs. Adelaide Stevens of 839 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, simply laughed at the youngster.

"Why, you're nothing but children," she exclaimed. "Wait for a few years. Then maybe you could support Viola if you had her."

"I could support her now," persisted the boy, doggedly. Then he disclosed a check for $1,800, which he said a lace company had paid to him for the secret of a dye he had discovered. But Mrs. Stevens only laughed, and drove the youthful swain away. She would talk to Viola, and that would be the end of it, she decided.

But yesterday Mrs. Stevens offered a reward of $500 for the return of her small daughter, who disappeared from her home last Thursday and who, apparently, has been on a honeymoon trip with young Mr. Goodman ever since. At least Mrs. Stevens and the police think so, though Mrs. Goodman, the boy's mother, scoffs at the idea. And they base their belief on this post card which was received yesterday morning by James Opie, an instructor in the Children's Museum, Brooklyn Avenue and Bergen Street, from Phillipsburg, N. J.:

It was signed "Martin" and as a postscript, there was this: "Write you on honeymoon."

Now Max Goodman is known to most of his friends as Martin and Mr. Opie said the handwriting of the card convinced him it was from the youth who, like Viola, has been away from home since Thursday.

The card was postmarked last Saturday, and Mrs. Stevens left at once for Phillipsburg, hoping to get on the trail of the youthful elopers there. After her departure the police found one Andrew Bostick, whose address they declined to disclose. They said Bostick had admitted to them that on last Thursday he had met Max and Viola and had gone with them to the Kouwenhoven station of the Long Island Railroad, on the very outskirts of Brooklyn, and there Viola changed into a suit of boy's clothing that Max had brought with him and clipped her braids close to her head.

Then, according to the police, Bostick has admitted that they spent an hour teaching Viola to walk like a boy and so to conduct herself that she would not bring suspicion on herself. When Max was satisfied, he and the girl boarded a trolley car bound for Manhattan.

ANNOYING LAWYER FINED.

Pays $5 for Accosting Women at Columbus Circle.

Rudolph Trebitsch, a lawyer, of 113 Henry Street, was fined $5 in the West Side Court yesterday for disorderly conduct by Magistrate McQuade after Patrolman Kelly had told of Trebitsch accosting two women on Saturday night near Columbus Circle.

Kelly said he saw Trebitsch following a woman on her way to the Circle Theatre, and that he spoke to her when she was about to enter. Trebitsch then crossed to the entrance to the subway and raised his hat to young women. A moment later he accosted a negress, and when admonished by the officer turned back and threatened to have the policeman "broken" by writing to the Commissioner.

A crowd collected and the lawyer was arrested.

Trebitsch admitted having spoken to the first woman, but said she was an acquaintance. He had not raised his hat to two women, he declared, but had simply removed the hat to take a subway ticket from the band. He added that he had asked the negress for some trifling direction. He said that he had had an engagement to meet his wife in the subway station.

Magistrate McQuade made no comment in imposing the fine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Rear Admiral Clifford J. Boush, commandant of the Naval Station at Honolulu, notified the Navy Department today that the sunken submarine F-4 had been raised. The news caused naval experts to entertain hopes that the examination of the submarine will reveal the nature of the accident which resulted in the loss of the craft. Admiral Boush reported that the F-4 had been skillfully floated as planned by means of pontoons, and now lies secured to the Quarantine dock at Honolulu. The submarine is to be placed in the drydock at Honolulu for examination.

This marks the successful ending of the salvage operations upon submarine F-4. When first lost it seemed barely possible that she might not be full of water, and hence resting lightly on the bottom. Beginning the very day of her loss, on March 25, attempts were made to engage her by the loop of a heavy wire cable dragged on the bottom, in the hope of pulling her into shallow water if she were not waterlogged.

The attempt was successful to the extent of engaging the boat in the loop of the cable, but when the strain was put upon it, it was found impossible to move her, indicating that the submarine was waterlogged and that the crew had perished.

It then became necessary to lift the boat bodily—an operation unprecedented—from a depth of 300 feet in which the F-4 was lying. Great credit is due to Admiral C. B. T. Moore, in command of the Pearl Harbor Station; Naval Constructor J. A. Furer, attached to the Pearl Harbor Station, and Lieutenant C. E. Smith, in command of the submarine flotilla to which the F-4 belonged. The apparatus used was designed by Naval Constructor Furer and constructed under his direction.

The lifting appliances were fitted on two large mud scows, rented from a local company. These scows had vertical wells through them, up which the lifting lines could be led. The decks were strengthened around the wells and some large sugar-mill shafts sixteen inches in diameter were secured over them horizontally, in heavy bearings, the lifting cables being wrapped around them, thus making horizontal windlasses. To rotate these shafts, large spools, some four or five feet in diameter, were fitted on their ends, and cables wrapped around them were unwound, as required by steam power.

The dead weight to be lifted was about 250 tons, and four sets of slings were used, the loop of each set being swept under the boat, and the two ends led up and wound on the sixteen-inch shafts. The task of sweeping the slings under the submarine and then bringing the ends to the lifting appliances was extremely difficult.

PLAN NEW LINE TO CHINA.

$5,000,000 Company Formed to Purchase Ships, Dr. Koo Announces

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Contracts for the financing of a $5,000,000 Chinese-American transpacific steamship company have been signed by American and Chinese capitalists, who are now negotiating for the purchase of ships, according to an announcement made here by Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's first Minister to Mexico, who arrived today on the steamer Persia.

Dr. Koo declined to name the American bankers behind the new company, but said that practically all of the great banks of China sponsored the plan. He said he understood the steamers of the new line would fly the Chinese flag. Difficulty in purchasing ships, he said, had caused a delay in starting the service.

"It is the first fruit of the visit of our Industrial Commissioners to this country several months ago," said Dr. Koo. "China's resources are open to American capital, with little chance of opposition from any foreign Government. Feeling against the Japanese in trade relations fanned by the recent Japanese demands is subsiding."

CLOSING GREENHUT DEAL.

Lawyers Representing Various Interests Working with Referee.

The task of carrying out the details of the sale of assets of the J. B. Greenhut Company, laid down in the final order signed last week, was begun yesterday in the offices of Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy. The sale was authorized by the Federal Court for $2,250,000.

Lawyers representing the various interests set to work and it was explained that no time would be lost in completing the new corporation to be formed. The settlement will include the distribution of money and the transfer of deeds from the old corporation to the new.

DYESTUFF PROBLEM IS TAKEN UP HERE

Dr. Thomas H. Norton Comes to Make a Three-Week Inquiry for the Government.

PROPHESIES A BIG INDUSTRY

Points to What Edison Has Done and Says Other Men of Means Are Prepared to Enter the Field.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton, who is to conduct a three-week investigation into the dyestuff situation, using this city as a centre for his inquiry, arrived here yesterday. Dr. Norton said that, while the color situation is a serious one owing to the shutting out of German dyestuffs from this country, he has strong hopes that American ingenuity and enterprise will be able in a comparatively short time to lay the foundation for a permanent color industry.

Dr. Norton, who has been sent to this city as a representative of the Department of Commerce, has been assigned to Room 525, at the Custom House, which he will make his headquarters while conducting the investigation. The agent said he will be busy today and probably tomorrow mapping out the lines of the inquiry, after which he will begin a personal canvas of all local interests using dyestuffs and chemicals.

"After this investigation is concluded," said Dr. Norton yesterday, "we will be in a position to determine what can be done to relieve immediate necessities, although I am firmly of the belief that a strong domestic dyestuff industry can be built up eventually. Thomas A. Edison is now producing anilines and carbolic acid at his laboratories, and other men of large means and an inventive turn of mind assure me they are willing to go to the limit in developing the intermediates needful for a color industry.

"There is no question that this country is going to see a big development of the intermediates required for a healthy industry. Confidence in the future is displayed by those concerns already in the color business at the time of the outbreak of the European war. One concern in South Brooklyn is now producing many of the intermediates wanted, besides various colors. The Department of Commerce hopes to come to an understanding with the Swiss color makers whereby they will be able to get their raw supplies from this country and, in turn, furnish American textile and other manufacturers with colors.

"Swiss imports here have ranged around $900,000 annually, but, with the help they can get from this country, they should be in a position to send over finished colors in greatly increased quantities. Of course, the manufacturers of colors in Switzerland have been depending on the Germans for their intermediates, but I think American cleverness will find a way to supply many of the bases required.

"The general tariff of 30 per cent. on dyestuffs carried in the present tariff would seem to be adequate in view of the fact that many German patents are expiring, while by 1925 nearly all of the patents now running will have expired. 'Dumping' may be resorted to by German manufacturers at the close of the war, but that situation can be dealt with by special legislation at Washington. Certainly it would be the height of absurdity for us to prohibit unfair practices among ourselves, while permitting foreigners to ruin an American industry by underhanded trade actions, price cutting especially."

The commercial agent said that what is wanted at this time is a "kind of chemical Carnegie," who will come forward and maintain the American tradition for "doing things." He believes that large quantities of natural indigo so badly wanted here can be obtained from China. He said he would confer with a large number of men while here. Many of these, he added, have assured him of their deep interest in remedying the color situation, among them Dr. William H. Nichols, President of the General Chemical Company, who, the agent said, may prove to be one of the "chemical Carnegies" wanted at this time. Dr. Norton will be assisted in his investigation by Dr. Maurice J. Langdon, an expert chemist.

SUES SUNDAY'S BACKERS.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—An eight-page schedule reciting reasons for a claim for damages against the Philadelphia Evangelistic Association, which backed the "Billy" Sunday revival here last Winter, has been filed in Common Pleas Court in City Hall. The list sets forth the condition of the home of Colonel Charles M. Keegan, 1914 Spring Garden Street, which the Sunday entourage occupied while working here.

Instead of the original claim of $1,754, Colonel Keegan's demand has risen to $3,043.75, and formal action to recover the amount has been started by him. Now, for the first time, authority is found for the accusation that liquors Colonel Keegan left in the home when he turned it over to the Sunday party were missing when he again took possession. The schedule seeks reimbursement for fifty-three quarts of wines, whiskies, and cordials, valued at $60.

One of the heaviest items among the claims is $298 for scraping and refinishing floors. Another charge is $74 for carting away rubbish found in the house after the Sunday party left it. Also several marble figures and twelve French novels were gone.

INSANE MAN SNATCHES BAG.

Son of Riverside Drive Resident Later Wrecked Hotel Fixtures.

Lawrence O'Byrne, 27 years old, a son of Michael A. O'Byrne, an agent of the New York Life Insurance Company, of 706 Riverside Drive, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Breen, in the Harlem Court, on the complaint of Mrs. Anna McBride of Kansas City, who charged that he stole her mesh bag and gold purse, containing $55.

She told the court she was walking with her aunt, Mrs. C. M. Powers of 106 Northern Avenue, with whom she is stopping, along 181st Street, when O'Byrne crept up behind and snatched the bag and ran. They screamed and followed him, but he disappeared at Riverside Drive, and then they reported the theft to the Fourth Detective Branch.

Later Policeman Jacobs was called to a hotel at 207 West Fortieth Street, where the proprietor said one of the guests was destroying the furniture. Jacobs went to the room, and found O'Byrne, who had torn the telephone from its socket and had a pair of pliers in his hand. At the station the mesh bag and purse were found in O'Byrne's pocket, with $1.06, all that remained of Mrs. McBride's money. The owner identified the property and O'Byrne as the thief.

O'Byrne pleaded not guilty, but told the Magistrate he would plead guilty if Mrs. McBride would not prosecute him.

It is said that O'Byrne was a former inmate of the Central Islip Hospital for the Insane. At the hospital it was said last night there had been two inmates of the name "Lawrence O'Byrne" at various times, and that both had been discharged as cured, the last in March.

GO TO LAW FOR BOOKING.

Hammersteins Expect $150,000 Profits in New Theatre.

Oscar Hammerstein, his son Arthur, and William Morris, composing the Hammerstein Amusement Company, will ask the Supreme Court today for an injunction restraining the United Booking Offices from refusing to serve them. The booking company controls the Palace Theatre and many other vaudeville houses.

In 1907 the Hammersteins, for $225,000, made a contract with the United Booking Offices to refrain from engaging in the vaudeville business for fourteen years within the district bounded by Fortieth and Forty-eighth Streets, Fifth Avenue, and the Hudson River, except in the Victoria Theatre, which went out of business on May 1.

The contract permitted the Hammersteins to resume vaudeville shows in the Victoria, but as this was impossible the Hammersteins leased the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, at a rental of $70,000 a year, where they want to pursue their trade as public entertainers and to benefit by the services of the booking company. They maintain that their present theatre is a new Victoria and that they are entitled to the same privileges as they enjoyed in their old location.

If they are deprived of these privileges, they say, they will lose the $70,000 they are paying for rent, and also $150,000 in profits.

HAITIANS SURRENDER ARMS.

Give Up 1,675 Rifles to Our Marines—Congress Will Ratify Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Reports to the State Department from Port au Prince indicate that the Haitan Congress will ratify the pending treaty with the United States Government providing for a ten-year protectorate during the coming week, and the attitude of those who have undertaken to bring about the approval of the treaty is such that the Administration is not disposed to press them for action. President Dartiguenav of Haiti is understood to be exerting his influence in an effort to persuade leaders in the Haitian Congress that the best interests of the Haitians themselves will be served by the proposed protectorate.

Admiral Caperton today notified the Navy Department that Generals Theodore and Blot have arrived at Cape Haitien, and this is interpreted as meaning that they will not throw obstacles in the path of the present plan. The Admiral also reported that 1,675 rifles have been surrendered during the last few days to the American expeditionary force. Four hundred of these were surrendered at Gonaives and the other 1,275 at St. Marc.

TO EASE WAR HORSES' LOT.

Blue Cross Fund Asks Gifts to Mitigate Suffering of Animals.

Lovers of animals who have thought frequently, since the European war began, of the hardships and the slaughter of horses which must be used in the cavalry and artillery of the contending armies, now have a chance to help such of the horses as escape death. The Blue Cross Fund, organized in England, is devoted exclusively to caring for injured war animals, and Mrs. Elphinstone Maitland of 829 Park Avenue, has been designated to receive subscriptions in this city.

Through the fund, six hospitals have been organized in France and others in Italy, and the managers of the fund in England and here are devoting themselves to improving conditions of horses of the home and expeditionary forces.

Field Marshal Sir John French has expressed his appreciation of the work of the Blue Cross Fund in a message to Lady Smith-Dorrien, President of the fund.

BUFFALO PHYSICIAN DIES IN A THEATRE

Dr. Nelson W. Wilson Stricken During First Act of "Common Clay."

Former New York Newspaper Man Had Been on Vacation in Search of Health, Which Had Failed.

Dr. Nelson W. Wilson of Buffalo, formerly a newspaper man of this city who had been spending a vacation at Neponsit, L. I., lost consciousness and fell forward in his orchestra seat at the Republic Theatre during the first act of "Common Clay" last night. He was with his wife and some friends. William H. Kinch of Buffalo, and A. E. Foran of Neponsit, who were in the party, lifted Dr. Wilson quietly from his seat, and carried him to the rear of the house. The incident took the attention of the audience from the play for a few minutes, but caused no confusion in the theatre.

A physician who was in the seat behind Dr. Wilson, followed them out and, after a brief examination, said the sick man seemed to be suffering from an attack of heart trouble and was having difficulty in breathing. A call for an ambulance and a pulmotor was sent at once to Polyclinic Hospital.

When Dr. Katz arrived from Polyclinic Hospital, however, Dr. Wilson was dead. The pulmotor was used until it became apparent that no means of restoration could be of any benefit.

Dr. Wilson formerly lived at Rutherford, N. J. In the late '80's he came to this city and worked on The New York Star under Colonel John Greene. Later he was employed on the old Morning Journal under Albert Pulitzer, a brother of the late Joseph Pulitzer. He then joined the staff of The Morning World and was for several years secretary to Colonel John A. Cockerill, managing editor of The World. He was affectionately known among his colleagues on Park Row as "Kid."

Later he went to Buffalo, where he became Secretary to Edward H. Butler, owner and editor of The Buffalo Evening News. For some time he was city editor of The News and meanwhile he studied medicine at the Buffalo Medical College, was graduated and entered into practice. He was on the staff of the Buffalo General Hospital, and was one of the best known physicians in the city.

He had been in poor health for several months, and about two weeks ago motored with his wife and friends from Buffalo to Neponsit. Dr. and Mrs. Wilson came to this city yesterday and registered at the Hotel Astor. The body was removed from the theatre to the undertaking rooms of Frank E. Campbell at 241 West Twenty-third Street, and will be taken to Buffalo.

Dr. Wilson is survived by his widow, who was Charlotte Inman of Buffalo, and two brothers, Harry Wilson, an Episcopalian minister, and Fred Wilson.

ENGINEERS OFFER SERVICES.

Societies Assure Garrison of Their Aid if Country Needs Them.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Plans for having immediately available for the nation's service in time of war associations or societies of engineers, bridge builders, electricians, telegraphers and other trained experts in civil life, are being worked out at the army war college in connection with the general reorganization scheme now being studied.

Secretary Garrison said today he had received numerous sggestions from members of these bodies that the organizations might be of use to supplement the army engineer and expert corps, should the need arise. William Barclay Parsons, of New York, and Elmer L. Cothrell of Massachusetts, representing many engineering societies, called upon the Secretary today to tender formally the services of the organizations.

Mr. Garrison obtained from them written suggestions as to ways in which the engineers in civil life could be useful, and the whole matter was turned over to the war college for the framing of a definite plan.

The war college will submit a detailed report on the scheme, which probably will be included in the secretary's report to Congress this winter.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Mayor William Hale Thompson and Commodore James A. Pugh of the Chicago Yacht Club will soon lay before the Federal Government a plan to organize the powerboats on the Great Lakes and elsewhere into a reserve scout fleet for volunteer war service at the call of the nation, it was announced today. The plan contemplates that officers and crews estimated to total 300,000 men are to be trained in the use of rapid fire guns, torpedo tubes, wireless and other signaling equipment. A Government submarine for Chicago waters for practice with the local fleet of 200 power boats will be urged.

Horse Bites a Man's Lip.

Standing beside a horse at Johnson Avenue and Lorimer Street, Williamsburg, yesterday, Huston Merritt, 31, of 16 Johnson Avenue, was attacked by the animal, which bit him on the face, tearing away his upper lip. He fell to the street and would have been trampled on but for the appearance of several men, who dragged him out of the way. Merritt was taken to Williamsburg Hospital. If he recovers he will be disfigured for life.

SAY HE ROBS THE JOBLESS.

Prisoner Accused of Taking Cash from Work Seekers for "Uniforms."

Robert Friedman, a piano polisher, of 911 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, was arrested yesterday charged with larceny by Roland Schwartz, an electrician, of 117 West 117th Street.

About ten days ago, Schwartz advertised for a job. The next day, he says, Friedman called on him, and said he represented A. L. Merritt, Superintendent of the subway, and offered employment, if Schwartz would come to the Mott Avenue subway station that afternoon.

"He told me," said Schwartz, "that I had to pay $10 for a uniform, and that if I would give him $5 for a deposit he would go right up and get me a receipt from Mr. Merritt." Friedman got the money and was seen no more. Schwartz, after a long wait, went to Mr. Merritt and learned that he had been swindled.

Yesterday another electrician, Louis Lasky, 436 West 113th Street, who had advertised for a job, received a call from Friedman, who, posing as a representative of Mr. Merritt, told him the uniform story.

Lasky postponed payment till afternoon, and called on Mr. Merritt, who remembered Schwartz's case. Then he accompanied Lasky home, after telephoning to the police. Friedman arrived on time and was arrested. Later Schwartz identified him.

The police say the prisoner declared that a man worked the same game on him several years ago, and that he wanted to get even. The police say they have many complaints from advertisers who had been swindled as Schwartz was.

Friedman waived examination in the Men's Night Court last night and was held for trial in $500 bail.

GREAT SALES OF COPPER.

France Buys Nearly 7,000,000 Pounds in One Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—France has been the largest buyer of American copper recently. The total exports of pigs, plates, ingots, bars, and scrap copper from the United States to France for the last week reported, which ended Aug. 21, was 6,770,690 pounds. The next large shipment went to England and was 1,413,524 pounds.

The United States shipped in the same week to Japan 720,000 pounds, intended for transshipment to the War Zone. Japan has for a year past been a heavy shipper of scrap copper to the United States. Russia took 225,223 pounds in the week ending Aug. 21 and Italy 249,587.

Imports were larger than usual. The United States received 979,000 pounds of scrap from England; 947,500 pounds of ingots from Peru; 586,550 pounds of scrap from Portuguese Africa, and 408,223 pounds of ingots from Chile. Canada shipped in 167,700 pounds and Chile 250,867 pounds of ore.

TO FIGHT TWILIGHT SLEEP.

Brooklyn Woman to Start Association to Oppose the Treatment.

An association to oppose the twilight sleep movement will soon be started by Mrs. Alice J. Olson of 436 East Seventeenth Street, Flatbush. Mrs. Olson said she proposes to interest wealthy women in the anti-twilight sleep campaign and raise money to circulate literature in behalf of the new cause.

Mrs. Olson is the mother of eight children, four of whom are living. She was a friend and neighbor of Mrs. Francis X. Carmody, who died at the Long Island College Hospital on Aug. 21 when she was about to become a mother. Mrs. Carmody was one of the chief exponents of twilight sleep and lectured extensively on the subject. Her husband insisted, however, that her death was not due to the treatment.

Since the death of Mrs. Carmody Mrs. Olson became more pronounced in her views against the Freiburg method. She had lost confidence in it after the experience of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Jani, whom, she said, the treatment left in a seriously weakened condition.

"When I heard that Mrs. Carmody was intending to use the Freiburg method again I started several times to the telephone to tell her about the case of my daughter. I took the receiver off two or three times and then put it back again because I could not make up my mind to tell her."

DIPLOMATS IN AUTO CASE.

Chauffeur Says Woods Said He Could Exceed Speed Limit.

An international situation developed yesterday in the Flatbush Court when Hugh Owens, a chauffeur of 400 West Fifty-eighth Street, was arraigned before Magistrate Dodd, charged with speeding his automobile in Ocean Parkway. The complaint was made by Motor Cycle Policeman Thomas Dougherty, who charged the prisoner with a third offense, which carries a minimum punishment of $100 fine.

Owens pleaded not guilty, and told the court his passengers were Victor Hugo Barranco, Cuban Consul General in this city, and Captain Finnegan, an attaché of the British Embassy. He declared they told him they had permission from Police Commissioner Woods to go as fast as they pleased to Coney Island, where they intended to meet the Cuban Secretary of the Interior. Owens was paroled until tomorrow, when he will try to have Consul General Barranco, Captain Finnegan, and Police Commissioner Woods in Court to testify for him.

Macy's Semi-Annual Offering of Fine Chinaware & "Straus" Cut Glass

Just the word "Macy's" was enough to bring in an amazingly large number of shoppers in spite of the rain yesterday, because it meant that prices in this event would be absolutely without qualification the "Lowest-in-the-City."

And the fact that we have already sold out a number of items completely (including the special lots not advertised) speaks better than anything we might say of the beauty, quality and VALUE of the offerings in the Sale.

In MACY events of this magnitude we usually prepare enormous stocks, but a look at the steady stream of people coming in—and BUYING—is enough to impress on anyone the advantage of buying NOW.

THE RAINBOW TRAIL

Zane Grey's

New Novel

Hitting the trail and taking the reader along with him through the country of adventurous romance, is the best thing Zane Grey does. And he's done it again most emphatically. A remarkable tale by itself for any one to read, and for any one who read "Riders of the Purple Sage" here is the outcome of some of the stirring incidents in that popular novel.

Dyspeptics Now Enjoy Rich, Hearty Meals

Every dyspeptic or sufferer from indigestion knows that craving for hearty and, to them, indigestible food. It is the natural calling of the body for the rich nourishment that milk-and-nursery diet cannot supply. The next time this craving is on you, yield to it. Try one more good dinner—eat anything and everything your instinct suggests, just as if you had the stomach of a day laborer. But while eating it sip a glass or two of that delicious, clear, non-laxative mineral water, Man-a-cea. It immediately restores good digestion. Sold by all druggists and by Charles & Co., Park & Tilford, Acker, Merrall & Condit Co., and other leading grocers. Good for rheumatism, too.

REPUBLICANS NAME 5 SITTING JUSTICES

PICK PERKINS AND BOWERS

Olive Branch to Bull Moose Held Out—Will Indorse Schaap in Return for Support of Justices.

The Republicans decided upon their slate for the campaign yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the County Committee.

The candidacies of five Supreme Court Justices whose terms expire this year were indorsed. District Attorney Charles A. Perkins was indorsed for his present office and Under Sheriff Frank K. Bowers was named for Sheriff. Saul Rogers, of the Twenty-first District, an active member of the County Committee, was named for Justice of the City Court.

These Supreme Court Justiceship recommendations were made: John Proctor Clarke, Samuel Greenbaum, Clarence J. Shearn, Francis B. Delehanty, and Edwin R. Finch. There is still a selection to be made from the Bronx, and it is probable that W. W. Niles will be named.

Justices Shearn, Delehanty, and Greenbaum are Democrats, and in naming them the Republicans expect that Tammany will reciprocate.

"We have put the Supreme Court Justice situation right up to Tammany," said County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig last night. "There is a great public demand that the sitting Supreme Court Justices whose terms expire shall be renominated and re-elected. We have followed that demand consistently. We feel that the Democrats should indorse the slate, even including Justice Finch. We have not indorsed the Republican Justices simply because they are such, but because we believe in the policy of giving a renomination to a man who had made good upon the bench.

Expect Tammany to Follow Suit.

"There has been no question of a deal with the Democrats. We indorsed the Democratic members in the same spirit that we indorsed the Republicans. There should be no question of politics when it comes to the Bench. If we decide to indorse the candidacy of Mr. Niles we feel that the Democrats should do the same. We have now met them fully half way and they should be just as considerate."

In indorsing Saul Rogers for the City Court the Republicans have paved the way for a compromise with the Progressives. They are willing to withdraw Mr. Rogers and indorse Michael J. Schaap, whom the Progressives have named for the City Court, if the Progressives, in turn, will indorse the Republican Supreme Court slate.

The Progressives put up Mr. Schaap for the City Court and William H. Hotchkiss for the Supreme Court, with the hope that the Republicans would indorse the candidacy of both if the Progressives would accept the Republican county ticket. The Republicans are willing to trade only the City Court Judgeship for the support of the Progressives for the rest of their ticket.

The Republican indorsement of District Attorney Perkins was no surprise. Mr. Perkins had already entered the race with the backing of many prominent Republicans, Progressives and independent Democrats, mostly lawyers. The only other Republican candidate who will oppose Mr. Perkins at the primaries is Frank Moss. Mr. Moss wanted both the Republican and the Progressive indorsements, and failing in both he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination at the primaries on Sept. 28. The Republican organization will make a determined fight against him.

Perkins and Bowers Named.

Frank K. Bowers, Republican candidate for Sheriff is leader of the Thirtieth Assembly District. His name was suggested yesterday by John J. Lyons, leader of the Thirty-first District and it met with unanimous response. Mr. Perkins was also accepted unanimously when his name was presented by George W. Wanamaker, leader of the Eleventh District. There was a short discussion of Mr. Moss's candidacy, but when it came to a vote, Mr. Perkins was the only candidate for District Attorney in the running.

While no names were mentioned for the two Municipal Court Justiceships, County Chairman Koenig declared after the meeting that the Republicans of the Thirtieth District had agreed on George Z. Medalie for one of the places because of his record as an Assistant District Attorney. He will be selected for the vacancy in the Eighth Municipal Court District, and in the Ninth District it is probable that the nomination will go to Edward J. Lauer, who is the present Municipal Court Justice for that district. The term of the office is ten years.

There was no discussion of the candidate for Congress in the Twenty-third District.

BANKER HELD AS A FORGER.

Arkansas Financier and Politician Was a Criminal in Other States.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—After maintaining for years a dual identity of banker and prominent citizen of Forrest City, Ark., and an alleged forger of realty documents in other parts of the country, John V. Kline of St. Louis was under arrest here today. He has confessed, according to detectives, to swindles aggregating more than $500,000.

Kline was known as John W. Barnhardt in Forrest City. He had been urged to become a candidate for a member of the Alabama State Senate, and he and his family were socially prominent throughout the State.

Kline, or Barnhardt, was arrested here last night. He had escaped jail two weeks ago, the police said, from Waukesha, Wis., where his methods in attempting to mortgage property brought him under suspicion.

The hundreds of complaints against Kline charge that he went into a rich farming community, inquired for a good farm which he might buy, and got acquainted with men of money. When he had selected a farm, it was charged, he either borrowed the deed and made out a bogus deed to himself, or he bought the farm, paid for it by check, and took possession of the deed.

As soon as the deed was safely recorded in his name, Kline, his accusers say, mortgaged it and by the time the check was returned marked "No funds" he had gone back to Arkansas to become a banker again.

ACCUSE MRS. HAMLIN.

Witnesses Testify She Plotted to Get Mrs. Davis's Fortune.

JACKSON, Ky., Aug. 30.—After four witnesses had testified for the State today the preliminary hearing in the case of Mrs. Mamie Hamlin, who says she is a daughter-in-law of a former Attorney General of Illinois and who is charged with having poisoned Mrs. Polly Davis, a wealthy widow, was postponed until noon tomorrow. Mrs. Hamlin is also charged with having forged a will which purported leaving her $40,000 from the estate left by Mrs. Davis.

The witnesses testified that Mrs. Hamlin first came to Portsmouth on June 10 and left ten days later. Mrs. Hamlin, they said, returned to Portsmouth again on July 26, three weeks after the death of Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. Hamlin, it was alleged, visited Mrs. Davis every day she was alive, and after Mrs. Hamlin's departure on June 20 poison was found in a valise left by her where she was boarding. Mrs. Hamlin told the boarding mistress, it was said, that she found the will shortly after her return to Portsmouth on July 26 and offered the latter $1,000 if she would sign the will as a witness.

A servant girl who worked for Mrs. Davis testified that the latter was afraid of Mrs. Hamlin.

TROOPS GUARD COURT HOUSE

Illinois Authorities Fear Mob Will Carry Out Lynching Threats.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 30.—To prevent the carrying out of threats of lynching made against Joe Deberry, a negro charged with the murder of Mrs. James Martin, three companies of the Illinois State militia stood guard today around the jail and Court House where Deberry is being tried. A mob of several hundred persons who surrounded the Harrisburg (Ill.) jail last night, intent on lynching the negro, was foiled when officials smuggled the negro out of the jail and hurried him here in an automobile under the escort of State troops.

Deberry is alleged to have confessed to the murder of Mrs. Martin, who was the wife of an attorney. He was a servant in the Martin home. Threats of lynching were made at the time of the murder, and feeling was intensified when, several weeks later, Mrs. Martin's husband died of an illness induced by the shock of his wife's death.

COLD WAVE HITS THE WEST.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Record low temperatures for this season of the year were reported today from several points in the West. In this city the thermometer registered 47 degrees, which was equaled only twice before in the month of August, once in 1872 and again in 1887.

Reports from Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska told of great damage to crops by the frost. In Wisconsin over $300,000 worth of corn crops were destroyed.

Heavy frosts, in some instances taking the form of ice, were reported from Iowa. The Government thermometer at Waterloo registered 34 degrees above zero. Vegetable crops were badly damaged.

TAMMANY'S SLATE MAY BE MADE TODAY

FOLEY IS A CANDIDATE

Charles F. Murphy will be at Tammany Hall today and the final selections for the primary slate may be made. Mr. Murphy held a conference with his advisers at Good Ground, L. I., on Sunday, and it was said yesterday that a slate had practically been decided upon. The selection for District Attorney is between Judge Edward Swann of General Sessions and Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan. Thomas W. Churchill, President of the Board of Education, it is said, has practically been eliminated.

It is said that Murphy has had a hard time making up his mind just who to support. Both Corrigan and Swann have been working hard for the Tammany support, and the sentiment in the Hall is about equally divided between the two.

Tammany's judicial slate is still in doubt. While the organization has decided to indorse Justices Clarke, Greenbaum, and Shearn, there is a hitch over the three remaining places. One of the places must go to the Bronx, according to present plans. The Republicans have indorsed Edward R. Finch for one of the places, and expect Tammany to do the same. Tammany, however, has many candidates of its own for the two places, and the indorsement may go to either Senator James R. Foley, Senator Robert F. Wagner, or Judge John V. McAvoy of the City Court.

The nomination for Sheriff is still giving the several candidates deep concern. Half a dozen candidates are in the field, and each is working hard. It was said last night that ex-Street Cleaning Commissioner "Big Bill" Edwards was by far the most likely candidate. Most of the district leaders are against him, but his candidacy has shown so much strength lately that Mr. Murphy is greatly impressed. The younger element is for him to a man, it is said, and it is expected that his candidacy would bring back into the fold many of the men who have opposed Tammany in the past. Petitions for his nomination are being circulated by Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., ex-Senator Walter R. Herrick, and Joseph R. Truesdale.

Among the other Tammany candidates for Sheriff are U. S. Marshal, Thomas D. McCarthy, Peter J. Dooling and William J. Lee, Supervisor of Recreation in the Park Department. If Murphy adheres to his plan not to indorse a district leader for the place and "Big Bill" Edwards does not get it, Supervisor Lee's chances are said to be good. The Southern Democratic Association of New York, of which David Robinson is Chairman, has passed resolutions stating that a man or Mr. Edwards's ability is needed for the place of Sheriff.

Charges of fraud have sprung out of the filing of the first petitions with the Board of Elections. They were those of Earl Miller for Assembly and James R. Ferguson for Alderman from the Bronx. The charges were filed by Charles J. Dunn of 810 Elton Avenue, and state that the signers to the Miller and Ferguson petitions were "influenced and deceived in affixing their signatures to petitions in the belief that they were signing for other persons than the ones whose names appear as candidates in the petitions. The signers of the said petitions had previously signed petitions designating other persons for the positions."

The complaint filed is part of the fight for leadership between Michael J. Garvin and Patrick Kane in the Thirty-third District.

LOOKS FOR WILSON DEFEAT.

J. B. Reynolds Expects a Republican Landslide in 1916.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—That the Republicans would return to power on the crest of a landslide, and that prosperity would be restored, was the message James B. Reynolds, Secretary of the Republican National Committee, brought to Chicago today. Mr. Reynolds, who is on an expedition to feel out the sentiment of the country, is to spend two days in Chicago talking with political leaders.

"President Wilson is on the toboggan," said Mr. Reynolds. "The country is proving itself to be anti-Democratic, and the Republican Party right now is confronted with the certainty of returning to national power in 1916, not by a close margin, but as the result of one of the greatest party victories ever recorded in this country.

Mr. Reynolds was asked about a report that Chairman Hillis was not in favor of holding the convention in Chicago.

"The officers of the National Committee are not taking a hand in the selection of a location for the convention," he said. "Members of the committee themselves will settle that question. There are four large cities at the top of the bidding for the convention, and Chicago is one of them. San Francisco, St. Louis, and Philadelphia are the others. Minneapolis and Cleveland are also being heard from."

DENIES McCOMBS RUMOR.

No Plan to Displace Him, White House Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Persistent reports of efforts within the Administration to displace William F. McCombs as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee caused Secretary Tumulty to issue a statement from the White House tonight saying that he knew of no such movement, and characterizing the reports as "the work of mischief makers."

NAMES LABOR COUNCIL.

Special to The New York Times.

Representing the Employer—Edward J. Barcalo, President of the Barcalo Manufacturing Company, Buffalo; G. Emmons, General Electric Company, Schenectady; Richard C. Stofer, President of the Norwich Pharmacal Company, Norwich; Irving T. Bush, President of the Bush Terminal Company, New York City, and Carleton A. Chase, President of the Syracuse Chilled Plow Works, Syracuse.

The members of the council are to serve without remuneration and are to be advisory to the commission. The members may elect as Chairman any person not a member of the council, who will participate in deliberations but have no vote.

The council will consider matters submitted to it by the commission and advise the Industrial Commission in the selection and appointment of employes.

ACCUSES THE POLICE IN VICE TRUST PLOT

Grand Jury Witness Says Two Patrolmen Stood By While She Was Attacked.

STATE SEEKS M. GOLDBERG

Prosecutor Wants to Know How "Vice Trust" Learned of Alice Henry's Testimony.

While District Attorney Perkins was preparing yesterday to put before the Grand Jury today evidence concerning the assault upon Alice Henry, the State's principal witness against Mortche Goldberg, known as the head of the "vice trust," Deputy Police Commissioner Lord took steps to investigate a statement said to have been made by the woman to the effect that two policemen, who saw the attack last Wednesday evening, took no action.

The Deputy Police Commissioner wrote last night to Mr. Perkins to ask for a copy of the Alice Henry testimony before the Grand Jury. If today's inquiry brings out anything which would seem to reflect on the police Mr. Lord will ask the woman to appear before him.

"We are co-operating with the District Attorney in this investigation and doing all that we can to help him," the Deputy Commissioner said. "But I think there are some facts about this case which the papers should not forget. I do not like the impression to go out that the police have been lax. We heard from an outside source that there was a warrant out for Goldberg. We found the warrant pigeon-holed and took it out and arrested him. Our responsibility ceased at that time. He was not brought to trial. Notwithstanding the publicity given to the so-called white slave investigation, the extremely high hopes of the public were not realized, because as a result of the inquiry there was no successful prosecution."

Hope of connecting persons interested in Goldberg's case, who, it is said, include a prominent politician and a police official of high rank, with the assault upon Alice Henry lies in the possibility of confessions on the part of those who participated in the assault. Frank Morris, alias "Kid Mohawk," a well-known Tenderloin character, is under arrest for the assault.

Goldberg is a fugitive from justice. He was indicted on June 12, 1913, on a charge of keeping a disorderly resort. He went to South America and was not arrested until his return, in March this year. He gave $2,500 bail, which he forfeited on Aug. 17, when he failed to appear for trial.

Alice Henry, whose assault has reopened the graft investigation, did not appear as a witness against Goldberg on the indictment on which he is now a fugitive. Two weeks ago she went before the Grand Jury for the first time on a new charge against the alleged "vice trust king."

One phase of the inquiry relates to the sources of information from which the appearance of the woman before the Grand Jury was disclosed. How Goldberg and his friends learned of her activities against them has not been explained.

Three or four witnesses will go before the Grand Jury this morning to testify about the assault on Alice Henry. Assistant District Attorney Smith, who is in charge of the investigation, will come back from his vacation to present the case in person.

BLAMES ERECTORS AND IRONWORKERS

SAYS EMPLOYERS HAD SPIES

And the Union Men Resorted to Dynamite—Predicts Conflict Will Be Renewed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—The United States Commission on Industrial Relations today made public the last of the reports to be printed at this time. It is a report by Luke Grant on the controversy between the National Erectors' Association and the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

The report relates at length the history of the conflict between these groups of employers and unionists. It goes into the history of the campaign of dynamiting conducted by officials of the union. The Los Angeles Times explosion, says Mr. Grant, did not involve the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, except that the explosion was perpetrated by one of the agents who had been made use of by officials of this union in causing other explosions.

Mr. Grant's conclusions regarding the various incidents of the conflict are stated in part as follows:

"The American Bridge Company and other members of the National Erectors' Association have maintained the open shop because they believe it has been to their financial interests to do so. Under the open shop policy they are free to conduct their operations as best suits themselves. If they desire to employ laborers at a low rate of pay to perform work that under a union agreement would be done by skilled men at higher wages, they do so without fear of strikes. In this way the aggregate wages of the ironworkers are reduced, although the nominal rate per hour for skilled men may be maintained. The fight for the open shop is at bottom a fight for increased profits for the employers.

"Comparison of open shop and union wage scales in the structural iron industry shows that the open shop scale is considerably lower. In New York City, which is on the open-shop basis, the wages of ironworkers are lower than in other large cities and have been advanced only once since the fight began in the Spring of 1906. As steel erectors who employ union men frequently bid successfully against open shop erectors, it would appear that the economy effected through open shop operation is entirely at the expense of the workmen. If the cost of production is reduced, the consumer does not profit by it.

"The union has believed throughout that it was in a fight for existence. That, in a large measure, is true. It does not conflict with the statement that the union was on the aggressive and the employers on the defensive. The open shop policy, as understood and practiced by the National Erectors' Association, means the destruction of the union.

"The officers of the ironworkers' union knew what the open shop policy of the erectors actually meant. They knew if that policy succeeded, the union would lose to a like extent. That increased their determination to fight. Denied the opportunity of conferring with representatives of the Erectors' Association, or ending the struggle on the basis of a mutual agreement, they resorted to drastic measures. They found themselves overmatched and, believing the existence of their organization was at stake, they hit below the belt in trying to turn the tide in their favor.

"If the union resorted to unfair and unlawful methods in the prosecution of the fight, the erectors were in a degree responsible. The system of espionage which they maintained in local unions, before and after the outbreak of hostilities, did much toward creating and preserving the spirit of hostility which made the destruction of property possible.

"When the members of the union knew or suspected that these paid spies of the employers infested every local, were they not justified in believing that the employers were secretly aiming at the disruption of the union? Is it strange that they should resort to secret methods of retaliation?

"Organization raised the wages of structural ironworkers almost 50 per cent. in a period of fifteen years. It was natural that they should rally to the support of that union when they believed that its existence was threatened. It was natural that they should feel bitter toward the employers who were hiring secret spies to destroy that union.

"The employment of spies by the employers was as indefensible as was the resort to dynamite and the destruction of property by the ironworkers, although the one was within the law and the other was not. The system of espionage was established years before the campaign of destruction began. It cannot, therefore, be urged in defense of the system that it was made necessary because of the outrages that were being committed.

"Pernicious as was the effect of the spy system on the union, it did not justify the resort to violence and the destruction of property in the eyes of the law. But it went a long way toward justifying them in the eyes of the union ironworkers.

"The employers say that the spy system has been discontinued. It probably has, because under present conditions the open shop erectors are not greatly interested in the union. They feel they have won the fight for the open shop, and all they ask of the union is that it let them alone.

"The union ironworkers cannot accept that view. With from 45 to 50 per cent. of the structural steel erection on an open shop or non-union basis, it is inevitable that the ironworkers will keep on trying to organize the men in the industry. They look upon the open shop not only as a check on further progress but as a menace to the retention of what has already been gained. They feel they must keep on fighting to prevent the spread of the open shop policy or take a backward step.

"Under such conditions there cannot be peace in the industry. Fear of the consequences may prevent a recurrence of violence, but it will not remove the cause. Fear of the law will not re-establish amicable relations between the companies and the union. Only the recognition by each side of the rights of the other can accomplish that, and both sides must agree on what those rights are and define them by mutual consent."

MAY BE CAPTAIN VON IGEL.

Captain Tauscher's Friend in Hospital Is Recovering Rapidly.

It was persistently reported yesterday that the mysterious German officer who has been at the South Side Hospital, at Babylon, L. I., ever since he was hurt in an automobile accident several days ago, was Captain Wolf von Igel, who was here on a secret mission for the German Government. He was taken to the hospital as John Smith of 7 East Fifty-seventh Street, and since the accident has been visited almost every day by Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, the chief German financial agent here; Captain Karl Boy-Ed, Naval Attaché of the German Embassy, and Captain Franz von Papen, Military Attaché.

Nobody at the hospital will admit the officer's identity, except that he is "Mr. John Smith." A German-American who called up yesterday and asked how Captain von Igel was getting along was told that there was no such person at the hospital; but when he explained that through inadvertence he had not asked for Mr. John Smith he was informed that Mr. Smith was getting along nicely and would be out in a few days.

Captain Hans Tauscher, agent of the Krupp firm and husband of Mme. Gadski, the opera singer, whose guest the man of mystery was just before he started on the trip on which the accident occurred, has refused to answer questions concerning his friend's identity or mission, but has said that he is not a German official or an army officer.

SEEKS POLICE FUND.

August Ziegener, lawyer for the Jersey City Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, gave out a statement yesterday taking exceptions to a rule adopted by the Jersey City Commissioners, which forbids policemen from soliciting aid for the association's entertainment without the permission of Director of Public Safety Frank Hague. He wants Director Hague to tell what became of $14,000 collected by policemen last Spring for tickets and subscriptions for two entertainments.

Director Hague said he supposed Mr. Ziegener was talking about money raised at entertainments given by the police band.

"I know nothing about the money, but I guess Inspector Philip Leonard can give Ziegener all the information on the subject," said the Director. "I would not handle any police money nor would I go within forty miles of such money. Inspector Leonard is the Treasurer of the police band."

TO SAVE CHILDREN FROM AUTO TRUCKS

OFFERS RULES FOR OWNERS

The killing of two children in three days last week through other children tampering with unattended motor trucks and the delay in adopting the new regulations and ordinances govering the operation of motor vehicles in New York, caused Charles L. Bernheimer, President of the Safety First Society, to issue an appeal to owners of motor trucks, and those in charge of deliveries, to instruct their chauffeurs as follows:

> When the motor vehicle is standing and unattended it shall be safeguarded by adopting the following precautions:
> The motor of gasoline cars must be stopped.
>
> On electric vehicles, the control handle or the current cut-off switch must be locked so that the vehicle cannot be operated.
> On all steam-propelled vehicles, the throttle or shut-off valve must be locked so as to render the vehicle inoperative.
> The emergency brakes on a motor vehicle must be properly set so as to prevent such vehicle from moving.

The Street Traffic Committee and the Automobile Technical Committee of the Safety First Society approved these recommendations three weeks ago. These organizations recommended the introduction of ordinances providing for the elimination of dazzling head and side lights; requiring parallel parking at the curb for all vehicles of the delivery type; requiring the use of mirrorscopes on automobiles and requiring chain-driven machine owners to inclose the chains with proper guards. It is further proposed to make it a misdemeanor for any persons to hitch on to or trespass upon a motor truck or horse-drawn vehicle, unless employed by the owner of the vehicle.

Mr. Bernheimer also calls attention to the increasing number of street accidents involving horse-drawn vehicles and reminds owners that the traffic regulations of the Police Department contain the following regulation, under Article 8, Section 1:

> A horse shall not be unbridled or left unattended in a street or inclosed space without being securely fastened, unless harnessed to a vehicle with wheels so secured as to prevent its being dragged faster than a walk.

In the past few weeks there has been an increased number of runaways, and the Safety First Society contends that if this regulation had been enforced there would have been fewer opportunities for horses to run away.

"The appeal of President Bernheimer for co-operation on behalf of the motor vehicles in Greater New York," the statement issued by the Safety First Society says, "is necessitated owing to the delay attendant on the promulgation of new traffic regulations or the enactment of new ordinances, which are necessary in the effort to reduce the number of preventable accidents occurring upon the public streets.

"Police Commissioner Woods could well give consideration to the suggestion that a general order be issued to all members of the police force, whether on patrol or fixed post duty, requiring that whenever they see children trespassing upon or playing around motor vehicles in the street they should be cautioned and immediately ordered away from such vehicles.

"If the power of motor trucks is absolutely shut off, the emergency brakes set, and the front wheels turned toward the curb, it would not be possible for children to move these vehicles. Parents should caution their children to keep away from motor vehicles when they are left standing in the street and under no circumstances to climb or play around them."

Training School Boys Drowned.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—An officer and sixteen boys of the training ship Cornwall were drowned in the Thames today near Purfleet, while engaged in boat practice. A tug collided with their boat and sank it

HAS A SUBWAY VENTILATOR.

John Berg Would Inclose Each Track in Sheet Iron Tube.

A ventilating system for underground railways and tunnels has been patented by John Berg, a steamfitter of 28 Macomb's Place, and he has been trying to demonstrate his model before engineers of the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate. He showed the model to a reporter for THE TIMES yesterday.

Mr. Berg would have each of the present four subway tracks inclosed in a separate tunnel. This could be done, he says, by constructing partitions of sheet iron. With trains thus inclosed, their movement entraps the air and sets it in motion, the same as air is expelled from a cylinder by a piston.

A moving train drives the air ahead of it, and a trap door, blocking the tunnel at the approach of each station would make it possible to expel the foul air through an opening in the side of the tunnel where an air shaft carries it far above the heads of persons in the street. At the moment all the air is expelled from the tunnel, the trap door is opened by an electrical device on the train, operated the same as electric block signal devices, and the train proceeds into the station. The door is closed behind the train. When the train departs its movement sucks fresh air into the tunnel through another opening near the station.

MAY IRWIN BACKS WILSON.

May Irwin fills no position in President Wilson's Cabinet, which precludes her reprimanding publicly those she thinks talk too much, but as a suffragist who campaigned ardently for the President she feels privileged to stand up for him. So, taking her press agent's freely flowing fountain pen in hand, she sent a letter to President Wilson which said, among other things:

"In these times, when our beloved country is facing the most crucial problems of its history, you have shown yourself as great a patriot and statesman as ever held the Executive office.

"But as usual there are some agitators and self-seekers who for the sake of notoriety are attempting to handicap the work of the President, even to the extent of hurling this nation into the bloodiest war of all history. I am only a humble almost citizen, but I think it the duty of every woman, child, or man to encourage you with a direct approval of your course. Hence this letter.

"I would like to see a new department added to the Government, to be known as the Department of Laughter. The function of it should be to laugh out of court these fools and self-seekers, these pests and jingoes who are trying to annoy you in your work. The rules of old had their Sir Motleys and Jesters for just such a purpose. I respectfully apply for the portfolio of this department on the supposition that I know a good laugh when I see one."

SHAPIRO'S CHILD RETURNED.

Court Finds He Is Able to Support Her and Keep Family Together.

Justice Wilkins in the Children's Court yesterday restored Flora Shapiro, 15 years old, to her father, Louis Shapiro, who took her and her eleven-year-old brother Adolph, who was in court, to their new home of two rooms at the rear of 362 Cherry Street.

The Shapiro family was broken up three weeks ago when the mother was taken to the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane. The Children's Society took charge of Flora and was about to send her to the Randall's Island Hospital because she was found to be feeble-minded and her father destitute.

But the father made desperate efforts to recover his daughter, and he was assisted by a woman charity worker unknown to him, who used her influence in his behalf. She appeared in court yesterday and told the Justice that unknown sympathizers had sent the father a considerable sum of money and that he was no longer in want.

Flora herself gazed at the Justice was tear-filled eyes and begged that she be allowed to go home. Her father had always been kind to her and she wanted to be with him and her brother. Moreover, Mrs. Laura Holmitz, a neighbor, had promised to take care of Flora while her father was working.

THE TIMES received the following contributions for the Shapiro family yesterday: From H. M., $1; from J. M., $1.

FIND MISSING GIRL DAZED AND ROBBED

HER PAY ENVELOPE CUT OPEN

When the ferryboat Brooklyn from New York came into the slip at the ferryhouse on Staten Island yesterday afternoon, Detective Hildebrand of the Ninth Branch Bureau saw a girl about 17 years old wandering about the ferryhouse apparently dazed.

She was unable to answer his questions coherently and kept muttering to herself about "fainting" and "Saturday." The detective took her to the bureau, where she received food, and then Dr. Runkle of the S. R. Smith Infirmary was summoned. In answer to questions, she said that she worked in a shoe factory in Newark, but could not remember the name of it.

After being paid on Saturday, she remembered walking down Market Street. Then, she says, she felt faint and a woman came up and offered to take her to a drug store. What happened after that she doesn't remember, but she awoke in an apartment in New York City, and there was a man and woman in the room. They gave her something to eat and drink and then, she declares, she became unconscious again.

When she was revived, she was walking with the woman on a street where "the cars went around," and the woman put her on a ferryboat, assuring her that it would take her to Jersey City. When the ferryboat landed the girl found herself in Staten Island.

She was in a distraught state and her story was obtained only after the most patient questioning by the detectives. In her pocket book was a pay envelope with the name "Boyden Shoe Manufacturing Company, 183 South Canal Street, Newark," printed on it.

This factory told the Staten Island police that a girl answering to the description they gave had disappeared after being paid Saturday night. Her name, they said, was Annie Nausbaum of 522 South Grove Street, Irvington, N. J.

Police Lieutenant Thomas H. Kirkbride of Irvington said that Miss Nausbaum had been reported missing by her father, Benjamin, who holds a respected position in Irvington, when she did not come home to supper Saturday night. On learning that she was in Staten Island the policeman came over at once with Mr. Nausbaum.

The girl was taken to the infirmary and her father prepared to spend the night on Staten Island. The hospital authorities will not say yet whether Miss Nausbaum was drugged or was suffering from amnesia. One thing which seems to support her story is the fact that her pay envelope had been cut as by a pair of scissors rather than torn and the money taken out. The girl carried no scissors. Some of her clothes and her hat had been replaced by inferior ones. The police believe she had been robbed.

Offers $300 for Lost Rings.

Mrs. Arthur J. Moxham of Douglaston, wife of the President of the Aetna Explosives Company, offers a reward of $300 in THE TIMES "Lost and Found" columns for the return of a black bag containing two diamond rings and a small sum of money, which she lost on Sunday morning either in the Pennsylvania Station or on the Long Island train leaving at 10:20. Mrs. Moxham could not put a value on the rings.

MUST FACE ARSON CHARGE.

Lighter Officers Who Stole Sugar May Have Placed Bombs.

The seven men, five of whom are of German birth, arrested Friday on charges of stealing sugar from lighters loading liners bearing supplies to the Allies will have a further hearing before Magistrate McQuade in Yorkville Police Court this morning. Detectives will probably prefer the additional charge of arson against them. Magistrate McQuade held them in $3,000 bail on the larceny charge.

Fires started on several liners loaded by the accused men, five of whom are lighter Captains. It is the police theory that incendiary bombs were placed in the bags of sugar while on the lighters from Yonkers.

Confession has been made of sugar thefts amounting to $100,000, but the men have insisted they did not put bombs on the liners. The detectives say the fires occurred on liners carrying sugar; that the sugar was loaded by the accused men and that material which could be used for making bombs was found in the cabin of one of the lighters. The prisoners denied yesterday that they had been in the pay of the German Government. One of them, Richard Melhofer, is a German Naval Reserve officer.

Deputy Police Commissioner Scull and Captain of Detectives Tunney, who are in charge of the case, refused last night to tell just what evidence of an arson plot had been discovered.

The men who will have another hearing this morning are: Michael Satset, 672 Forty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, Captain of the lighter S. F. S.; Sigmund Sjursen, 511 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, Captain of the lighter Dixie; Ferdinand Hahn, 337 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, Captain of the lighter John F. Rymer; Richard Milhofer, 6,914 Fourteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, Captain of the lighter Trial; John Peterson of Yonkers, mate of the S. F. S.; Jean Styrms, 601 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn, a checker of the French Line, and Abraham Kochelink, 89 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, who is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Robert Morris—"Financier of the Revolution"

IT HAS BEEN SAID the three very great men of our War for Independence were Washington, Franklin and Morris. In the history of mankind no man ever had a more arduous commission than did Morris in financing the armies of Washington. The credit of the nation was practically valueless, and time after time it was the personal credit of Morris which brought forth the money. The financial means raised from his own private resources made the victory at Trenton possible. When Washington proposed the capture of Lord Cornwallis and his entire army, it was from Morris, the patriot and private citizen, and not from the treasury of the Confederated States from which the money came. Thus Washington's last great victory was made possible, and the long and bloody struggle for National Independence brought to an end. Morris was the first to suggest our present system of National banks—the best banking system that any nation has ever known. He was the first American to send a ship forth flying the Stars and Stripes. Like Franklin he signed both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. He was very hospitable, and whenever Washington visited Philadelphia he was the guest of Morris. He was ever a moderate user of light wines and barley brews, and opposed Prohibition Laws, which make the many suffer for the faults of the few. For 58 years Anheuser-Busch have been brewing the kind of honest barley-malt and Saazer hop brews which the wisdom of Morris knew make for real temperance. To-day at the home of BUDWEISER 7500 people are daily required to meet the natural public demand. BUDWEISER'S ever-increasing popularity comes from quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

GERMAN SUBMARINES AND BRITISH ORDERS.

The Germans must move quickly or they will find themselves outdone in politeness by the Britons. While we are waiting for the delayed assurances in respect to the Arabic, the British Ambassador calls at the State Department to say that the complaints of American importers have touched the heart of his Government. Goods to the value of many millions ordered and paid for in Germany have long been delayed in transit at Dutch ports because of the British Order in Council establishing the blockade; and goods ordered for the Christmas trade in Germany and Austria have lately been the subject of much complaint. The British Ambassador now says his Government will permit these cargoes to pass through the blockade lines, even though the goods have been contracted for only and not yet paid for. This will give great satisfaction to American importers, many of whom have been placed in a position of peculiar hardship owing to the fact that commodities they had long ago paid for or contracted to pay for were detained in Holland.

Meanwhile encouraging progress is reported in the efforts to reach an understanding with Germany in regard to the destruction of the Arabic. Chancellor VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG seems to have prevailed over the fiery spirits of the navy, Admiral VON TIRPITZ in particular, and it is now reported that a decision has been reached. The story that the Chancellor had issued an order discontinuing submarine attacks upon passenger vessels and that the order was "held up" by Admiral VON TIRPITZ is interesting, whether true or not, as a contrast to the usage of BISMARCK'S day. When that powerful man was Chancellor the military departments of the Government were quite subordinate to the political department. Nobody would have thought of declining to issue an order the Iron Chancellor had given. German statesmen of the present day are not of that stature.

It is earnestly to be hoped that the expected assurances from Germany will not be long delayed. It would seem that sufficient time has elapsed for Berlin to have received the report of the submarine commander, while we in this country, understanding of course that the German Government could hardly be expected to act until the report was at hand, are unable to see how the story of the sinking of the Arabic can in any material way be changed by that report. Trustworthy witnesses have already given to the world the vital facts.

INDUSTRY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The farmers of the Philippines held a convention in Manila, between Aug. 21 and Aug. 28, to consider the problems which they are compelled to atack. Among these are the question of agricultural credits, means to eliminate insect pests, the establishment of experimental stations for the scientific study of staple crops, irrigation, immigration, agricultural colonies, and communications. The Filipinos are alive to the need of industrial development and they have reached the conclusion that if anything is to be done to increase the economic importance of the islands they must do it themselves, as American capital does not flow in their direction. They are remote, and Americans, generally speaking, lack interest in their Pacific possessions. The islands are associated in our minds chiefly with contentious politics and vague rumors of occasional uprisings, which are frequently false or grossly exaggerated. The Filipinos are now inclined to be peaceful and are seeking prosperity. The agricultural lands are rich, the industrial potentiality of the islands is large. The native engineers, mechanics, dentists, pharmacists, even the physicians and lawyers, have formed combinations for the conservation of their interests. The farmers have only lately been aroused to the heed of similar action on their part.

There is no surface indication that the Filipinos are discontented with American rule under the present conditions. There is, so far as can be ascertained, no strong yearning for early independence, and if the present Government has many troubles to contend with they are not made public. The larger measure of self-government which the Jones bill promised, and which the Administration of President WILSON at first seemed to favor, would have been popular and no doubt it will be obtained in time. But it is unlikely that any date will be specified for the granting of complete independence until the islanders are better fitted to enjoy its advantages. Meanwhile their disposition to do all they can for themselves is to be commended. The time may come when American capital will be invested in the Philippines. A campaign of education must first be instituted in the United States. Our ignorance of the worth of the islands is more lamentable than the obvious inability of the Filipinos to conduct a government for the good of all, which is no more than natural. They are learning every day, but we are learning very little about them and the lands they inhabit.

THE DECAY OF APPOMATTOX.

The "famous apple tree" of Appomattox is preserved only in the memory and in the quatrain cited memorably by ROSCOE CONKLING in the Republican National Convention of 1880. The village itself is falling and decaying, according to The Richmond Times-Despatch. "The winds "and waters have done their worst, "and what they have left is crum-"bling from human neglect." The quiet little county seat of Appomattox County slumbered in obscurity till April 9, 1865, when it took its place in history, to be remembered henceforth in connection with the great names of LEE and GRANT and the end of the Lost Cause.

Whether or not it be true, as a memorial tablet records, that in Appomattox was "fired the last volley"—there were so many "last volleys" as well as so many "youngest soldiers of the civil war"—the place is hallowed ground in the story of America, and it is unpleasant to know that fire and flood and vandal hands and public indifference and want of care have brought to the edge of desolation a spot whose name so appeals to North and South, there united in durable peace. "Why isn't Appomat-"tox today a literal shrine, as well as "a historical shrine?" asks our Richmond contemporary. The pitiful case of Appomattox invites the sympathetic attention of those who treasure the monuments of our history. It is a monument of peace.

WAR ISSUES IN 1916.

Unless the great events going on in Europe take a different turn from what now seems likely, the next Presidential campaign will be fought over questions arising from our foreign relations. It will be the first national campaign in which domestic issues are subordinate. If the war is still going on, the questions will be much like those which are under discussion today; if it is ended, the issues growing out of it will affect us as they will every other country in the world.

This is generally recognized, and there has been more or less speculation concerning the form which it will take. The Boston Herald, for instance, sees the Democrats making their fight for Mr. WILSON'S re-election on the simple issue, "He kept the country out of war," while The Baltimore American holds that since Republicans as well as Democrats uphold the President's hands, no partisan advantage can accrue to either party. Chairman HILLES of the Republican National Committee believes that the international situation cannot be relied on to win a Democratic victory.

All these views seem to us shortsighted. The situation is a good deal larger than the one their proponents have in mind. If the war ends, or has assumed such a character that the United States is no longer in any danger of being drawn into it, Mr. WILSON will not be able to make his campaign simply on his success in preserving the peace. Not past performances but future policies are the issues in national campaigns. For the same reason the Republicans will be able to make very little capital out of their support of him. The voters will be looking forward, not backward.

What the issues growing out of the war will be it is impossible to predict now, with the war still raging and new questions arising at every turn. It is, however, evident that in some form the question of preparedness will be one of them. Colonel ROOSEVELT is sure of it and is hard at work trying to put the Administration in the position of favoring weak defenses. Whatever its shortcomings may have been in that respect, there are plenty of indications that its future policy is now being shaped in such a way that the Republicans will get as little advantage as possible from such an attack. Secretary GARRISON, there is reason to believe, has had his way at last, since Mr. BRYAN'S retirement, and the President is likely to take a position when Congress meets which will leave the Republicans with little powder to fire that volley.

Other issues will undoubtedly arise out of the way in which American interests are affected by the war or by its settlement. It is the unlikeliest thing in the world that there will be any simple little A B C issue such as "He kept the country out of war," or the kind of support the President got from Republicans. If the President handles the American foreign policy with success to the end, he will certainly derive an enormous advantage from it, and will greatly increase his own popularity, and this will make assets for him; but they will not be issues, they will be assets in obtaining support for his side of whatever the issues may be.

All this on the assumption that the war has ended or neared visibly its end. If it is still going on, and there is still danger for the United States, the Republicans will have to face the old argument against swapping horses in mid-stream, and the best issues they can invent will come up against that as against a stone wall. If Mr. HILLES believes that in such a case the international situation cannot be relied on to win a Democratic victory, he is chasing rainbows with a faith and zeal in which 1908 has made no dents.

The Republicans face a hard situation. The domestic issues on which they relied two years ago will be unheard in the roar of war, and if the war still goes on they will be at a hopeless disadvantage from the beginning. Only on its conclusion can they base any hopes, and as no man knows how it is going to end or what issues will arise from it they cannot yet stock their arsenal. They are doing the best they can with the preparedness issue, but if the President is guided by his Secretary of War even that will be taken away from them. It will be of no avail for Colonel ROOSEVELT and the Republicans to assail the Administration on its past and Bryan-made record if a strong and patriotic stand is taken on that question next December.

THE ENGINEERS AND FIREMEN.

The joint board of the Brotherhood of Engineers and the Brotherhood of Firemen has sent to all local bodies of their organizations a call which recites that "the railroad brother-"hoods, wherever organized, are be-"ginning to realize that all the "orders must work together in their "struggle with the railroads to gain "shorter hours, higher wages, and "better working conditions."

Isn't it time for these powerful and intelligent unions to realize that it is not the railroads but the Interstate Commerce and the State Railroad Commissions with which their struggle for higher wages lies? The railroads are always expected to raise wages, and they are seldom permitted to raise rates. They must add to their expenditures, but not to their income. As sensible men the engineers and firemen should think of that. It is a world of topsy-turvy political economy where wages must be increased, but the income out of which wages are paid must not be increased.

DEFENSE AND OFFENSE.

There is no doubt in the minds of the American people that the Administration at Washington is both willing and able to attack the problems of national defense and solve them satisfactorily. The people are anxious for military and naval preparedness not because they want war; they approve the avoidance of war whenever peace can be honorably secured.

Certain politicians who have been hoping to make the strengthening of our national defenses a profitable issue in 1916 are chagrined because President WILSON and Secretary GARRISON have taken up that matter sanely and will see it through. Mr. ROOSEVELT, for one, seems to be in a rage about a lost issue. Of the lack of good taste and self-control he has displayed in his public utterances the last few days we need say nothing. It is more to the point that he is doing more to injure the cause of national preparedness by lending force to the argument of the few pacifists that given strong forces they are sure to be misused to the country's peril than the most determined of the pacifists could do himself. Not BRYAN, or the wily German propagandist, or the prejudiced peace advocate who denounces all defensive preparations as sinful, are so serious an obstacle as the Colonel to the reasonable reorganization of our army and navy for the purpose of securing to the nation immunity from attack.

THE PILGRIM CELEBRATION.

There is still a strong disposition in Massachusetts to celebrate in 1920 the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers by holding at Plymouth a world's industrial exhibition on a very large scale. Plans for the erection of certain permanent structures to house the exhibits and the machinery are now under consideration. The American imagination, as far as celebrations are concerned, seems unable to get beyond the exposition idea. Yet we know that the minds of many of the foremost New Englanders are already at work on the scheme for the celebration of this anniversary, second to none in interest. It seems that a better idea may yet be hit upon. There have been too many world's fairs already and the world has grown tired of them. The memory of the Founders of New England is not chiefly associated with material progress. A world's fair represents little more. It seems that music and the fine arts and pageantry combined might be used to better purpose in celebrating the landing of those stern men who sought a distant home in the unknown wilds for freedom to worship GOD in their own way.

Yet whether or not the New Englanders are able to conceive and put in execution a better plan for their celebration than an industrial exhibition, it is not to be doubted that the whole country will be stirred by the event. Since 1876 we have had no national anniversary to celebrate the appeal of which is so strong and so general. Descendants of the Pilgrims carried their traits and their zeal all over the country. They blazed the great trails. The anniversary will have much more than sectional significance. All the more reason why the celebration should be worthy of the occasion. There are four more years for preparation and we shall continue to hope that the exhibition idea will give way to a less conventional and more appropriate plan.

RELIGION, LABOR, AND WEISMANIA

That ingenuous German sodality, the Friends of Peace, has called a Peace Convention to meet in Chicago, Sept. 5. Clergymen of all denominations are entreated to select delegates from their congregations to that congregation of eirenists. The type of the Friends of Peace most in evidence is that celebrated neutral, Mr. HENRY WEISMAN.

> Men interested in the sale of armor and ammunition, [cry the Friends,] backed by a powerful press, are making systematic and determined effort to put America on a par with Europe, an insanity which must ultimately insure our entrance upon war.

Men interested in preventing the sale of arms and ammunition by Americans to belligerents are the head, front, and voice of this society. They are backed by the German-American press. They are making a systematic effort to put America in an unneutral position.

Military preparedness is the sin and shame which the Peace Conventioners are to shudder at—military preparedness in the United States. Military preparedness in Germany is all right.

"Militarism is the deadliest foe of labor," write the Weismanians, rallying labor to the side of religion. Whereas militarism in Germany is a blessing.

The Friends of Peace! No matter what innocent persons of good will they may allure or dupe, the peace their noisiest spokesmen have at heart is a peace dictated by triumphant Germany, a peace that will find the United States naked of defense.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Difficult Task Undertaken.

To change the character of a street's long-established traffic and buildings is always a hard job, and it is much oftener accomplished by the slow invasion by "business" of a residential district than in any other way. New Yorkers still very much alive have seen the whole lower part of Fifth Avenue yield to this sort of an attack, but the homes that used to line it practically the whole way down from the Park were abandoned reluctantly, in most instances, and only after strong opposition to what was felt to be "the enemy" had proved ineffectual.

The transformation resulted from one of those always more or less mysterious "movements of population" that are so hard either to cause or to guide—as many a confident real estate speculator has discovered to his pain and loss. It is for these reasons that the owners and occupiers of property along Seventh Avenue, in planning the transformation of their street from one of small to one of large trade, have set for themselves a task, not impossible of accomplishment, of course, but of large size, and that success is dependent upon influences other than those which they can consciously exert.

The building of the new subway, upon which they are counting hopefully for assistance, unquestionably will make their work easier to some degree, and they are quite right in saying that an avenue so broad and straight ought to be better utilized than it is in a city far from too well supplied with longitudinal thoroughfares of that sort. Apparently the character of Seventh Avenue was originally determined by the fact that it came to a "dead end" at the south—that it didn't go anywhere, as the saying is. That fault has been remedied for some time, but the status of the avenue still remains about what it was—that of a business street dealing mostly with the people living within short distances from it on either side and having curiously few relations with the rest of the city. There are probably many thousands of New Yorkers who for years have not once had occasion to traverse the stretch of it where the changes are proposed—probably not a few of them who have never seen it. And the sort of trade now done there will always have to be done somewhere. That is another difficulty the would-be innovators will have to overcome. It is not one alteration, but two, that they will have to effect. Their ambition is an admirable one, however, and its attainment would help the whole city as much as it would themselves.

They Differed, But Did Not Disagree.

There was something of amusement as well as much of interest in the contiguity of two letters which appeared on the editorial page of THE SUNDAY TIMES. One of them was that in which GERTRUDE ATHERTON so vigorously denied that France was moved by love either of free government or of ourselves when she took part in our Revolutionary War. The other, close to it, was an appeal, signed by ex-President ELIOT of Harvard and a dozen other eminent men especially well versed in American history, asking that, as Labor Day and LAFAYETTE'S birthday come together, this year a special effort should be made publicly and adequately to acknowledge the enormous value of the services received from France in the hour of our most desperate need.

The two productions went well together, in spite of their apparent wide divergence. They did not really disagree and neither refuted the other.

Mrs. ATHERTON, whose historical investigations have not been limited to the carefully selected facts by means of which our school textbooks prevent boys and girls from knowing too much about the very human personages who created the United States, presented with characteristic frankness the truth as to the intervention of France in our affairs. What she revealed was not exactly a secret, but—well, it substituted reality for myth and convention in a way calculated to startle those who have been accustomed to view the country's early years as a period when heroes and saints contended on one side—the American side, of course—against aggregated and unmitigated villains on the other. The writers of the appeal for the celebration of the anniversary of LAFAYETTE'S birth are not less well informed than Mrs. ATHERTON, but the point they had in mind was that France really did help us, and that, whatever her motive, the help should not be forgotten.

Whether or not it is desirable that the founders of a country should be idealized and almost deified is a question not easy to decide. To do it is about the most ancient of "Folkways," and the custom would hardly have persisted so long or been followed so widely if its effects were not on the whole good. Mythology has its uses as well as history, but probably it is advantageous to have them separated once in a while, and it was service along that line that Mrs. ATHERTON rendered by her admirable review of the Revolutionary period.

Defended, but Not Vindicated.

In the letter cabled from London for yesterday's TIMES Mr. BALFOUR made a fairly good defense of the suppression by the military censors of all details concerning the harm done by Zeppelin raids on the English coast.

He said that, as the big balloons could not operate at all over hostile territory except at night, and not with any safety to themselves except when there was no moon, their navigators rarely knew exactly where they were and often made mistakes of astonishing magnitude. Why, he asked, should the effectiveness of future raids be increased by giving out exact information, sure to reach Germany, in regard to the blunders already made?

There is obviously something in this, but that there is much cannot easily be seen, and the policy of silence and concealment withholds more than one sort of information from Germany. Some of the sorts it might be well, from the British point of view, for her to have. If the Germans, for instance, could be convinced that the accomplishments of the Zeppelins in England had not been and could not be of any real benefit to them, they might abandon this particular mode of waging war. Again, to let them know that a Zeppelin had gone far from its planned course in one foggy night would not materially assist another endeavor in the same conditions.

College Women as Mothers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Last June I attended the fifteenth reunion of my class from one of the largest women's colleges and was shocked at the small percentage of births which the class statistics disclosed. I believe this is the great problem of the women's colleges. To lay the blame on feminism is nonsense. No human being could possibly regret so keenly the childlessness of the college woman as she does herself. However, being trained to be useful to the community, she does not spend her time bemoaning the fact, but does her utmost in other constructive work.

The reason married graduates have fewer children than other women, is because they marry later. The reason fewer of them marry at all, is because during the four most susceptible years of their lives they are separated from men. When women can receive their A. B's. at nineteen, the percentage of marriage among them will increase greatly. This does not mean lowering the college standard. It means more individual instruction during the preparatory years, (given by the mothers preferably,) fewer hours, more time outdoors, and no long vacations.

I cannot close without adding the proud boast that my classmates have produced twelve pairs of twins, proving that the higher education is teaching them how to do two years work in one. F. S. RUMELY.

Quilting Bee Economics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading this morning of the embargo on cotton and the consequent anxiety of the Southern cotton growers, my mind ran back to our experience during the civil war. Although at present 81 years of age, I distinctly remember the great demand for blankets and comforters, particularly the latter, and how we denuded our homes for the comfort of the soldiers. My suggestion is this: Let the women in each town, village, or country neighborhood club together and buy a quantity of cotton batting, also a commensurate amount of calico or "print," and, meeting in churches, school houses, clubrooms, or private homes, manufacture bed comforters and quilts. Each of these should require from three to five pounds of cotton and twelve yards of cloth. These articles would add greatly to the comfort of the poor in this country and during the coming Winter would be a godsend to the soldiers in the trenches, prison camps, or hospitals of Europe, besides stimulating the cotton market, and so furnishing relief to distressed cotton growers in the South. NO ALTERNATIVE.

When diplomats fail in each earnest endeavor
And methods enlightened all go by the board;
When grip of the War Lord grows stronger than ever
How then may the triumph of Peace be restored?

When wisdom of sages is silenced and void,
What else is there left but the brawn and the fettle
To set free a freedom so tangled and cloyed?

While men are the products of brute evolution
And harmony only a viewpoint of dreams,
What hope lies in civilized circumlocution?
What chance has a prayer when the cannon ball screams?

The triumph of Peace—was it ever a matter
Of argument, impotence, caution or plea?
Each century's up-build, whatever it be?

All praise to the will that is sane, slow and steady!
The War God is strong and the carnage is on!
The call, when it comes, must find all of us ready,
For only by Might can our Peace reign be won!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few weeks ago the German Socialist Party issued a "peace" manifesto. Nearly all American newspapers either accepted the cabled report as evidence that the German Socialists already favor peace or that peace sentiment was rapidly developing within their party. There was no foundation for either supposition. The so-called "peace" manifesto, when it reached us by post, was found to attack the British, French, and Belgian Socialists, falsely accusing them of favoring a war of conquest, and made no real concessions in the direction of peace. While vaguely attacking the German plans of political conquest, it said nothing of the modern form of annexation, the demand for "military and commercial guarantees," which represents the latest trend in German political discussion. Belgium, it now seems, is to be left the husk of liberty.

A few days later the Socialist Party in the Reichstag voted the Kaiser (for the fourth time) all the money needed for the now almost openly avowed plans of conquest. The pro-war faction, now in control of the Socialist Party, did not even ask whether a war of conquest was to be pursued and refused to indorse Liebknecht's question. All this has been clearly pointed out both by the pacifist minority in Germany and by French, British, and American Socialists.

But yesterday came the final evidence, the cable giving the German Socialists' peace terms. British predominance on the sea is to be removed, but German predominance on the land is to be continued: "Germany's opponents must not be permitted to acquire any German territory;" "Austria and Turkey must not be weakened."

Annexations by Germany are also opposed—but again nothing is said of the compulsory military and commercial treaties openly favored by members of the Prussian Landtag and many other prominent Socialists.

The issue is now clearly joined between those now in control of the German Socialist Party and the rest of the world's Socialists. For the very liberal program of the French and British Socialists (including all factions) which was adopted in London last February has received general approval. In direct contradiction to the German program, it demands independence for all subject peoples—whether now under Russia, Germany, Austria, or Turkey—in so far as they desire independence.

The London Conference declared:

> The Socialists of the allied countries are not fighting for political or economic subjection of Germany. They are not fighting against the people of Germany or Austria, but only against the Governments of these countries, which oppress their peoples, while they demand that Belgium should be freed and indemnified. They desire that the Polish question should be settled in accord with the wishes of the people of Poland, either by autonomy or by complete independence within another nation. They desire that in all Europe, from Alsace-Lorraine to the Balkans, all nations which have been forcefully annexed should be given back the right of disposing of their own freedom.
> While the Socialists are firmly decided to struggle until victory is won in order to accomplish this emancipation, they are not less firmly decided to take a stand against every effort to turn this war of defense into a war of conquest, which would only prepare new conflicts, create new grievances, and deliver the peoples to a doubled burden of armaments and war.
> The victory of the allied powers must be a victory of the people's rights, of the unity, independence, and autonomy of the nations in a peaceful federation of the united States of Europe and the world.

Until Aug. 26 this clear-cut program remained unanswered. Now the German Socialists have taken an equally clear-cut stand. The issue is joined. It is now a Socialists' as well as a capitalists' war. It is true that the Socialists have been supporting their Governments with their blood and have been voting them money from the beginning, but it is only the other day that they finally decided what they are fighting about.

The German Socialists are not headed even in the direction of peace; the pacifist minority is not as strong as it was five months ago. The leading pro-war Socialist, David, has just been selected as their leader in the Reichstag, and the militarist tendency will clearly continue to gather strength as long as German victories continue.

Material in Our Army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Most people are under the impression that all of the officers of the regular army are West Point graduates, when, as a matter of fact, a considerable minority of the "about 5,000 trained officers" have been promoted from the ranks. This fact is not only true now, but was true in the civil war, and, for that matter, in all the wars in which this country has been engaged. It might be interesting to the public, now so greatly interested in our army, to know how many of our boys who are commissioned officers have been promoted from the ranks. It would show that we have in our regular army a body of mighty intelligent men, and that in the rank and file there is some very promising material for the highest possible rank in time of war.

Germany's Further Material.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to what you say about the inability of Germany to put any new units in the field, I beg to tell you that my father has been drilling, since the beginning of this war, not less than 2,000 new recruits. According to the last letter received (dated Aug. 5) he had just 600 new recruits under his command, and these soldiers would be ready for service in the field in about three months. The class of 1915 recruits has been called for, but they have not yet undergone any drilling. Furthermore, friends of mine who are from 23 to 26 years old have not gone to the front as yet, and for that reason they had to do some home service.

The Shark Story Confirmed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of yesterday "N. S. W." speaks of the man-eating variety of sharks in the harbor of Sydney. As a native of that beautiful city, I can with authority corroborate the statements, and furthermore recall the three instances quoted, and know of others where lives and limbs have been lost as a result of these sea monsters in the beautiful waters of the harbor. In the late '80s I distinctly remember a young man losing first an arm, then, just as rescue was at hand, the entire body disappeared, leaving only a blood path in the water. This happened in Rushcutters Bay.

THE ENGLISH ANSWER TO VITAL QUESTIONS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Inclosed is a copy of a letter to me from Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, the well-known London publisher, in which he expresses a desire for publicity of his views on "Great Britain's response to one of the greatest crises in her history." HOWARD MANSFIELD.

The Letter.

London, W. C., Aug. 8, 1915.

My Dear Mr. Mansfield:

Thank you very much for your letter of July 19, in which you acknowledge the receipt of various documents bearing upon the war, and raise several very far-reaching and vital questions concerning Great Britain's response to one of the greatest crises in her history.

I am very glad you asked these questions. They are questions which ought to be put to us by our well-wishers in the neutral world, and I have for some time been aware that they were "in the air." Now that you have phrased them so pointedly I am given a long-wished-for opportunity of clearing up and setting forth the thoughts on this subject that have long been latent in my mind, and which are more or less representative, I imagine, of the general public opinion of Great Britain at this phase of the war.

First, then, there is your question about the continued inactivity on the western front. It is perfectly natural that that should trouble you in America. Even among us it has its depressing effect, though we are not so much in the dark as you as to its meaning. The western group of the Allies is not really inactive; all the time a contest is going on, not so conspicuous or so drastic as a clash of arms, but equally momentous for the issue of the war. I refer, of course, to the competition in the production of munitions. Germany, who purposed the war, took care to pile up an immense reserve of munitions before she precipitated hostilities, and her long-thought-out arrangements for industrial mobilization have done her even more service than the actual stores in hand. But by the efforts we have initiated and are now constantly increasing we hope, and hope with reason, to overhaul, equal and surpass the enemy output. Then, when our superiority has reached a certain point we look for an artillery avalanche along the whole western front—the sort of thing that was done at Neuve Chapelle by us or by the Germans on the Dunajetz, only this time from end to end of the line. It is this competition of the workshops that will decide the war—the whole industrial energy of one nation striving against the whole industrial energy of the other—and we believe that we shall prove ourselves stronger and more enduring in the end.

Second, there is your question about recruiting, and to that I can only answer that you are totally and absolutely misinformed. "The great body of unmarried men in England," you say, "seem to prefer to avoid the risk of active service," but the fact is entirely the contrary. The great body of unmarried men has volunteered its services and is now either fighting or learning how to fight. One of the most pressing tasks of the new Munitions Ministry is the recovery of skilled workers from the camp and their restoration to the workshop, while among the miners, whom you single out for blame, there has been a vast recruitment. When the news came last September that the Germans had battened down Belgian miners in their pits at Charleroi, men enough for five battalions presented themselves within ten days at the depots of the Durham Light Infantry, Durham being, of course, one of our principal mining districts; and that is only one instance out of many. The Durham battalions now number well over twenty in all.

Of course, you allude especially to the miners because of the South Wales strike, and it would be folly to pretend that such events are not deplorable. I will not argue that these internal jars are an inevitable accompaniment of war or insist upon the violent redistribution of profits which the sudden inflation of the war industries entails, though that is the economic origin of the strike in question, and I could parallel it with the industrial strikes and conscription riots which broke out in the North during the worst crisis of your civil war, not to speak of the serious labor unrest that is observable even now in Saxony, Silesia, and Hungary, and the strikes which have occurred in Germany. But I would rather suggest a wider point of view, and remind you that the war has come upon Europe, and especially upon Great Britain, at a very crucial moment in the development of the social problem created during the last century by the industrial revolution. It is not really this or that section of the British nation that is to blame—not even the nation as a whole—but a phase of our common civilization which has brought much good to humanity, but has also confronted us with evils which it would have demanded all our intellect and energy to cure, even without the absorbing preoccupation of this struggle for existence. What is really striking is that the dispute has nevertheless been settled in the present instance with the minimum of delay, so that the coal supply has not been appreciably affected.

Third, you mention the "immeasurable loss of an untold number of the best of Englishmen." The loss is only too true, and the full consequences will reveal themselves, I fear, progressively during the next thirty years. But the cause of this calamity to the "upper classes" is not, as you suppose, any shirking or malingering on the part of the nation at large. The disproportionate number of casualties among the officers is simply one of the military phenomena of war as it is at present waged. To see this you have only to compare the British figures with figures taken from a belligerent that employs conscription and that, therefore, automatically distributes the human sacrifice of war among all strata of its citizens. For instance, compare the casualties of British officers with German, and you will find at once that whole German families have been wiped out; that the Junker class, which has always incarnated the spirit of Prussia, has, at any rate, paid personally for the catastrophe which it has precipitated, and has been practically wiped out. I have even seen an article contributed from Germany to an American magazine which tried to prove that the German Army was now a democratic army. "Our aristocratic corps of regular officers," it argued, "has devoted itself on the field of battle, and our troops are now led by the officers of the reserve—lawyers, bankers, schoolmasters, and representatives of all other walks of civilian life—in fact, by just such a body of men as would officer the American Army if America ever embarked with all her strength upon a war." That, I think, shows that the losses among the upper class have nothing to do with the question of conscription versus voluntary enlistment. It certainly leaves us with a problem for the future which can only be met, I think, by democracy and education.

Now, I believe, I have answered all your questions—perhaps at unpardonable length. But, as I said at the beginning, you gave me an opportunity of which I was eager to avail myself, and I am not going to lay down my pen without putting in a word for the British Navy, which has accomplished results that beat the most ambitious forecasts. Our navy has banished German commerce from the seas, isolated the German colonies from their mother country, and insured our communications with our own colonies and with our allies as effectively as in time of peace. T. FISHER UNWIN.

SOLVENT STATE INSURANCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Aug. 30 there appears a letter reflecting upon the administration of the State Insurance Fund, signed by Harrison Law, who attempts to show that the State Fund has obtained the surplus distributed in dividends to policy holders by cutting down its reserves below the level required in the case of the stock and mutual companies. He asserts that the State Fund has set up no reserves for unearned premiums, and alleges that the State Fund has given as an excuse for this course the plea "that inasmuch as its policies cannot be canceled, therefore it is not called upon to keep an unearned premium reserve." Mr. Law declares that if the State Fund were compelled to maintain such a reserve it would have a deficit of over $500,000 on the first year.

This representation is wrong in every particular. The State Fund maintains an unearned premium reserve upon precisely the same basis as do the stock and mutual companies. The amount of the unearned premium reserve on June 30, 1915, was $68,754.32. This amount was small simply because the bulk of the business of the State Fund was written from July 1, 1914, and renewed from Jan. 1, 1915, for the second six months' policy term, so that a very large proportion of the premiums on the first year's business had been earned on June 30, 1915. It may be well to explain here, for the benefit of the lay reader, that the reserve for unearned premiums is made up of that amount of the net premiums corresponding to the proportion of the policy term during which the insurance has still to run. The unearned premium reserve on any policy is equivalent to the whole premium at the beginning of the term, and gradually diminishes during the term.

Mr. Law takes the figure for the net premiums written by the State Fund during the twelve months ended June 30, which amounted to $1,287,037, and sets down 50 per cent. of this amount, which he gives incorrectly as $643,018, as the amount of the earned premium reserve which the State Fund should carry as of June 30, 1915. The actual premium reserve of the State Fund on that date was, as I have stated, $68,754.32. The amount of the unearned premiums on the same date was $1,182,222.11. The extraordinary error into which Mr. Law has fallen is due to his failure to take account of two facts: first, that the State Fund business is all written on a semi-annual basis, and second, that the great majority of its policies date from July 1 and Jan. 1.

The fact is that the State Fund reserves are set up on a basis of absolute adequacy and in strict accordance with sound insurance principles. The State Fund is actually carrying higher loss reserves than it would be required to maintain under the provisions of the general insurance law. Its method of setting up reserves has been approved by the State Insurance Department, which has ordered the mutual companies writing compensation insurance to set up their reserves on the same basis.

MOTIVES OF YUAN SHIH-KAI.

They Are Not Necessarily Anti-Republican, Says a Defender Warmly.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the heading, "China's New Master," Mr. Horoshenko raises the question whether President Yuan Shih-kai will have himself proclaimed autocratic ruler of China, and refers apparently to measures which in August, 1913, are said to have been taken by President Yuan Shih-kai. As I have spent many years in China and have had an excellent opportunity to study the political situation, I am in a position to state the following facts:

There is no absolue proof that the dismissal of the Republican Deputies and of some Senators in August, 1913, can be considered as a step toward President Yuan Shih-kai's alleged ambition.

The loan of $125,000,000 which the President had made with foreign banks has various underlying causes, the chief of which is to better the poor financial standing of China and to introduce if possible the use of gold coin and at the same time to raise the standard of civilization and education.

The South, of course, under Sun Yat-sen, opposed in every possible manner, under the guise of patriotism, the measures proposed for the welfare of the nation and advanced their own private interests. I only mention Sun Yat-sen's idea of railroad monopoly.

During his Presidency Yuan Shih-kai found that expenses for salary for the various officials rose to an incredible height.

Yuan Shih-kai, less with the intention of hurting the Republican Party than with the intention to lower the enormous expenses, carefully examined in every detail the expense list, which resulted in a prompt dismissal of a great number of officials who were "merely on the payroll." Furthermore, various attempts against the life of Yuan Shih-kai having been made, a number of these rebellious members from the southern districts who opposed the central power in Peking were dismissed, as they would not conform to the new legal measures which had been enforced.

Yuan Shih-kai did not suffer himself to be intimidated, and aided by his English adviser, Dr. Morrison, he solved successfully the entangled problems of the Chinese Republic, which was then in its very infancy.

I must oppose Mr. Horoshenko's statement that Yuan Shih-kai dismissed 370 Deputies and 125 Senators for the sole purpose of ridding himself of the Republican Party; he did it only to re-establish the peace of the country and to curtail all unnecessary expenses.

Should in reality Yuan Shih-kai have made the resolve to proclaim himself sole ruler of China he certainly would find favor with the religious feeling of many Chinese, for the Chinese, may he be Buddhist, Taoist, or Confucianist, is wont to see in the ruler of the country a divine being.

MILLER PRODUCES NEW MELODRAMA

"Just Outside the Door" an Interesting if Somewhat Mechanical Play.

BY JULES ECKERT GOODMAN

Dr. Carey Wheaton	David Glassford
Polly Wheaton	Lizzie Hudson Collier
Kenneth	Elliott Dexter
Gloria	Ottola Nesmith
Bishop Henry Strenger	Frank Losee
Michael Conway	William Norton
Madge Davis	Kathlene MacDonell
Ned Davis	Ernest Truex
Jennie	Julia Mills
Mr. Burleigh	Frank Kemble Cooper

"Just Outside the Door," the new three-act play which came last evening to the Gaiety, is a somewhat strained and mechanical, but fairly interesting, melodrama by Jules Eckert Goodman. An expert and thoroughly characteristic production by Henry Miller goes far to serve as a mantle of charity for the not particularly grievous sins of the author, and in the wisely selected company some fine and satisfying work is done by Kathlene MacDonell and Ernest Truex.

Mr. Goodman's chief sin is his story's wild improbability. A girl, whose young brother has been caught thieving, goes to his employer to plead for him and in her fury at this prosperous scoundrel's infamous proposal, stabs him with a paper-knife. In her frightened flight, she hides first in the shrubbery of some inviting grounds, and then, as the pursuit of the detectives grows hotter, takes refuge through the window in the strange house beyond. Unconsciously she has burst into the home of a man whose son is in love with her and whose daughter is engaged to marry the villain she has just wounded.

It is not easy for such a train of circumstances to move on its way under its own steam and it must be admitted that from time to time Mr. Goodman can be seen giving it a shove. This initial set of curious chances is an ever-present and slightly oppressive reminder of the play's artificiality, but the extravagance is disarmingly confessed by the author himself at the outset. A benevolent and sentimental Bishop plays chorus in clerical garb to this melodrama, and announces in advance that even for the modern girl who has sprung Minerva-like from the head of Bernard Shaw, romance waits just outside the door, to be discovered, as like as not, by that divine chance which is called coincidence, the puzzling static in the affairs of life, the conspicuous beauty in the inscrutable design of the world.

Thus does Author Goodman, in proprietary and even affectionate manner, take the long arm of coincidence by the elbow, but a mental retrospect of his play leaves at least a lurking suspicion that he thought of this pretty thematic touch after he had fashioned his plot and found it rather too extravagant. It leaves the play not impossible, but it leaves it still a little difficult.

But "Just Outside the Door" has its moments of high excitement and acute suspense, and these are made the most of by the good company which Henry Miller has assembled for its presentation. The well-considered and nicely executed production is touched at every point with his certain skill as a director. All the work is good. Some of it is exceptionally fine.

Here there must be mention first of the part played by Kathlene MacDonell, an actress who has visited Broadway before, but whose really big opportunity came last evening. She has had the schooling of many stock engagements and the valuable experience of more than one season with Mrs. Fiske. All this tells in the grace and the authority of her present performance, which rings true throughout and satisfies entirely the considerable demands of the principal rôle.

And there must be mention, too, of Ernest Truex, always expert and pleasing in boyish parts, and here tested and found able in the rôle of the weakling brother, an exceedingly effective study in passionate hysteria.

Of the many chances which enter into the make-up of the new entertainment at the Gaiety, the best two fall to Miss MacDonell and Mr. Truex. With lesser opportunities, creditable work is done by Lizzie Hudson Collier, Frank Kemble Cooper, and Elliott Dexter, particularly Elliott Dexter.

They all contribute to a dramatic story which, if it does not precisely lift you out of your seat, is interesting enough to keep you in it for the necessary two hours. "Just Outside the Door," by the way, lasts no longer than that and needs a supplemental playlet to make it a full evening's entertainment.

THE WEEK IN THE THEATRES.

It is another week till Labor Day, which custom has denominated as the opening of the new theatrical season, but many playhouses have already resumed operations. Here is the list of attractions the young season offers: Ziegfeld's "Follies," which have begun their last three weeks at the New Amsterdam; "The Boomerang," in the Belasco; "Under Fire," a war melodrama, at the Hudson; "Some Baby!" at the Fulton; "Chin-Chin," the only play held over from last year, at the Globe; "Rolling Stones," in the Harris Theatre; "No. 13 Washington Square," with May Irwin, at the Park; "Common Clay," with John Mason and Jane Cowl, in the Republic; "Cousin Lucy," with Julian Eltinge as Lucy, at Cohan's Theatre; "Young America," in the Astor Theatre. The spectacular film, "The Birth of a Nation," is still being shown at the Liberty.

Eva Tanguay heads the Brighton Beach Theatre's new bill. Miss Tanguay has retained some of her best songs and to this nucleus has added some new ones. Selections from the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas sung by a capable company in costume constitute an attractive number. "The Corridor of Time," a satire by Junie McCree, is presented by Fred Hallen and Mollie Fuller.

At Loew's American Roof, Emily Darrell and Charles Conway in a sketch depicting life back stage head the bill. Virginia June and Gilbert Wells in a dance divertissement, and B. Kelly Forrest, a tramp comedian, are on the program.

The new program in Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre includes Will Oakland and company, the Musical Attorneys, Clark and Girard, Emma Francis and company and James Thompson and company.

George Fawcett, who has created a whole gallery of vigorous types of American men on the legitimate stage, has capitulated to the lure of the movies. At the Broadway Theatre a picture entitled "The Majesty of the Law" is being shown with Mr. Fawcett in the role of a gruff but tender-hearted old Virginia Judge.

The Eighty-first Street Theatre reopened yesterday after being closed a short period for cleaning and redecorating. A picturization of Clyde Fitch's romantic play, "Her Great Match," with Gail Kane in the principal role, is the feature. The second half of the week this will be replaced by "A Little Brother of the Rich."

One of A. H. Wood's companies in "Potash & Perlmutter," the comedy based on Montague Glass's stories of the cloak and suit manufacturers, is the first offering of the new season in the Lexington Theatre.

MISS LAPHAM'S WEDDING.

The plans have been completed for the marriage of Miss Ruth Lapham, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Henry Lapham of 15 East Fifty-sixth Street, and Gerald Mygatt, a son of the late Lemuel Carrington Mygatt of New York. The ceremony will be performed on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11, in the Congregational Church at New Canaan, Conn., and will be followed by a reception at Waveny, the country home of the bride's parents. The Reverend J. Howard Hoyt of New Canaan will perform the ceremony. Miss Lapham will have Miss Mary Gossler as her maid of honor, and she will also have as attendants her two small nephews, John and David Lapham, as pages.

Mr. Mygatt will have Dr. Henry A. Riley as his best man, and the ushers selected are Kenneth Mygatt, Max L. Van Norden, Theodore Crane, Addison A. Van Tine, Frederic H. McCoun, Kenneth F. Luthy, Leonard G. McAneny, and Gaillard F. Ravenel.

Miss Lapham made her debut last year. Mr. Mygatt was graduated from Williams College, and is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York. He was formerly a member of Squadron A. The engagement was announced in April last.

NOVELIST MARRIES.

Bernhard Kellerman, novelist, and Miss Mabel Giberson of New York, a daughter of Mrs. Indiana Giberson and the late Dr. Charles A. Giberson, were married on Aug. 20 in Berlin. Miss Gilberson has been a pupil of Jean de Reszke and a prima donna at the opera house in Plauen. Mr. Kellerman's novels include "The Tunnel," which was translated into English and had a large reading here.

Since the war Mr. Kellerman had been at the front, and he returned there directly after the wedding. He is the correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt.

J. D. SPRECKELS, JR., TO WED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—John D. Spreckels, Jr., son of the California capitalist, took out a license here today to wed Miss Sidi Wirt of Garden City, Kan. Spreckels's former wife was married in Honolulu last week to Frank W. Wakefield of this city, immediately upon the receipt of a cablegram that a final decree of divorce from Spreckels had been granted her.

McCoy-Pemberton Engagement.

J. H. McCoy of 91 Harrison Avenue, East Orange, N. J., has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Margaret McCoy, to Brock Pemberton. Miss McCoy spent several years abroad, where she studied music. She will return next week from spending the Summer with her brother, Milton McCoy on his ranch near Big Horn, Wyoming. Mr. Pemberton, who is a member of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES, is a graduate of Kansas University, class of '08. His former home was in Emporia, Kan., and he now lives at the City Club. Former Congressman Victor Murdock of Wichita, Kan., is his cousin. No date has been set for the wedding.

Cohen-Bartels Wedding.

Miss Clara Bartels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bartels, was married last Saturday night to Jacques Samson Cohen, at the home of A. Meyer, 2,249 East Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn. Dr. L. Pulvermacher performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Cohen will make their home at 352 St. John's Place, Brooklyn.

Miss Pratt to Wed in Country.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Richardson Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Pratt of 241 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, to Frank Jefferson Frost will take place on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 6, at 3:30 o'clock, at the country place of the bride's parents in Glen Cove, L. I. The ceremony, which will be witnessed by the nearest relatives and friends, will be followed by a large reception.

Miss Helen Farrar Engaged.

The engagement of Miss Helen Farrar, a daughter of the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar of 857 President Street, Brooklyn, to Harold E. del Castillo, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Rafael del Castillo, has been anounced. Mr. Castillo is a South American and is an importer in New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Arthur K. Buxton, cousin of Viscount Buxton, Governor General of South Africa, has left Newport for Twilight Park, Haines Falls, to join her daughter, Miss Jessie Culver Tredwell, at Minnehaha cottage, which she leased for September.

Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, who has been the guest of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Garrison at their Seabright cottage, left yesterday with Mr. Woodruff for their camp in Maine, to spend September.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper has arrived from Washington and is at the Astor. She will spend September and October here helping the woman suffrage campaign.

Miss Emily E. Sloane, whose engagement to Lieutenant Baron Amaury de la Grange was announced on Friday last, is booked to sail on Saturday with her father, Henry T. Sloane, on the Espagne for France.

William Law Stout of New York is spending the Summer at Château de Rochefort, Rochefort-en-terre, Brittany, assisting the French Wounded Emergency Fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke, and Mr. and Mrs. Angier B. Duke have arrived in town from Lenox.

FLORIDA COLONEL IS A RAPID WOOER

ASBURY PARK TOOK NOTICE

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 30.—Colonel Charles P. Lovell of Jacksonville, Fla., a veteran of the Spanish-American War and a prominent manufacturer, last night married Miss Fredericka Reed of Irving Place, New York, daughter of Professor R. C. Reed of the Columbia Seminary of South Carolina, after a three days' courtship. Professor Reed is an old friend of Colonel Lovell, who arrived here last Thursday and went to the Winthrop Hotel, where Miss Reed was spending the Summer. Colonel Lovell immediately became attentive, and the guests of the hotel said today that his intentions were evident from the beginning.

Last night the guests were sure that the Colonel had won his bride and were fully prepared to attend the wedding this morning. When the couple appeared in the breakfast room the guests were assembled and then, to their surprise, a marriage certificate signed by the Rev. S. Ross MacClements, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was shown them. It disclosed that Colonel and Mrs. Lovell had been married the night before at 7:30. Dr. Bertrand Drake and Mrs. Robert Flusser of New York were their attendants.

Quickly recovering from their surprise, the guests reconciled themselves to their disappointment at not being invited to the wedding, and then made up for it by getting up a wedding breakfast. While the wedding breakfast was proceeding, some of the guests got streamers, placards, rice, and old shoes, and decorated the Colonel's automobile. Their departure was delayed by felicitations, and when they dashed for the automobile it was too late to remove the evidence of their marriage, so Colonel and Mrs. Lovell arrived at the station and caught the "Bankers' Express" at 8:40 for New York, after a triumphal procession through the city.

NORDICA PEARLS GENUINE.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 30.—Three years ago as Mme. Lillian Nordica was about to start on a concert tour of the world, she called on Mrs. Adolphus Busch, wife of the brewer, and borrowed $10,000, giving as security a pearl necklace and a tiara supposed to be set with diamonds. Following the litigation in New York over the estate of the singer, who died in Java last year, an expert examined the jewels, which are in the brewery safe here, and announced that the pearls were genuine and worth more than the amount of the loan, but that the stones in the tiara were paste, and not diamonds.

Mrs. Busch is now in Germany and members of the family here refuse to discuss the matter. It was stated that they did not wish to give the impression that Mrs. Busch asked for the jewels as security, as Mme. Nordica insisted on leaving them with her.

Deny Morosco Has Donald Brian.

The announcement made by Oliver Morosco in yesterday's TIMES that he had secured the services of Donald Brian, the musical comedy star, and would present him in a comedy by Fannie and Frederic Hatton, entitled "Upstairs and Down," called forth a denial yesterday from the offices of the Charles Frohman Company. This said that Mr. Brian would continue as one of the stars of "The Girl From Utah" through its run and after that would appear in a new musical comedy with Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn.

Mr. Brian is acting this week in Atlantic City. A representative of Mr. Morosco said last night that Mr. Brian had given his word to join Mr. Morosco after Dec. 20.

"Lady from Starland" at Columbia.

The Columbia Theatre this week has another of those burlesque productions to which it points with pride as an example of the upward trend of this type of entertainment. It is a two-act burlesque, entitled "The Lady from Starland," and has for its comedians Al K. Hall and Don Barclay. Like other entertainments given in this theatre in the last few seasons, it does show a marked improvement over the vulgar and vapid burlesque show of a decade ago. In Mr. Barclay it has a comedian with a sure sense of the broadly comic. It will be remarkable if he escapes the directors of the many imminent revues.

"The Girl Who Smiles" at Longacre.

"The Girl Who Smiles" was transferred to the Longacre Theatre last night, to remain indefinitely. The Times Producing Corporation, which produced the musical play, has obtained control of the theatre and will present its own attractions in it hereafter. Adolf Philipp composed the music of "The Girl Who Smiles" and with Edward A. Paulton wrote the book and lyrics. Natalie Alt, the prima donna of "Adele," which was by the same authors, heads the company which includes William Danforth, Paul Decker, Marie Fanchonetti, Fred Walton, Grace Leigh, Joseph Phillips and George Baldwin. Lucille Saunders has replaced Jennie Dickinson in the rôle of Mme. Boullere.

Keith Vaudeville in Brooklyn.

Two of Keith's Brooklyn theatres began their new seasons yesterday afternoon, the Prospect and the Bushwick. Both will be devoted, as formerly, to vaudeville, and special programs made up of headliners were arranged for both for the first week. Odiva in her aquatic act, some of the minstrels who used to be with "Honey Boy" George Evans, and Mary Melville have places on the bill at the Prospect. The Bushwick program includes Nat Wills, who gives one of his tramp monologues; Dorothy Jardon in a repertoire of songs, and Francis Dooley and Corrine Sales offering a skit called "That's Silly."

Waller to Return in "Gamblers All."

Lewis Waller, who made his American début when "The Garden of Allah" was given in the Century Theatre, will return to New York this season in "Gamblers All," in which he is now appearing in Wyndham's Theatre, London. Madge Titheradge, who was seen here in "A Butterfly on the Wheel," is playing the principal feminine rôle, and she will come to New York to act it. The first performance will be given around holiday time.

Four Mortons Reunited.

The Four Mortons—Sam, Kitty, Clara, and Paul—were reunited yesterday afternoon for the first time in five years or more, when this favorite of the old-time vaudeville acts was brought in as an unannounced extra on the Palace program. Herbert Williams contributes amusingly to a bill that again has as the chief feature Gertrude Hoffmann's abbreviated version of "Sumurun." This has proved so potent an attraction that the Palace is still turning them away.

Salzedo, Harpist, Served France.

Carlos Salzedo, the harpist, arrived yesterday from Bordeaux on the French liner Espagne to make a concert tour through the United States under the management of Catherine Bamman. He served for several months in the French trenches until he was attacked with rheumatism through lying on the damp ground, and had to go to the hospital at Carcasonne. Charles Dalmores, the French tenor, was in the trenches with him, he said, and he left him in the hospital at Carcasonne.

MISS SMITH WED IN SECRET.

Announcement was made last night of the marriage on Wednesday last of Miss Margaret Sinclair Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith of this city, and Kerner Easton, at St. Luke's Church, Noroton, Conn. The news, which will come as a surprise to society, was made known by Mr. and Mrs. Smith at their Summer home, Miralta, Field Park Point, Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Smith said he was a bit surprised, too, although he had no objection to the marriage, and had known that his daughter was engaged.

"We did want them to wait a while on account of the youth of my daughter," he said; "we asked them to wait until next Winter. They had wanted the marriage to take place soon.

"They tried to reach us to tell us they were going to get married, but we were out motoring and they could not. So they were married by themselves. Mr. Easton's brother, Gerard Easton, was his best man, and a young girl friend of my daughter attended her. The Rev. Hiram Van Kirk married them."

Mr. Smith is Dock Commissioner of this city. His new son-in-law is a lawyer, with offices at 71 Broadway, and lives at 124 West Eighty-sixth Street. He is the son of William J. Easton, who has recently been on a Western trip in connection with railroad rate cases.

MRS. WOODFORD TO MARRY.

Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, widow of General Woodford, United States Minister to Spain when the Spanish-American war commenced, is engaged to marry Dr. Henry L. Schelling of 264 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, according to the announcement made yesterday. Mrs. Woodford has been spending the Summer at her country place, Lyndon Lodge, in Westport, Conn.

She was married to General Woodford in September, 1900, later accompanying him on a tour of the Courts of Europe. Her city home is 13 West Twelfth Street. She was Miss Isabel Hanson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Hanson of this city.

Dr. Schelling, who is a widower, is one of the founders of the Bushwick Hospital in Brooklyn, and for more than sixteen years was a surgeon there. He was also surgeon for the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railway Company for twenty years. Dr. Schelling was graduated from New York University in 1889.

Mrs. Woodford has been a widow since 1913. Dr. Schelling said last night that no date had been set for their wedding.

SOCIETY TO AID OSBORNE.

Offers to Assist the Warden in Bringing About Prison Reforms.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 30.—As a result of the speech of Thomas Mott Osborne at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel last night, many society men and women have offered to assist the Warden of Sing Sing in his prison reforms. At a meeting held in the cottage of Miss Alice Preston this morning, a report was made by the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor of the New York State Prison Council. Considerable work has been accomplished by this organization, which is actively supporting Warden Osborne in his reform work.

The Prison Council will carry on its work through a committee representing the needs and activities of prison work. Each committee will include a representative from each of the New York State prisons and reformatories.

It was said after the meeting that cards would be sent out requesting the support and co-operation of those interested in this effort. Miss Preston was appointed Secretary, and will have an office at Broadway and 116th Street.

Warden Osborne outlined the formation of the New York State Prison Council before departing for Sing Sing this afternoon. He said that the national body thought that each State should have its local council and, as many people desired to help, eleven committees were appointed to act and work together and join one of these councils as an associate member. Similar councils are to be formed in other States, including Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Some of the heads of the committees for the New York Council, Warden Osborne stated, in addition to Miss Preston, are Doctor Egbert of Columbia University, Chairman of the Committee on Education; Mrs. Edward Shepard Hewitt, Chairman of the Committee on Hygiene; Judge William E. Wadhams, Chairman of the Committee on Prison Law; Miss Preston, on Music, and Mrs. Conde Nast, on Prisoners' Families.

NEW OFFER TO GOETHALS.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 30.—To General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, the management of the City of Portland will be offered by a group of business men backed by S. Benson. General Goethals arrived in Portland this afternoon with his wife and two children. They will be here three days, leaving Thursday for San Francisco, where special arrangements have been made by exposition officials to honor the man whose work gave the Fair a reason for existence.

Prominent men talked the city management matter over tonight with the army man at a conference. Mr. Benson, who is a wealthy timber man and who says he will give $5,000 toward General Goethals's salary, said: "Of course, it is highly problematical whether he will accept. He refused the offer of $25,000 to become City Manager of Dayton. But at that time he still had work to do on the Canal Zone. Now that that is finished he may be induced to accept the Portland offer. We are now paying our Commissioners $25,000. We could and would pay him that."

CURRAN ACTING MAYOR.

Corporal Leaves Plattsburg as Mitchel and McAneny Are Away.

Henry H. Curran, Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, yesterday sat in the Mayor's chair, in the absence of Mayor Mitchel and President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen. He came to New York from Plattsburg, but said he would have preferred to stay at the camp as Corporal Curran. The Acting Mayor will be in charge of the city until Sept. 6. He cannot appoint or remove unless the Mayor has been absent thirty days.

"The city should have a Mayor or an Acting Mayor, and that is the only reason why I left camp," said Mr. Curran. "I feel proud at having been promoted to Corporal when several soldiers in the camp were actually demoted during our experience. I also feel proud to preside over the great City of New York."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The first performance of "Brother Bill," a new comedy by Thomas Landen, was given last night at Atlantic City. James J. Corbett appeared in the principal role.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and the company that will be seen with him on his third and, perhaps, final tour of America will sail for New York on Sept. 25. The tour will begin on Oct. 11 in Richmond, and will embrace only cities in which the star has not appeared the two preceding years.

George Mooser has secured the rights to Nina Wilcox Putnam's story, "The Impossible Boy," and it is being dramatized by Mrs. White. Peggy O'Neil will be presented in it in the role of the boy.

PAUL ARMSTRONG, PLAYWRIGHT, DIES

Paul Armstrong, the playwright, died suddenly at 8 o'clock last night from heart disease at his home, 829 Park Avenue. Early yesterday afternoon he went with two friends in his automobile to one of the railway terminals. There they met Mrs. Armstrong, and then went for a ride through Central Park. When near the Fifty-ninth Street entrance Mr Armstrong complained of feeling ill. He was hurried home, and Dr. Charles A. Duncan of 233 Lexington Avenue, the family physician, was sent for, but was unable to save him.

Mr. Armstrong had not been in good health for a long time. Two months ago he returned from Baltimore, where he had spent a month and a half in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, being treated for enlargement of the heart. While he seemed much better on his return home, it was known that he was far from well, and his sudden death was not unexpected.

Mr. Armstrong was born near St. Joseph, Mo., and was in his forty-seventh year. After trying a number of vocations he turned to journalism and became a reporter on The Chicago Record-Herald. He did general reporting for some time and then became a writer on sporting topics, under the nom de plume of "Right Cross," and among other subjects wrote the accounts of a number of championship pugilistic battles.

In 1904 he abandoned newspaper work and wrote a number of sketches and plays, but was unsuccessful until Willis Sweatnam appeared in his vaudeville sketch, "Blue Grass." His first successful play was "The Heir to the Hoorah," which was produced by the late Kirke La Shelle. His next success was "Salomy Jane," in which Miss Eleanor Robson, now Mrs. August Belmont, was starred and which ran for many months.

Mr. Armstrong had the assistance of other writers in many of his plays; notable among these were Winchell Smith, Rex Beach, and Wilson Mizner. He was unusually successful, and many of his plays enjoyed long runs. Starting with 1907, there was seldom a season that one of his plays was not running at a New York theatre. In January, 1907, "Salomy Jane" was produced, and during 1908 "Society and the Bulldog" was given at Daly's Theatre, "Via Wireless" at the Liberty, and "Blue Grass" at the Majestic. In 1909 "Going Some" was put on at the Belasco during April; "Alias Jimmy Valentine" was given at Wallack's in January, 1910; "The Greyhound" was successful at the Astor Theatre in March, 1911, and "The Escape" appeared at the Lyric Theatre in September, 1913. During the same month his one-act comedy "Woman Proposes" was acted at Keith's Union Square Theatre. In September, 1914, "The Bludgeon" was produced at the Maxine Elliott Theatre.

Mr. Armstrong's career was an active one, and he followed several businesses before he became a successful playwright. At one time he was a licensed master of steam vessels on the Great Lakes. After writing "Alias Jimmy Valentine," he became greatly interested in criminals, and in 1911 went into Judge Rosalsky's court and got permission to "adopt" James Brown, a lifelong lawbreaker, who was up for sentence. He planned to give the man a new start in life and reform him. The attempt ended in disaster, as Brown was sentenced to Sing Sing for two years and six months, a few months later.

Mr. Armstrong was married to Miss Rella Abel in London in 1899, and she obtained her final decree of divorce from him in December, 1913. Their children were Anabel, Myrell, and Elizabeth Armstrong, all of whom survive their father.

Ten days after his first wife received her final decree, he married Miss Kittie Cassidy, who was the leading woman of several of his plays, notably "The Deep Purple," "A Romance of the Underworld," and "The Escape," under the stage name of Catherine Calvert. Mrs. Catherine C. Armstrong and their infant son survive him.

His funeral will take place at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning from his late home. The body will be cremated in accordance with his wish.

R. S. PERRIN DROPS DEAD.

Raymond S. Perrin, author of several books on philosophy, dropped dead yesterday afternoon at Eighth Avenue and 125th Street. He had registered on Sunday night at the Hotel Braddock, at 126th Street and Eighth Avenue, and gave his address as New York. In his pocket were a railroad ticket to Summit, N. J.; a letter acknowledging the payment of $59.39 to the Madison Trust Company, and a letter from the Colonial Fireplace Company of Chicago.

Mr. Perrin formerly lived in Chatham, N. J. He was born in New York in 1849, and was President of Perrin, Payson & Co. from 1878 to 1901 and of the Perrin Varnish Company for some years after that. He was a student of philosophy all his life, and wrote three books—"A Student's Dream," which appeared anonymously; "The Religion of Philosophy," and "The Evolution of Knowledge."

He was formerly a member of the National Arts Club, and in 1909 was exonerated on charges of conduct unbecoming a member in bringing in a process server as a guest. The persons he wished to serve with papers in a suit and application for injunction were staying at the club and could not be reached outside.

J. W. Harry James, Engineer, Dies.

J. W. Harry James, a noted civil and mechanical engineer, of recent years connected with the American Bridge Company of Wilmington, Del., died on Sunday at his home in Chester, Penn. He was a native of England and came to this country twenty years ago to take charge of mining and engineering operations. Prior to coming here he managed important engineering enterprises in England, France, Russia, and India, and among the various Government positions he held was that of consulting engineer of the Department of Public Works of the Empire of India. Mr. James is survived by his widow, who was Miss Helen Strickland, daughter of the late John W. Adams Strickland of this city.

W. M. Clark Dies at Summer Home.

SUFFRAGE PARADE OCT. 23.

Work for a great suffrage parade—the promoters hope it will be the biggest the world has ever known—was begun definitely yesterday at the Empire State Campaign Committee Headquarters at 303 Fifth Avenue. The parade, in which it is expected from 20,000 to 25,000 women will march down Fifth Avenue, will not take place until Oct. 23, but it means hard work daily from now until that date.

Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Chairman of the Parade Committee, moved her business office yesterday from her own house to Room 2003 of the campaign headquarters, bringing her secretary with her. Another secretary will go to work immediately, and other suffragists will join the working force. Mrs. Mary Beard is coming from her Summer home in Milford, Conn., and Mrs. Marie Jennie Howe will take charge of the big national division of the parade. This will represent twenty-six countries in which the Women's International Alliance, of which Mrs. Carrie Chapman is President, is organized.

Preliminary parades, to be called Yellow Rallies for Suffrage, will be held during September. The first rally will form at 7:45 P. M. next Saturday at First Avenue, Sixtieth and Sixty-second Streets. The start will be made at 8.30, and the parade will move from Sixtieth Street up First Avenue to 115th Street and disband at Jefferson Park. These are called Yellow Rallies because the marchers will wear yellow capes and carry yellow spheres for lanterns. Manhattan will have two more of these rallies and Brooklyn two. Mrs. H. Edward Dreier will have charge of the rallies in Brooklyn.

DOLLAR GIFTS FOR SUFFRAGE.

On Oct. 1 Women Will Ask Friends to Help the Cause.

"Show the World That New York Women Earn Their Vote" was the slogan put out by the City Committee of the Woman Suffrage Party in inaugurating a "Dollar Day" at their meeting held yesterday at the party headquarters, 48 East Thirty-fourth Street. The official "Dollar Day" will be Oct. 1, when every friend or sympathizer with the suffragists is asked to give a dollar to support the work. But dollars began to come in immediately to Mrs. Martha Wentworth Suffren, Chairman of the Dollar Day Committee, and the members of the City Committee started the fund before their meeting was over. The call to the faithful for "Dollar Day" says:

"Wet must have bands, banners, halls for thousands of meetings, and stacks of literature to give away. A dollar is not much, but we can carry New York for equal suffrage if we can gather enough of them to make a fitting finish to a splendid campaign." It winds up: "Give a dollar! Save a dollar! Beg a dollar! Earn a dollar!"

"Dollar Day" will be celebrated with festivities at the headquarters, and every one is invited to be present and take tea, which will be served from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be a big flower-trimmed box to receive the dollars which will be sent in.

SUFFRAGE FETE AT GREYSTONE

German-American Committee to be Aided by Untermyers.

Miss Katherine Dreier, Chairman of the German-American Committee of the Woman Suffrage Party, announced yesterday that since Aug. 2 the membership of her committee had increased from 1,645 to 2,391. The committee has attended twenty German picnics. A big ball is to be given at Ebling's Casino next month.

The most brilliant festival of the season for suffrage will be under the auspices of the Woman Suffrage Party (Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman) at Greystone-on-Hudson, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, on Sept. 11. It will be a garden party, and the Woman Suffrage Party and its German-American Committee will be the beneficiaries. There will be a special musical program, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Mrs. Raymond Robbins will speak.

Robert Simpson Dies Suddenly.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 30.—Robert Simpson, chief editorial writer of The Gazette-Times of Pittsburgh, Penn., died suddenly here tonight in the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway station as he was about to board a train for home. Heart disease is given as the cause of death.

Mr. Simpson, who was 55 years old, became an editorial writer on The Gazette-Times after he had been Washington correspondent for years and later night editor. He had been in ill-health for some time and was stricken when returning from Kinmount, Ont., where he had been recuperating.

Philip Scanlan.

Philip Scanlan, a former Police Commissioner of Newark, N. J., is dead at his home, 169 Central Avenue. He had been in the German Hospital for an operation in the hope of saving his life. When the surgeons found that Mr. Scanlan was suffering from a cancerous growth on the liver they abandoned the operation. Mr. Scanlan was 63 years old and was born in Newark. He was well known as a Democrat and was a member of several fraternal and political organizations.

Herbert G. Torrey Dead.

Herbert Gray Torrey, Chief United States Assayer in New York for thirty-seven years until he resigned in 1910, died on Sunday at his home at Hilltop, Stirling, N. J., in his seventy-fourth year. He was a son of the late Professor John Torrey of Columbia University and was graduated from the College of the City of New York, later becoming assistant to his father, who was the first Assayer here and who was appointed by President Pierce.

Obituary Notes.

WILLIAM P. MILLER, at one time village President of Freeport, L. I., and prominent in Masonic circles, died on Sunday at his home in Freeport in his sixty-sixth year. Mr. Miller was a charter member of the South Side Yacht Club and a member of Allaire Lodge, F. and A. M., and the Freeport Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

VALENTINE KORN, a well-known cigar manufacturer of Brooklyn, where he had been in business for more than fifty years, died on Saturday at his home, 446 State Street. He was born in Mainz, Germany, eighty years ago, and was a member of the old Brooklyn Maennerchor and of the Brooklyn Saengerbund.

EBENEZER SEELY, who died at his home, 506 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, on last Saturday, was one of the first mineral water manufacturers in that borough and for years did business under the firm name of E. Seely & Sons, with a plant at North Oxford Street. Mr. Seely was 79 years old, a Free Mason, and a Royal Arcanumite.

Mrs. ELIZABETH RAWLINSON, 68 years old, wife of William S. Rawlinson, died on last Saturday at her home, 414 Fourth Street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Rawlinson was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and was a sister of Mrs. Isabella M. Christie, a prominent suffrage leader who died in Bayonne, N. J., last week. Mrs. Rawlinson passed away without knowing that her sister had died.

WILLIAM HENRY SATTERLY, a civil war veteran and active in the work of the Grand Army of the Republic, died at his home in Blue Point, L. I., on Saturday at the age of 71 years. Mr. Satterly is survived by his wife and two daughters.

MUDGE IS MEDALIST IN AMATEUR GOLF

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30.—Dudley Mudge of the Town and Country Club of St. Paul, Minn., won the gold medal for low qualifying score in the second and final qualifying round in the United States Golf Association championship tournament at the Country Club today. A score of 152 for the thirty-six holes gave this honor to the young man from the North. His card was two strokes better than that of R. A. Gardner of Hinsdale, and it beat the figures turned in by Francis Ouimet, the present amateur champion, by three. A magnificent afternoon round, in which Mudge negotiated a par 73, despite the adverse conditions, was responsible for his position as medalist. He had a 79 in the morning, which was not bad, but his afternoon performance was almost phenomenal, every hole in the last nine, except one, being played in an even four.

Perhaps the fact that Mudge lives in Minnesota had something to do with his showing. While most of the other golfers were so cold that they hardly could do themselves justice or else were so wrapped up that it interfered with their swings, this hardy youth just breezed along as though it had been a balmy Summer day. With the wind blowing a veritable gale in the morning, and the thermometer low enough to make overcoats and sweaters a positive necessity, the conditions were not very favorable to low scores. In fact, they were very much the reverse, and anybody who had a card of 80 or better for the morning round had reason to be proud of his score. In the afternoon it was slightly warmer and considerably less windy, and the quality of golf improved accordingly. In the face of the weather, the quality of play throughout the day was excellent.

With the exception of Ouimet and Sawyer, the two main hopes of the Western delegation, none of the highly-touted stars extended himself particularly in the qualifying play. Jerome D. Travers was content with a card of 162, while "Chick" Evans had exactly the same figure, bad putting in the afternoon holding his score down. A score of 168 was enough to qualify, three men playing off a tie for two places at the foot of the list. George V. Rotan and J. N. Stearns, 3d, doing the best work on the extra holes.

Ty Cobb, who is a skillful and enthusiastic golfer, took advantage of the Tigers' day off and followed some of his favorites around the course. He thinks that Jesse Guilford is a wonder because he is the greatest slugger in the field. Guilford drives a more wicked ball than even the champions. When Ty saw him drive the ball out of the lot from home plate at Navin Field Sunday he made arrangements right away to see him on the course. Cobb also followed Ouimet, Travers, and Evans around for some time, picking up pointers to assist him in his own game.

What is the field worth against Ouimet and Travers? Or against Ouimet, Travers and Evans? Even money is the answer in both cases of most of the bets made here tonight. That the field, with Evans in and Evans out, should be worth exactly the same, sounds strictly illogical, but it is just about as logical as anything in golf. Actually getting down to scientific betting, figuring the dope and all that sort of a thing, the field isn't worth anything with Evans counted in or out of the field. Experts say that the championship will go to either Jerome Travers or Francis Ouimet.

The chance of the field depends almost entirely on eliminating Travers and Ouimet before the finals, or Travers, Ouimet, and Evans, if you count the "Big Three" against the field instead of the "Big Two." Only once since 1899 has the national champion been defeated in the finals—this when Ouimet won from Travers last year. And rules cannot be applied to Ouimet. It is almost beyond belief that all three should be eliminated before the finals, and practically certain that if one of the trio gets that far he will win. If Evans enters the finals with either of the others he will not be the favorite.

Last year Ouimet and Travers went through four hard matches before they reached the finals. To get there Travers put out Schlottman, Byers, Seeley, and Travis. Ouimet fought his way through Marston, Howland, Robert Gardner, and Fownes. It is possible to pick out tougher combinations, but the big question is: Will the stars have to face them?

There is not a bit of future calculation to comfort those who place their faith in the field. The only bit of cheer they have is contained in Ouimet's comment, when asked about the probable winner. "Golf is a funny game," was the way the champion figured the possibilities. "If Ty Cobb played golf instead of baseball, and if he opposed me in a match, and I had him 10 up and 10 to play, I would not feel safe. As a matter of fact, I would hate to oppose Cobb more than any man that I have met in golf. His determination, that indomitable spirit and his never-beaten attitude, would make him a most dangerous opponent anywhere and at any time."

That is what Ouimet said after having Cobb as part of his gallery today. Besides being a great golfer, Ouimet is an enthusiastic baseball patron. He has seen Cobb play ball many times and believes him to be supreme in that field. It is the mental attitude that Ouimet takes into consideration above everything else in Cobb's case, and, according to his conclusions, Cobb would have made as great a golfer as he is a ballplayer. "A man with that determination could do most anything in sport," says Ouimet.

R. A. Gardner, Chicago, (154,) versus L. L. Bredin, Detroit, (164;) T. M. Sherman, Utica, (160,) versus George V. Rotan, Philadelphia, (168;) D. L. Sawyer, Wheaton, Ill., (156,) versus Charles Evans, Jr., Chicago, (162;) Jerome Travers, Upper Montclair, N. J., (162,) versus George A. Crump, Philadelphia, (167;) Max Marston, Springfield, N. J., (157,) versus Jesse Guilford, Boston, (160;) Dudley Mudge, St. Paul, (152,) versus Hamilton Kerr, Manchester, Vt., (163;) Howard B. Lee, Detroit, (162,) versus Eben M. Byers, Pittsburgh, (165;) Davison Herron, Pittsburgh, (159,) versus Nelson Whitney, New Orleans, (157;) Robert Hunter, Pasadena, (163,) versus Alfred C. Ulmer, Jacksonville, Fla., (165;) John G. Anderson, Mount Vernon, N. Y., (161,) versus Reuben G. Bush, New Orleans, (163;) J. B. Schlotman, Detroit, (161,) versus C. H. Gardner, Providence, R. I., (167;) George S. Lyon, Toronto, (164,) versus J. N. Stearns, Williamsport Penn., (168;) Albert Seckel, Chicago, (165,) versus Sherrill Sherman, Utica, (164;) W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburgh, (166,) versus James D. Standish, Jr., Detroit, (167;) Francis Ouimet, Woodland, Mass., (155,) versus W. H. Gardner, 2d, Buffalo (166;) Paul Hunter, Chicago, (157,) versus Gardner White, Flushing, L. I., (162.)

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30.—Although the weather had no mercy on the contestants in the thirty-six-hole medal play qualification test of the national amateur golf championship tournament over the links of the Country Club of Detroit today there were instances where the players made par and bogey look like duffers. Take, for instance, Dudley Mudge, the Yale golfer, who surprised the regulars by walking off with the medal with a score of 152. Had it not been for a rather freakish three at the second hole in the afternoon the chances are he would have had to play off at some future date for the prize. This second hole is 447 yards and unusually difficult today because of the head wind. Mudge reached the green's edge on his second shot, a full "bang" with the brassie, and then holed the ball from a distance of 40 feet.

While at Yale last season Mudge confined his athletic efforts to catching on one of the baseball teams, but hereafter he will have to help the Blue on the links. Although he won the Minnesota championship a few weeks ago this is the first time that Mudge has tried his luck in a national affair. When the round was over his only regret was that he had not taken a jigger to drive to the home green instead of a midiron. At any rate, his tee shot overran, thereby preventing him from getting better than a four.

"I shall not forget that shot of mine at the ninth hole," remarked W. H. Gardner, the Buffalo golfer, as he stood near the score board after the round. The shot in question was a full mashie for a 2. This hole is 401 yards in length.

"It was a beauty," said Joseph Schlotman, who played with Gardner. "The ball struck only a few yards in front of the flag and barely had force enough to reach the cup."

How different was the experience of R. C. Long, a Stanton Heights player, who came to grief at the seventh, the shortest hole on the course. His tee shot, sliced to the rough, was lying so badly that no less than twelve strokes were required in getting clear. He took fourteen for the hole and thus ended his national championship aspirations.

Then there was the sixth hole, a matter of 426 yards, which big Robert Hunter made in 3. It was only a few years ago that Hunter was playing for Yale, a college, by the way, that was called to mind a good many times during the day. As previously mentioned, Mudge is a student at the New Haven institution and so is W. H. Gardner, while Robert Gardner, the Hinsdale player, who won the national title in 1909, is an erstwhile wearer of the blue.

According to Chick Evans, it was a sad sort of a day from beginning to end. "It was terrible in the afternoon," he remarked, "for, beginning at the seventh, I took 3 putts on nine consecutive greens." Little wonder he could not do better than 162 for the day.

That was the score Jerome Travers made. The national open champion declared his game was generally bad, which was quite true, though to those who watched him closely, it was noticed that his mashie failed him most. His putting also left wrong.

Francis Ouimet could not complain. He was there at all times and his only slip of any consequence was an approach at the sixteenth. The ball was played for a pitch and run, failing to move after the carry.

When E. M. Byers stood on the eighteenth tee he was told that in all probability 165 would have to be made to qualify. It is not often in this game that a golfer can do stunts when required, but this time the Pittsburgh man, after driving to the far side of the green, ran down a 40-footer for a 2. He got his 165 and, as it turned out, qualified with something to spare.

When Henry J. Topping took 26 putts on the first nine holes in the afternoon, he knew it was "all off." Those putts represented 8 wasted strokes, yet with all he went out in 47. Later on the Greenwich man withdrew.

Dudley Mudge, morning round—
Out—4 5 5 5 3 5 4 6 4—41

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30.—One of the West's best hopes for the championship will be eliminated in the first round of match play tomorrow, according to the drawings made by the U. S. G. A. Executive Committee after the completion of today's 36-hole qualifying round.

Ned Sawyer and "Chick" Evans are the players who have been regarded as the favorites from this section of the country who are pitted against each other in Tuesday's 36-hole match play. One must go. There is a difference of opinion regarding the probable winner. Some favor the present Western amateur champion, while others figure Sawyer as the Westerner who will remain in the running. None of the Eastern cracks, that is, none of those who were spoken of as members of the one-two-three class, was paired with another, which means that Travers and Ouimet will practically be assured of places in the semi-finals; at least, unless a big upset interferes with the dope. Travers, the open champion, drew George A. Crump of Pine Valley, while Ouimet, who holds the laurels the survivors of the qualifying round are striving for, will meet W. H. Gardner 2d.

Coast Golfer Wounded in War.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—News was received here today that A. A. ("Sandy") Cuthbertson of San Francisco, a leading Pacific Coast golfer, was wounded in the side during the fighting in Northern France and was in a field hospital. His wounds were not serious, it was stated. Mr. Cuthbertson received a commission in the Black Watch Highlanders of the Forty-first Battalion soon after the European war began.

Cyclists in Road Run Next Sunday.

The New York division of the Century Road Club Association will make another attempt next Sunday to hold its third annual pleasure run and carnival of sports. The last two Sundays rain interfered and spoiled the attempts of the association to hold the pleasure run. If the weather permits the cyclists will leave Columbus Circle next Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for the sprint races which will be held.

Rain prevented the beginning of the thirty-fifth annual all-comers tennis championship singles yesterday on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, L. I., and the battles for the national title were postponed until 10 o'clock this morning. President Robert D. Wrenn of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, Julian S. Myrick, President of the West Side Club, and E. F. Torrey, Secretary of the National Association, were on hand to officially open the tournament, but after viewing the field and inspecting the special courts, which were protected by large tarpaulins, it was decided to follow the same schedule as had been arranged for the opening day and the first round of 128 competitors will be staged today.

Everything was in readiness to start at the appointed time. Tucker, who has charge of the turf courts, had his men ready to mark the lines, when the drizzle turned into a downpour. A few of the players joined the members of the committee when the postponement was decided upon. The weather cleared after noon, when the playing surface dried out under the warm sun. The tarpaulins were also removed until nightfall, when they were again spread over the special courts.

The return matches between the East and West will be played on the West Side courts Friday and Saturday, Sept. 10 and 11. President Myrick yesterday announced that Harold H. Hackett, former Davis Cup captain, Craig Biddle of Philadelphia, and Edwin Sheafe of Boston had been appointed a committee to select the Eastern team.

The star contests at 10 o'clock will bring Cedric A Major, the Cornell player who recently won the Connecticut State championship, against Bernard C. Law of Princeton. At the same time Ward Dawson, the Californian, will play J. C. McKay. An hour later D. S. Watters, the Louisiana State champion, opposes Alrick H. Man, Jr., former Yale captain.

Maurice E. McLoughlin will make his first swing of the racquet in his effort to regain the championship in the first of the matinée matches scheduled at 2:15. He will play Ernest Fritz Kuhn, the German player. At the same time Charles M. Bull, Jr., of the Crescent A. C., will battle with Lyle E. Mahan, as it is planned to play two matches simultaneously on the great stretch of turf between the grand stands, which have been lined for four courts.

Two of the former Davis Cup players—Harold H. Hackett and Frederick B. Alexander—will take the grand stand courts at the finish of the other battles. Hackett will play William M. Johnston, the young Californian who has been performing so ably, and Alexander and Nathaniel W. Niles, the Longwood Club crack, will be opponents.

The tennis dinner was held last night at the Vanderbilt Hotel, when about 150 officials and contestants were the guests of the West Side Tennis Club. It was an informal affair, and the service was in accord with the training of the players. J. S. Myrick, President of the club, occupied the chair, and among those present were:

President Robert D. Wrenn, Secretary Edward F. Torrey, George T. Adee, E. C. Conlin, Harry A. Parker, John A. Tompkins, Harry S. Martin, M. Ely, R. D. Little, Marshal Peabody, Charles Chambers, R. Norris Williams, 2d; Maurice E. McLoughlin, Cray Biddle, Sidney Thayer, Jr., Walter L. Pate, Fred C. Inman, William M. Johnston, Clarence J. Griffin, Ward Dawson, Walter Merrill Hall, T. R. Pell, Irving C. Wright, George Wright, Abraham Bassford, Jr., Nathaniel W. Niles, A. H. Coffey, Fred C. Baggs, Frederick B. Alexander, Harold H. Hackett, Watson M. Washburn, Benjamin M. Phillips, S. Howard Voshell, E. S. Moore, George M. Church, W. Halsey Wood, Ralph C. Baggs, J. H. Blackstone, Robert Rand, H. A. Gunter, E. H. Hooker, Bruno Huhn, Lawrence Curtis, Lieutenant W. S. Anderson, E. W. Peaslee, C. L. Childs, A. M. Kidder, Lyle E. Mahan, P. S. Brinsmead, J. G. McKay, Ludlow Vandeventer, Russell Brown, Herbert L. Bowman, S. W. Merrihew, Dr. Barringer, Edward Hubbard, George Phelps, Theodore Hetzler, and T. Mansfield.

Yachts in Cape May Cup Race.

A challenge has been issued by James C. Brady and Nicholas F. Brady, owners of the yacht Atlantic II., to the yacht Katoura, owned by Robert E. Tod, for the Cape May Cup. The race will be sailed under the auspices of the New York Yacht Club some time in September, the date to be mutually agreed upon. It is understood that the amateur crew of Vanitie will assist in the sailing of the Atlantic II. and that the crew of Resolute will assist in the sailing of Katoura. There is a rumor in yachting circles that Atlantic II. may challenge Katoura for the Brenton Reef Cup.

Cowler and Hemple to Box.

Tom Cowler, Jim Corbett's protege, whose showing against Gunboat Smith several weeks ago was disappointing, will make another attempt to show his ability as a heavyweight boxer at St. Nicholas Rink tomorrow evening, when he will box ten rounds with Jack Hemple. The ten-round semi-final will bring together Harry Thomas, the English lightweight, and Andy Cortez, the rugged boxer from the east side.

JOHNSON TO ROUT BETTORS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League is exercised over the stories from Boston that gambling is flourishing unchecked in the ball parks there. He said today that he would not have paid any attention to the reports had not the American League Park been mentioned, and now Ban is going after the bettors with renewed vigor. He is going East tomorrow, and may start something as soon as he gets to the Hub.

"I think that the charge that there is gambling at the American League Park in Boston is unjust," said Mr. Johnson. "We stopped gambling there a few years ago, and we have done the same in every city in the circuit. We arrested forty-nine in the Philadelphia grand stand at one time, which showed that we were in earnest about the crusade."

President Johnson will head for Philadelphia, and he will also make flying trips to New York and Washington. While in the East he will look into the reported raids of the Federal League, and see how they can be checked.

"RUBE" SOLD FOR $2,500.

It has definitely been decided that "Rube" Marquard, recently released by the Giants, will go to the Brooklyn National League team. Wilbert Robinson, John J. McGraw, and Charles H. Ebbets reached an agreement at a conference yesterday, and Brooklyn will take over the player at a price said to be $2,500.

All of the major league clubs had waived claim on Marquard, and he was released by the Giants to Toronto. He refused to join the minors, however, and after a talk with Wilbert Robinson on Saturday the Brooklyn club made an offer to the Giants of the waiver price, $1,500, for the player. It is understood that McGraw at the conference with Ebbets and Robinson raised the valuation of Marquard to $2,500, and this price Brooklyn agreed to pay.

Playground Day at Polo Grounds.

Today will be Playground Day at the Polo Grounds, and more than 5,000 boys who have been playing in the Park Playground League will attend the double-header between the Giants and the Cubs. The young players will be accompanied by Park Commissioner Ward, Supervisor W. J. Lee and his staff. The Playground championships will be decided on Thursday, Sept. 2. The league includes baseball teams of every race and creed, among them being the All-Chinese, All-Negro, All-Irish, All-Jewish, All-German, All-Italian, All-Greek and All-Polish teams.

Twenty Entries for Auto Race.

With twenty entries aready made and the date of closing the list postponed from Sept. 1 to the 20th, it is expected that there will be thirty-six cars entered in the Astor Cup race, which will open the Sheepshead Bay Speedway on Oct. 2. There will be a big parade of autos from the Motor Club of America to the race track on Sept. 18 to celebrate the formal start of practice for the big race, but the real tuning up of the racing cars will commence on Sept. 24 or 25, and from that date until the day of the race the racing machines will be tearing around the track in preparation for the 350-mile grind. In viw of the fact that only thirty-two cars can start in the race, official speed trials will be held if there are more than thirty-two entries, and the allotted number of cars making the fastest time will go to the barrier on the day of the race. All the best known drivers of international reputation have entered.

Work on the track is being rushed as fast as possible, and the big course will be in shape witehin a couple of weeks. It was not intended to complete the entire bleachers before the race, because of the limited time, but the big demand for tickets has necessitated more room for spectators, and a big extra gang of carpenters has been engaged and are working overtime to finish the stands. Much of the parking space has already been reserved and it is probable that the largest crowd that ever witnessed an auto race on an enclosed track will be present at Sheepshead Bay on Oct. 2.

Savage Favorite in Tonight's Bout.

Jim Savage is a decided favorite over Charley Weinert in the main bout at Madison Square Garden's boxing show tonight. Savage's condition, and his recent victory over Al Reich, have prompted his admirers to wager on his chances against the conqueror of Coffey, Smith, and other good men. Interest in the match in the vicinity of Newark, where both men hail from, is high.

Savage and Weinert have been rivals for the past two years, previous attempts to get them together proving futile. The men will go into the ring both weighing close to 188 pounds, with the physical advantages in Weinert's favor.

FREAK HOME RUN WINS FOR PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—A freak home-run drive by Whitted with one man out in the tenth inning gave Philadelphia a victory over St. Louis today, 4 to 3. Whitted's drive struck the bleacher wall, bounded against Bescher's chest and caromed into the stand. St. Louis scored two runs in the third inning by hitting Alexander's delivery hard. The latter was withdrawn in the seventh for a pinch hitter, Becker, and during this session Philadelphia staged a rally and took the lead. Manager Huggins protested so vigorously that Bancroft interfered with him on an attempt for a double play during the rally that the former was sent off the field by Umpire Eason. Mayer took Alexander's place in the eighth inning and Perdue succeeded Meadows with two men out in the ninth. The score:

FEDERAL LEAGUE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Gene Krapp outpitched Joe Finneran in a close battle this afternoon, giving the Buffalo Federals a 2-to-1 victory over Brooklyn in the final game of the series. Krapp was wild, issuing eight passes, but was effective in the pinches, holding the Brooklyns in check. A home run by Bennie Kauff gave the visitors their lone tally.

Hal Chase played a prominent part in the Buffalo victory, getting three hits and helping to get Buffalo's two runs. The weather was far from ideal for baseball. The score:

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30.—The unconditional release of Pitcher "Chief" Bender was announced today by the management of the Baltimore Federal League club. Bender was formerly with the Philadelphia Americans, and for years ranked as one of the most famous pitchers in the game.

Whites Win in Squadron A Polo.

In the closest polo game that has been played in the Squadron A Series of practice matches this season the Whites defeated the Reds at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday by the score of 2¼ goals to 2. Both teams played good polo, and it was not until the sixth and last period that Bolton scored the goal that gave the victory to the Whites. In the first chukker Eaton scored twice for the Whites, and in the second a foul and safety by Johnson cost the Whites three-quarters of a point. Eastman and Cram scored for the Reds in the third and fourth periods, respectively, and in the sixth Bolton drove the ball between the posts and won the game for the Whites. The line-up:

Reds—Hurd, Eastman, Holt, Cram.
Whites—Smidt, Eaton, Bolton, Johnson.

May Form Indoor Polo League.

Within a few weeks an indoor polo league will be formed to include teams from the different riding academies in the city, and there may be a team entered from West Point. Last Fall teams from the different academies held a series of games with each other, and at that time there was some discussion as to the formation of a permanent league. The matter has been investigated recently by prominent polo players in the city, and within a short time some definite steps will be taken toward the accomplishment of the idea. If there is a team from West Point in the league it will have to be made up of officers, as the cadets are not allowed to compete off the reservation. The officers would be seriously handicapped because they are not permitted to bring their ponies from West Point, but would have to use borrowed or hired ponies. George C. Sherman and Archie Kenney, both ardent poloists, are the men interested in the movement.

PIPING ROCK'S POLO DEFEATS RUMSON

OCEANPORT, N. J., Aug. 30.—The Piping Rock polo team defeated the Rumson four here today, 12¾ goals to 6, and won the Louis M. Heminway Cups in the final game of the annual polo tournament held under the auspices of the Deal Polo and Riding Club. Despite the fact that the rain which fell heavily throughout the morning made the course heavy and slippery, the game was fast and exciting, and there was a large attendance.

The Piping Rock team won because it outplayed and easily excelled its opponents. The team work by the victorious four was brilliant and their style of play, which was built around East, had the Rumson four baffled. With his teammates playing up to him, East took all the drives as they came near the Rumson goal, and during the six chukkers he drove the ball through the posts ten times. O'Day's strokes were exceptionally accurate, and the Piping Rock victory was in a large measure due to his drives.

The Rumson four played a good game, but the Piping Rock team played a better and faster quality of polo, and won. Waters played consistently and Barbour's play was of a high standard, but the Rumson man was outridden by East. Waters and Borden each scored one goal for Rumson, Jones scored three times, and the one-goal handicap they received made Rumson's score six. For Piping Rock East was the big goal maker, scoring ten goals; Kirlin made two goals, and O'Day scored once. In the fifth chukker East lost one quarter goal on a safety. The line-up:

POLO A FAMILY MATTER.

"Blood will tell" is an old axiom which seems to run true to form when tracing the influences of heredity in relation to the game of polo. This is proved by the fact that many of our best polo players either inherit their ability in this direction or show by the preponderance of players of one kin that the sport is apt to be a family matter.

In speaking of this subject recently, Alfred Stodddart, a Philadelphia expert, had this to say:

"Those of us who can recall polo of a decade ago will remember with pleasure the playing of the late P. F. Collier on the same team with his son, Robert Collier. The elder Collier must have been at that time well advanced in his sixties and by no means a light man. He was compelled to ride rather heavy ponies even for those days, when speed was not so essential as it is now. But the gameness which he displayed always won for him the sympathy and admiration of the polo enthusiasts. Mention of the Colliers recalls the Gould family, George J. Gould and his two sons, Kingdon and George, who frequently played with the Colliers. The Goulds are not active in polo now, although Georgian Court, the Gould estate at Lakewood, contains two splendid polo fields, which provide practice ground earlier in the Spring than do any of the other Northern fields, owing to the sandy nature of the Lakewood soil. It is on these fields that the preliminary practice for the international matches has always taken place.

Another feature of the polo of the 90's was the playing of the Waterbury boys, as they were then called, "Larry" and "Monte." The polo of those days, although much slower than the game of today, gave more opportunity, if possible, for the display of good team work, and in this respect the Waterburys were then unexcelled. Placed at Nos. 2 and 3, the Waterburys would play into each other's hands, revolving like a wheel between their forward and back.

However, the game has progressed and the Waterburys with it. As a family they have done their share toward upholding the glory of American polo in the international matches at home and abroad. Another international player, Devereux Milburn, who has been said by authorities on both sides of the Atlantic to be the finest living polo player, has a brother coming on who bids to maintain the family traditions in this line of sport.

In Philadelphia there are several families which have done their share toward perpetuating the game of polo. Charles E. Mather, who always has been a stanch friend to any sport in which horses are concerned, was one of the players of the earlier period, and now he has two sons in the field. The elder, Victor Mather, for several seasons has helped the Bryn Mawr team to achieve glory, while Gilbert, the younger son, is regarded as one of the most promising of the younger players.

The Strawbridges, father and son, furnish another example of family polo and finished horsemanship. Robert E. Strawbridge must needs be a sportsman, otherwise he would never have achieved the honor of being selected as master to one of the oldest and most celebrated of English hunts. Robert E. Strawbridge, Jr., is still quite a lad, but bids fair to become a great player, and the work of father and son together, playing as Nos. 2 and 3 on the Philadelphia Country Club team, has attracted no little attention.

Then there is the Stokes family, which certainly has done much for polo in recent seasons. They could form a very good team without going out of their own family. Edward Lowber Stokes, the eldest of the brothers, has developed into one of the strongest and most dependable of our players, while Standley, his younger brother, is an exceedingly brilliant performer. Another brother, John, has not been playing this season. Thomas Stokes, or "Dick," in the terse language of the polo field, has developed wonderfully this year and should make a brilliant player. No one has done more to further the interests of polo than P. S. P. Randolph. Mr. Randolph is still young enough to make it a matter of some doubt whether to call him a veteran or not, but he could form a polo team, and does, from his own family, having three sons and two sons-in-law who play the game, to say nothing of a daughter. One son, P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., has been seen on Philadelphia polo fields quite frequently, as has, of course, a son-in-law, John R. Fell.

Mr. Fell, by the way, is linked by relationship to another group of polo players, including his cousin, A. J. Drexel Paul, and the latter's two brothers-in-law, Paul D. Mills and Charles A. Munn. Here is a family group—though not blood relations—which would form a strong team in itself. Mr. Mills and Mr. Paul have both played on the Bryn Mawr teams for several seasons, and Charles A. Munn is coming rapidly forward as among the most promising of the younger players. Then there is Antelo Devereux and Robert K. Cassatt, brothers-in-law of Mr. Fell, although neither of them is playing this season.

The effort made this year to induce the younger generation to learn polo probably will result in many other families being represented by two or more members on the field in the very near future.

Shad Flies Outplay Eel Flies.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The Thousand Island Shad Flies and the Thousand Island Eel Flies played a swift, galloping game today in the Thousand Island Country Club Polo tournament. The Shad Flies won with a score of 5¾ to 4¾. The teams were picked from the players of the four different teams entered in the tournament, and the crowd was so mixed in its favorites that very few of them knew which team they really wanted to win the game.

Little was struck on his knee with a ball and knocked from his horse by Burke's crossing. At the end of the seventh period the score was tied 4¼ all. The playing on both sides was excellent, especially that of Charles R. Little, Seward Carey, Edmund S. Burke, Jr., and A. Graham Miles. In the first period Little made a wonderful goal, taking the ball unassisted from one goal across the field to the other like a streak. The Taintor cups were won by the Shad Flies. The line-up:

SHAD FLIES.	Hdcp.	EEL FLIES.	Hdcp.

FAKE FOOT RACE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Acting upon an account of a fake foot race at Ilion, N. Y., on Aug. 21, which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Monday, Jacob W. Stumpf, Chairman of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee, yesterday suspended, pending further investigation, Donald W. Lippincott, the University of Pennsylvania sprinter, and Hal Heiland of Newark, N. J., a former member of the Xavier A. A. of this city. The power to suspend these men is contained in Article XI., Section 10, of the A. A. U. rules relating to suspicious circumstances, which states that if, in the judgment of the committee or any member thereof, sufficient evidence is presented to make the status of any athlete a matter of reasonable doubt, an investigation may be started without the presentation of formal charges.

J. P. Eaton, the Amateur Athletic Union Commissioner for the territory in which Ilion is situated, has been notified to begin an investigation, and Frank Facey, Chairman of the New England Association Registration Committee, has been asked to assist in identifying "Tom Morgan" of Boston, who was a starter in the race.

The case will be thoroughly probed from the local end, and if the suspended athletes cannot prove their innocence their registration cards will be canceled.

The first good to come of the exposure will be the appointment of an A. A. U. Commissioner for the territory near Utica. There has never been a representative of the union in this section, because athletes there never have been prominent.

Amateur athletes are warned to not participate in the Caledonian Club's professional games on Labor Day, for President Frederick W. Rubien of the Metropolitan Association yesterday made arrangements to have an official photograph taken of the finish of every event.

The following humorous story of the baseball field is related by Bill Speas, outfielder of the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League, and probably is one of the most humorous things witnessed on a baseball field. Incidentally, the story has been told and retold by prominent players in the two major leagues.

"You might not believe this," says Speas, "but I've got several clippings to prove it. It happened in 1906 in the Pennsylvania and Ohio League. I was playing with Mansfield, and Doc Bailey, the old-time Columbus pitcher, was doing the pitching for us. Our opponents had us beaten, about 40 to 0, when one of them hit a ball and slammed it down the right-field foul line. The umpire threw in another ball, and he knocked it foul again. Then he hit one at me in left, and, after breaking my neck to keep it from rolling into the next State, I got it and threw it in to the plate, only it hit the grand stand instead.

"Well, in the meantime, the fielders had recovered the foul balls and the shortstop had one running a man down between second and third, and the second baseman had the other trying to catch a man between first and second. The catcher was chasing the ball I threw in. It looked like a fire in a Chinese laundry the way everybody was running around. I was almost sick from laughing out there in left field.

"The umpire eventually ruled the foul balls out of play and held that the ball I threw at the grand stand was the right one. But that does not change the fact that there were three balls in play all at one time."

EAST AND WEST YACHT RACE

Several months ago representatives of the Chicago Yacht Club came to New York to interest Eastern yachtsmen in a yacht race at Chicago between representative yachts for a new East and West Cup The Chicago yachtsmen believed that such a race would largely stimulate yachting on the Lakes. The Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich, Conn., formed a syndicate, with Commodore William Hamlin Childs at the head, and challenged the Chicago Yacht Club for both the East and West Cup, and the Manhasset Bay Cup, won some time ago by the Chicago Yacht Club, and now at Chicago.

The Valiant, the fastest Class P yacht on the Lakes, owned by Mr. Price, will compete with the Josephine, owned by Addison Hanan of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, and sailed by Addison Hanan, Butler Whiting, William W. Swan, and Charles B. Mower. The Josephine is the champion of her class in Eastern waters, although one year older than the Valiant. The Josephine is now being tuned up on Lake Michigan by Mr. Hanan.

The race for the East and West Cup will be the best three out of five, and for the Manhasset Cup, the best two out of three, both cups being contested for in the same series. The races are scheduled for Sept. 4, 5, 7, 9, and 10. Commodore Heyworth will be the judge for Chicago, Richard Monks for New York, and the third judge will be chosen by these two.

Harry Gattle of Portchester last night outpointed Banty Sharp of Ohio in the main ten-round bout at the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem. There was some delay in starting the bout, Sharp refusing to go on because his opponent would not weigh in. Gattle was in the ring for fifteen minutes before the Ohio boxer entered, and when the boxers came together it was plainly evident that Gattle had a big advantage in weight, besides having height and reach in his favor. Sharp finally agreed to box, and, although he was easily outpointed, he stung his opponent with a right hand blow several times during the bout.

The best bout was the semi-final, between Jimmy Powers, a west side featherweight, and Willie Jackson of Harlem. The latter was entitled to the honors at the final bell, but the west sider was always willing to mix matters, and this made an interesting bout.

First Corps Cadets Shoot Best.

DRIBBLE RULE UNIFORM.

For the first time in the history of basket ball the amateur and collegiate rules for the game will be similar this year. During the Winter the A. A. U. officials held conferences and obtained a consensus of opinion from the different amateur basket ball authorities as to their attitude toward uniform rules for collegians and the amateur fives. Since that time George T. Hepburn has discussed the matter with collegiate authorities, with the result that the basket ball rules, when issued next month, will be alike for A. A. U. teams and for the college fives.

There were a number of different points on which the two sets of rules differed, but the most important and troublesome was the dribbling question. There did not seem to be any common ground on which the two bodies could agree for this system of play, but after the conferences of the A. A. U. men had taken place Mr. Hepburn went over the matter with the Collegiate Committee. When Mr. Hepburn and the college men had reached an agreement, a mail vote on the matter was taken among the A. A. U. men, and it was decided to have a uniform rule.

The new uniform dribble rule in substance follows: Dribbling will be permitted, and at the end of the dribble a player will be allowed to throw for goal, and if he makes the goal it will count. Heretofore the amateur rules did not permit of the scoring of a goal after a dribble, but the amateur authorities have conceded this point to the college men, and in the future amateur teams will permit this style of play.

George T. Hepburn, Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Secretary of the Public Schools Athletic League, and H. D Henschel of the Young Men's Hebrew Association were appointed a committee by Frederick Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, to conduct a study of the basket ball question, and, if possible, reach an agreement with the college committee as to the uniformity of rules. This committee held open meetings during the Winter and obtained the opinions of different amateur and Y. M. C. A. authorities on the game. At these conferences the amateur men suggested many changes which brought the amateur rules to practically the same working basis as the college rules.

But it was on the dribbling question that the men disagreed, and it was the opinion of the amateur officials that the dribbling rule made for an individual style of play rather than for team work, and, further, that it tended to make the game rougher than it would be without allowing the dribble. The meetings ended with the body of amateur authorities deadlocked on the question. Later Mr. Hepburn was able to bring about an understanding on the matter, and the rules which will be tried out this year have the indorsement of both college and A. A. U. experts.

It was the collegiate committee, which was appointed some years ago to make an exhaustive study of college sports with a view of bettering the game, that took up this basket ball matter and reached an agreement in the rules.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACING.

The Grand Circuit racing at the Empire City track, near Yonkers, will open today with a race in which Lee Axworthy, 2:03¼, unbeaten this season, and Peter Scott, 2:05¼, winner of five consecutive races, are to compete with half a dozen other trotters for a purse of $5,000. The race promises to be in the nature of a renewal of the $10,000 Merchants and Manufacturers' Stakes at Detroit a month ago, all of the contending horses in that event having been entered for today's contest.

Another feature of the Grand Circuit opening will be the attempt of Directum I., 1:58, to lower the world's record for pacers, now held by him.

Races for trotters of the 2:17 class and for pacers of the 2:15 class also are on the card, the purse in each being $1,000.

The meeting will continue four days. The National Stallion Stakes, worth $7,000, for 3-year-old trotters, will be decided tomorrow, along with the 2:18 trotting and the 2:07 pacing races.

Roamer to Carry Top Weight.

The announcement of the weights for the Belmont Park Autumn Handicap, to be run Saturday, for three-year-olds and upward, over a mile and a furlong, shows Roamer at the top weight of 129. Luke McLuke is next with 127 pounds, and Sam Jackson and Borrow follow at 124 each. The weights follow:

Judges to Race at Rockland.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 30.—County Judge A. H. F. Seeger of Newburg and Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack will meet again in a race with their trotting horses at the Rockland County Fair at Orangeburg next month, when Judge Tompkins will drive Gritz and Judge Seeger Amasis. At the Orange County Fair at Middletown last week Judge Tompkins won in straight heats.

Horses for Rochester Show.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The horse show in connection with the Rochester Exposition will open tomorrow morning. More than three hundred of the best horses in America are now in the city and will be taken to the exposition grounds in the morning.

Tonight seven hunters and saddle horses that should greatly add to the competition in these two classes arrived at the grounds from Greenwich, Conn. The owner is Percy A. Rockefeller, son of William H. Rockefeller. J. H. Conger, manager of this stable, reported that his entries were in the best possible condition. Mr. Rockefeller is expected at the show on Thursday, when the first judging of the hunters will take place.

Charles E. Cox of Malbern, Penn., who offered a cup for the champion saddle horse at the show, brought his stable of six ponies to the grounds today, and late in the afternoon a string of five of the best roadsters in the country reached the park. These horses are owned by E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia, who is President of the National Horse Show Association.

Championship Five-Mile Swim.

The American Life Saving Society has received sanction for the five-mile swimming championship of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, and will hold the event on Sept. 11 at College Point, L. I

Instead of the usual straightaway tidal course, the committee in charge has laid out a five-mile triangle, with start and finish at College Point, and turning marks off Riker's Island and East Elmhurst, so that most of the swimming will have to be done across tide. It will practically mean the covering of five actual miles, with no current to aid the swimmer.

Bud Goodwin of the New York A. C., the present champion, will be on hand to defend his laurels, and a large and representative field is expected to start against him.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A low pressure area of marked character covers the Northwest with its centre over Alberta, and in consequence there has been a marked rise in temperature to midsummer conditions in Northwestern States.

Elsewhere east of the Rocky Mountains temperatures are much below the seasonal average as a rule, and on Monday morning the temperatures were the lowest of August record in portions of the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys and the west upper lake region, with frosts over much of this area. West of the mountains high temperatures continue, but with a general fall since Sunday night.

Rains were general in the Atlantic States and the east lower lake region, and there were also local showers in the Upper Ohio Valley and in a few other widely scattered localities.

Generally fair weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday east of the Mississippi River, with lower temperatures in the Atlantic States, followed by a rise Wednesday. It will be warmer Tuesday and Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, the upper lake and west lower lake region and the Southwest, and warmer Wednesday in the Atlantic and East Gulf States.

Winds Tuesday and Wednesday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be moderate, shifting, becoming west and northwest; South Atlantic Coast, moderate west to northwest, except variable off the Florida Coast.

FORECASTS—TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

3 A. M.	66	58	4 P. M.	77	68

City.

The commission last Wednesday appointed F. W. Smyser of Schenectady, N. Y., to be expert examiner, to conduct the test, Sept. 15, for promotion to engineer of steamer in the Fire Department.

Typewriting copyist, applications closed, date of mental not yet set, open to males only, salary $600 to $1,200; typewriting copyist, Grade 2, female, applications closed, date of mental not yet set; process server, male and female, applications closed, date of mental not yet set, salary $900 to $1,200; trade instructor, applications closed, date of mental not yet set; junior chemist, (asphalt,) applications close Sept. 8; Pharmacist, applications closed, date of mental not yet set; Medical Inspector, Grade 2, examination ordered, no dates set; pathological chemist, Bellevue Hospital, applications closed, date of mental not yet set, salary $2,500, (this is a new position; vacancy at $2,500 in Bellevue Hospital;) alienist, applications closed, date of mental not yet set.

United States.

The commission announces an open competitive examination for assistant irrigation engineer, for men only, on Sept. 22, to fill vacancies as they may occur, at a salary ranging from $1,000 to $1,500 a year, in the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering, Department of Agriculture, for service in the field, and in positions requiring similar qualifications, unless it is found to be in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The duties of this position will be to assist irrigation engineers and others in the investigation of various subjects connected with irrigation. These subjects will embrace methods of preparing land and applying water in farm irrigation, measurement and delivery of water, irrigation channels and structures, the design, installation, and operation of pumping plants, and the customs, regulations, and laws relating to irrigation. Competitors will be examined in mathematics, physics, chemistry, surveying, and applied mechanics, as given in civil engineering courses; essay of 750 to 1,000 words on a subject relating to irrigation; practical questions on pumping plants, irrgation channels and structures, measurement and division of water, soil physics, irrigation practice, and laws relating to irrigation, and education and experience. Four years of actual experience in civil engineering or of the study of civil engineering at a school or college of recognized standing is a prerequisite for consideration for this position. Two days will be required for this examination; slide rules may be brought on both days; tables of logarithms will be furnished if needed. Applicants must not have reached their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination and must be physically sound and able to perform field duty under trying conditions. This examination is open to all men who are citizens of the United States and who meet the requirements. Further particulars may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

EDUCATION NOTES.

William Maxwell, Jr., son of Dr. Maxwell, Superintendent of Schools, went to Ogunquit, Me., Friday to see his father, returning Sunday night. Yesterday morning young Mr. Maxwell telephoned Dr. Josiah H. Pitts, the Chief Clerk of the board, that Dr. Maxwell was now improving rapidly and expected to be back at his desk in October.

It is reported in educational circles that when the schools reopen Sept. 13, the number of children who will be unable to obtain a full, five hours tuition per day will be greater than ever before. The new buildings completed will not afford much relief, and, it is added, the failure of the Board of Estimate during the past two years to provide money for the construction of new buildings leaves the Board of Education with hardly any new schools under construction to provide for the increasing school population. When the schools closed last June, 33,896 children in part time classes and 101,896 in first year classes were receiving four hours' instruction instead of the five formerly required. Last September 40,000 new children were enrolled, and if a similar increase is recorded next week, a serious condition will arise, as the total number of new sittings provided is only about 10,000.

Pupils of Public School, corner of Newkirk Avenue and Thirty-second Street, Brooklyn, are making good progress with their small farms, their product being sold in a public market, held Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, between 10 and 12 o'clock. The money made by the sales goes into the school garden fund and is devoted to the purchase of seeds. Miss Ninna R. Streich, the teacher in charge, evolved the market plan in order to make better use of the vegetables and also to supply the demands made by residents of the neighborhood.

WILL FOR PROBATE.

GOELLER, CHARLES, (July 18;) estate more than $16,000; Fannie Goeller, a sister, receives $7,000; other relatives about $4,400, the residue going to the widow, Emily B.

The Ideal Vacation

OF course, you would like to go to the California Expositions. If conditions make it possible, by all means go. But, if you cannot afford the time or expense of a journey to the Pacific Coast, remember, there are places of almost equal interest nearer at hand with sights and scenes which cannot be bettered across the Seven Seas. You will be surprised to find how much rest, recreation and sight-seeing you can get from our Special Eight Day Summer Vacation Voyages. Read about this one:

2000 MILES 8 DAYS $35.00 ALL EXPENSES INCLUDED

Cool breezes and pleasant ocean currents will follow you for 627 miles along the coast, until your arrival at historic Charleston on the second day out. Steamer passes between Fort Moultrie and Fort Sumter of Confederate fame.
Ample time is allowed for a shore visit to the Battery Esplanade, including famous homes of old Southern Aristocracy, the old Cathedrals, the Charleston Navy Yard, etc., etc.
Leaving Charleston same evening, another 197 miles down the coast lands you bright and early Tuesday morning at Jacksonville, the great Metropolis and Gateway to the enchanted land of Ponce de Leon, where you may spend the day at your own convenience visiting the Ostrich farm, curio and souvenir shops, beautiful suburbs, etc.—
At four o'clock same afternoon, leave Jacksonville on that unique and fascinating Daylight and Searchlight trip, covering 340 miles of picturesque and luxuriant scenery

ON THE BEAUTIFUL St. Johns "The American Nile"

The most fascinating and interesting inland water trip in America, with glimpses of Alligators, tropical birds, marvelous water foliage and picturesque native settlements.
On the sixth day, returning to Jacksonville, you board steamer for New York, and after an 824 mile cool, delightful ocean voyage, the eight-day trip is completed, with your arrival home on Sunday, happy, refreshed and ready for business the next day. The $35.00 fare includes all expenses of transportation, meals and accommodations on steamers in both directions—the only extra expense to passenger being luncheon at Jacksonville on Tuesday and Thursday between arrival of ocean steamer and departure of St. Johns River steamer, and vice versa.

Ask anybody who knows, and he will tell you that this is the season of all seasons for a visit to Florida; the very time of the year when the land of flowers is in full bloom and the weather no warmer than the average northern resort.

This trip can also be made leaving New York on Thursdays of any week, returning on the eighth day. In either case, passengers have option of extending their visit to return any time within fifteen days, permitting stopovers and sidetrips at passenger's own expense, giving opportunity to visit quaint old St. Augustine with its forts, its old Slave Market, and its picturesque Spanish architecture; or, to Atlantic Beach, one of the greatest automobiling beaches in the World, and famous for its surf bathing and other Summer diversions.

Tickets will be on sale until September 30th, and may be purchased at offices of Thomas Cook & Son, Raymond & Whitcomb Company, New York Transfer Company, George E. Marsters, Frank Tourist Company, Edwin H. Low's S. S. Agency, etc.

Wise & Whitlock, hosiery, underwear, and knit goods mill agents, yesterday closed a contract with one of the Allies for 1,000,000 pairs of woolen gloves, for September-October delivery. The specifications call for three or four different grades of goods, and the contract is said to be worth $225,000. Last week the same firm closed a contract to furnish 35,000 dozen woolen socks to be used by the soldiers of one of the nations at war.

South Ordering Goods.

The Southern clothing retailers are showing signs of returning interest in buying goods, and lately there have been quite a few requests to see Fall lines from merchants who have not yet turned in their orders. This is taken as an indication of improved conditions in that section. The effect on the clothing business, if the retail movement continues, will be to fill in the later part of the Fall manufacturing season, usually a dull period, with fair-sized orders. A number of the clothing merchants in the South have not made any commitments at all for the season that is almost upon them, and, when the buying starts, it is generally believed that orders will come in briskly.

The style movement in the clothing industry seems to be all in the direction of having the garments look as little as possible like ready-to-wear. Many clothing manufacturers of the old school, according to a well-posted man in the trade, are puzzled over the changes which have occurred in the business during the last two or three years. Just what the difference is between the product now and that of a couple of years back some have found it hard to define. The change, as this man sees it, is in trying to suit every man who comes into a clothing store, and not the average man alone. Higher salaries are being paid designers to create models that will have all the look and fit of a custom-made garment.

Russian Order Not Yet Placed.

The placing of the big Russian war order for underwear, rumors and reports of which have been in circulation in the local knit goods field for some time, had not been accomplished up to a late hour yesterday afternoon, according to information supplied by leading members of the trade. Civilian business continues to come from the other side, however, notably from England and British possessions. In domestic business the most notable thing appears to be the spurt in buying Spring goods that followed the declaration, about a week ago, of higher prices on the cheapest kind of men's balbriggans. For Fall duplicate orders from the jobbers are coming in well, but mostly from wholesalers out of town. Local jobbers are none too enthusiastic when they speak of the business now passing in heavy underwear.

Drills Were Active Enough.

There was no fault to find with the movement of drills in the local market on the closing days of last week. Such goods as 3.95s and 4.20s were especially active, and more than 600,000 yards of them were reported sold on Friday and Saturday in one-quarter of the market alone. Total drill sales for those two days are said to have run well over double that amount. The goods sold at 4⅝ and 4 3-16 cents, respectively, but because of the business done on them prices have in several instances been advanced to 4½ and 4¼ cents, respectively. Buying was not so large yesterday under the new prices, but it is said that there is plenty more of this business to come. Among the sheeting sales yesterday were good-sized quantities of four-yard, 56-60s, which sold for shipment in the next sixty days at 4⅝ cents. Later in the day they were moved up to 4¾ cents for that delivery.

Gray Goods Continue Active.

The break in the cotton market, due to heavy profit-taking had no appreciable effect on the buying of gray goods here yesterday. Large sales of printcloths were made, and prices on all classes of staple goods were either more firmly held than for several weeks or they were advanced. A large business was done on 38½-inch 60-48s, at 3 5-16 cents, for delivery during the next three months, though later this price could bring out goods only for spot and nearby shipment. This was largely true of the following constructions, all of which sold freely: 38½-inch 60-52s at 3 7-16 cents, 64-56s at 3 11-16 cents, 64-60s at 3¾ cents, 39-inch 56-44s at 3⅛ cents, and 68-72s at 4⅜ cents. Some of these goods, notably 64-60s and 68-72s, can now be had at those figures only for immediate delivery. Fancies continued to sell well. Staple printcloth prices, spot, were:

GRANDIN FILMS, INC., manufacturer of motion picture films at 378 Central Park West, has made an assignment to Martin Lippman.

GENERAL BRAKE SHOE AND SUPPLY CO.—Judge Mayer has appointed Oscar Igstaedter ancillary receiver for the property in this city of the General Brake Shoe and Supply Company of Chicago, on application of Hiram B. Prentice, who has been appointed receiver in Chicago in bankruptcy proceedings. The company has an office in the Grand Central Terminal Building, this city.

J. E. MANIX COMPANY.—Judge Mayer has authorized John J. Morris, receiver for the J. E. Manix Company, buyer of dry goods for fifty department stores in other cities, at 320 Church Street, to continue business twenty days. The company is endeavoring to make a composition with creditors at 70 cents on the dollar.

ADOLPH WERTHMANN.—Judge Mayer has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Adolph Werthmann dealer in cotton goods at 299 Church Street, on application of Martin Charles Ansorge, attorney for Abraham Harris, a creditor for $16,268. Judge Mayer, in his decision, said he was satisfied that assets were concealed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

If one could imagine the elimination of the ten days of trading which intervened between the sinking of the Arabic and yesterday's market the course of prices yesterday would seem to fit in very well with the conditions which were developing on the Stock Exchange prior to the event which threatened a new crisis in our relations with Germany. During this interval there was a sharp decline and then a recovery which re-established the list at the pre-Arabic level. Before the sinking of that vessel and the consequent international complications, or at least threat of complications, the forward movement had halted and realizing sales, such as sufficed yesterday, after a fairly strong opening, to bring net declines in a number of prominent issues, would have been a natural sequel to that market condition.

So it was hardly necessary yesterday to undertake to find special explanation for the lessened volume of dealings and for the reactionary tendency. The financial community following Washington's lead has practically brushed aside the relations between the United States and Germany as a possible source of trouble, and it was no new doubt in respect to the outcome of the negotiations now underway for the settlement of our demands on Germany which brought the advance to a halt. A general reason for the afternoon decline was felt to be needed, however, and it was found in the further fall in sterling exchange rates bringing them to a new low level and emphasizing the ineffectiveness as a means of sustaining exchange of the large gold movement now underway, the second installment of which reached the banks yesterday.

There is no doubt that the fall in exchange promises to create an important problem for the business of this country so far as it consists of or is dependent upon export trade, but this is not the sort of thing over which a stock market such as we have been having is disposed to feel concerned. Actually the decline in stocks was more probably due to the widespread feeling among professional traders that the market's advance and its recent recovery from the shock of the Arabic news had probably gone far enough for the time being. Action based on this attitude sufficed to control the course of prices notwithstanding further purchases of stock by the public. These trading operations were the more effective inasmuch as the market probably did not have the support of certain banking interests which lent themselves to the rise in its earlier stages, but which on account of the international situation and for other reasons have been disposed recently to assume a more conservative position.

The fact that sterling exchange should drop 2 cents to the pound to the unprecedented low rate of $4.60½ on a day when close to $20,000,000 in gold reached the New York banks from London is on the face of it very surprising. It becomes less surprising when the other side of the picture is examined. A year ago last July Americans were still traveling to Europe and spending money there freely. At that time, too, this country was buying so much abroad that the foreign trade statement for that month, the last before the war, showed a debit balance of over $5,000,000. July this year we exported so much more than we imported that the single month yielded a credit merchandise balance of close to $125,000,000, bringing the total for the seven months of the year to above $960,000,000. Add the credit balance for the month to debit balance of July last year; add to that the money which American tourists were spending abroad then that they are not spending now; and further increase the sum by the decrease in the amount which we now have to remit for interest and dividends owing to the heavy foreign liquidation of our securities since the outbreak of the war, and one would have a rough suggestion of the extent to which our money transactions with Europe have changed in our favor since the month before the outbreak of the war. It is hardly surprising, viewed from this angle, that Europe should be finding it very difficult to pay us for all she owes and finding it impossible specifically to support exchange rates by gold shipments unprecedentedly large as those have been.

The Wabash Plan.

It is understood in the financial district that the reorganization plan of the Wabash Railroad, which is underwritten by strong banking interests, will soon be declared operative. The time for making deposits of stocks and bonds has expired and the returns are considered satisfactory. Under the plan the assessment on the stock is $30 a share. This may be regarded as a heavy burden for a stock selling for 12½ cents a share. Despite this, however, it is understood, about 25 per cent. of the stock was deposited. The success of the plan will therefore depend almost wholly on the holders of the refunding and extension bonds. About 95 per cent. of these bonds have been deposited, and these must assume the assessment which remains unsubscribed by the stockholders. In case these bondholders fail to subscribe the full balance, the banking syndicate will assume the obligation. It is believed that the deposits of both stocks and bonds would have been greater if the war had not interfered. Many foreign holders, it was said, had not been heard from at all since the reorganization plan was announced.

Less Cotton to Finance.

Close on the heels of the United States Treasury's offer to help finance the cotton crop comes the Department of Agriculture's report, which indicates that the problem of financing the crop has grown less since a month ago, because the crop promises to be smaller. Individual farmers may suffer by the deterioration shown in the Government report, but the South as a whole seems to be in a mood not to regret it. If yesterday's indications are borne out in the final figures, the yield of cotton will show a reduction of fully 25 per cent. compared with last year's record crop. There was demand then for much more cotton than many people expected there would be a market for, and it would seem plain now that there is little room this year for the sort of concern which was being felt about the cotton outlook at this time a year ago.

This Year's Crop Yields.

The annual crop report compiled by the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago gives the estimate yield of wheat for 1915 at 1,003,000,000 bushels; of corn, 2,983,000,000 bushels; of oats, 1,352,000,000 bushels, and of barley, 224,000,000 bushels. The estimated production of the five leading grain crops surpasses last year's by more than 600,000,000 bushels, and in the aggregate is the largest in the country's history, possibly not in the average yield per acre, but in gross amount, the increase in acreage accounting for the unusual record in production. This is the first time that the United States has had a wheat crop exceeding a billion bushels. The farmer was quick to realize that the European war means a growing demand for this important cereal for export.

The consumer who has been buying peaches this Summer at lower prices than he has paid before for inferior fruit has accepted his good fortune without stopping to wonder either at the source of the fruit or the means of getting it to market. The Southern Railway remedies the deficiency of information on this point with a description of the work entailed by the transportation problem. To get the Georgia peach crop to Eastern markets during the season extending from May 27 to Aug. 17 the Southern operated 187 special trains, handling 3,636 cars. For each of these trains four engines and four crews of five men each were required. The traffic was moved over the 649 miles of the Atlanta-Washington line, more than 100 miles of which is being double-tracked, without the slightest interference with the regular traffic. Additional specials to the number of thirty-five were run from Atlanta to Chattanooga to catch the Western markets. The perishable nature of peaches made it necessary to move all these trains on the fastest passenger schedule.

No report of the condition of the National Railways of Mexico has been submitted by the Board of Directors of that system to stockholders since 1913. Several meetings have been called, but the Mexican revolutions have always interfered. A new call for the adjourned annual meeting of 1914 has now been announced for Oct. 6 in Mexico City. At this meeting the reports for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1914, and June 30, 1915, will be submitted. The stockholders will also be asked to elect twenty-one Directors and to authorize certain mortgage bonds for corporate purposes. Sept. 6 has been fixed by the Executive Committee as the date for ascertaining what persons will have the right to vote at the stockholders' meeting. The finances of the National Railways of Mexico are in a deplorable condition, and the time is awaited by financial interests here when the Government of Mexico, which controls the system, will make amends for the devastation caused by the many revolutions.

No Montreal Receivership.

Newspaper stories depicting the City of Montreal in the hands of a receiver had a bad effect both here and in Canada, according to a prominent bond house of this city. This bond house investigated the reports and had its Montreal representative get an official report of the case from the Bank of Montreal. A telegram received from the Montreal representative reads: "The President of the Bank of Montreal says that the newspaper article in regard to the receivership for the city is nonsensical and he would not give it sufficient consideration to give it a formal denial. He states that a committee may be formed to visit the Premier at Quebec to ask him to devise a better method of managing the finances of the city, and this is all there is to the newspaper article referred to."

The Important Detail.

Canny bankers will not believe in the Chinese order for 100 submarines until they see the money. It was evidently recognized by the interests concerned in the negotiations that it would be much easier to sell boats than to collect for them, and efforts have been made to form a strong banking syndicate which will accept 75 per cent. of the purchase price in notes. It was said by banking interests named yesterday as probable members of such a syndicate, that no overtures had been made to them, and that they were not prepared to take China's securities unless guaranteed. Whether or not China can provide notes or bonds that will be taken by a syndicate here remains to be seen.

LONDON MARKET QUIET.

Money in Increased Demand in Preparation for Today's Call.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Money was in increased demand today for month-end requirements and in preparation for tomorrow's call for about £50,000,000 on the war loan. Discount rates were steadier.

The stock market was quiet, but generally firm. Diamond shares were in strong demand and the war loan and a few gilt-edge securities were supported, but oil stocks were easy and copper issues weak on the decline in the price of the metal.

American securities were uncertain. They failed to maintain the opening prices, but closed fairly steady. Most of the business was in United States Steel, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Drought, followed by excessive rains in the cotton belt during August, caused deterioration slightly more than the August average to the growing cotton crop. The Department of Agriculture today announced the condition as 69.2 per cent. of normal. That is 6.1 per cent. below the July condition.

While no official statement explanatory of the cotton figures was forthcoming from the Department of Agriculture, Leon M. Estabrook, Chief of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, announced unofficially that the report indicated a yield this season of approximately 11,800,000 bales of cotton, as compared with an actual production of 16,135,930 bales last season.

"The condition of 69.2 estimated today, as compared with 75.8 on July 25, a month ago," Mr. Estabrook explained, "is a trifle more of a decline than is normal. If the figures had been the same in today's estimate as on July 25, there would be an actual increase. There is always a decline between the July and August estimates. The figures today indicate a yield which is slightly less than the forecast of last month.

"There is an estimated decrease in acreage of 15 per cent. due to the collapse of the market in the abnormal conditions respecting cotton during the last year. The drop in condition percentage from 75 per cent. in July to 69 per cent. in August, is due to the unfavorable weather during the last month and the reduction of about 40 per cent. in the amount of fertilizer used in the cotton fields."

A crop slightly under 12,000,000 bales was forecasted by the Crop Reporting Board from the July 25 condition. The Bureau of Crop Estimates announces that a condition of 100 on Aug. 25 would be equivalent to a yield of 258.9 pounds to the acre. The area planted this year has been officially reported as 31,535,000 acres.

Weather conditions for the crop were very favorable during the month. Hot and generally continued dry weather greatly retarded growth over many portions of the belt during the first week, and but little progress was possible except over the northern portion, where local rains and moderate warmth favored satisfactory growth. During the early part of the month drought continued very generally in Texas, and was becoming severe over large areas.

Continued dry weather over the greater part of the more important producing States prevented satisfactory growth during the second week of the month and the crop very generally deteriorated. Shedding was reported in many sections, and bolls were opening prematurely in districts where the drought prevailed. Insect pests were reported generally less active than usual.

Deterioration due to adverse weather during the early weeks of the month was arrested by good rains over much of the central and eastern portions of the belt during the latter part of the month and the crop responded to the more favorable condition. Rain was still needed in a greater part of Mississippi and in some portions of Alabama. In the western part of the belt good growing conditions prevailed except in Texas, where the drought continued over much of the State until the close of the week, when the West Indian storm brought considerable rain over the eastern and coast districts.

SHARP DECLINE IN COTTON.

Net Loss of 22 to 24 Points in Spite of Government Crop Report.

"Bullish, but discounted," was the verdict of the cotton trade on yesterday's Government report on the condition of the crop. The figures were 69.2, which represented a decline of 6.1 points from the condition of 75.3 as reported on Aug. 1. The indicated crop is put at 11,817,000 bales.

Before the issuance of the report there had been a nervous and active market, with prices opening up a dozen points or so from Saturday's closing. Shorts showed a good deal of anxiety and paid prices which represented an advance of 90 points from the low level which prevailed only a week before. This upturn of $4.50 per bale in the market without extensive speculation was considered very surprising.

On the announcement of the figures of 69.2 there was a sudden break of about 10 points. On this drop commission houses bought freely. Prices continued to sag, however, and in the late afternoon there was decided pressure from leading spot and Southern interests, which caused a weak and easy closing about 35 points below the high level of the day at a net decline of 22 to 24 points.

Improved weather may have been a factor in the selling, as Texas reported very little rain over Sunday, and it was felt that with more settled conditions there would be less pessimism over the crop outlook. Moreover, private advices figured that the plant all over Texas was putting on fresh growth and only an early frost would interfere with a big addition to the yield.

It is recalled that last season Texas made a splendid recovery from a discouraging prospect, merely as a result of abundant rains in August.

There is no doubt, however, that sentiment throughout the trade has turned more bullish. German interests are said to have been large buyers of contracts here, and it is believed that brokers representing France and Great Britain will give the market support on any decline.

The South seems to have recovered its nerve, and Southern bankers are giving assurance to cotton growers that abundant funds will be available for cotton that is properly warehoused and insured. Consequently no decline of importance is expected.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were 12 points advance to 20 points decline.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 10 points decline, 9.75 for middling. Futures closed easy.

KANSAS WHEAT CROP DECLINES

Apparent Loss of 17,000,000 Bushels in Month Because of Rains.

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 30.—J. C. Mohler, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, in his report issued today, estimated the Kansas wheat yield for this year at 98,690,000 bushels, as against an estimate of 115,700,000 in July and 138,700,000 in June.

Continued rains that made harvesting impossible were held responsible for the big loss in the state's crop production. Millions of bushels of grain were lost by Kansas farmers because of the weather that would not permit thrashing and much of the wheat in shocks was lost during the wet season, the report stated.

The report today was for conditions in Kansas, Aug. 25. It estimated the wheat yield at thirteen bushels an acre, with a loss and abandonment of nearly 20 per cent. of the 9,499,000 acres planted last fall.

Corn conditions are unchanged, the report continuing to estimate the yield at 149,482,000 bushels as against a yield of 87,338,272 in 1914. The yield of oats is estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, as against an estimated yield of 39,000,000 bushels in the July report.

MORE SHIFTS OF FOREIGN TRADE

LARGE BRITISH SHIPMENTS

The Month Made a Record for Exports, Among Which Munitions Figured Greatly.

Striking contrasts of the effect of the European war on the commerce of this port are revealed in the statistical review of exports and imports here last month, compared with July 1914, the month preceding the outbreak of hostilities abroad, made public yesterday by Acting Collector Stuart at the Custom House. The report shows the extraordinary shifts in foreign commerce by countries and grand divisions of the world.

That New York is the chief outlet for the enormous war supplies now being rushed to Europe, is evidenced by the jump in exports last month compared with July a year ago. Outward shipments in July reached the record total of $154,249,996, a gain over the same month last year of $96,035,618, the July, 1914, exports being only $58,214,378. In imports, last month's record had a value of $75,812,940 against $84,300,449 the corresponding month of 1914, the loss being set down at $8,487,500.

The July exports from this port are particularly notable owing to the fact that American manufacturers of war muitions are only just beginning to fill contracts for the Allies valued at hundreds of millions of dollars. English military and other supplies shipped out of this port in July were the heaviest sent to any other single country, their value being $44,592,230, against shipments in July 1914, wor th $12,230,087. French exports ran up to $34,551,643, compared with less than $4,000,000 in the same month last year. Russia's purchases sent to their destination from this port in July reached $18,186,861, and like English and French exports, were chiefly war munitions, motor trucks, metal working machinery, spelter, and ammunition as well as cartridges.

One of the striking things about the import side of the Collector's report is that in July England, notwithstanding the war, shipped more merchandise here than the corresponding month a year ago. Last month's imports totaled $13,017,249, compared with $11,147,521 in July, 1914.

J. E. Manix Co. Composition.

Judge Mayer in the United States District Court yesterday extended the time of John J. Morris, receiver in bankruptcy for the dry goods importing firm of J. E. Manix Company of 320 Church Street and Thirty-third Street and Broadway, twenty days for the purpose of continuing the business. Three hundred and eighty creditors of the concern have accepted an offer of settlement at 70 cents on the dollar to be paid 35 cents in cash and 35 cents in three months' promissory notes. A composition calling for this settlement will be proposed to the court soon. Liabilities are said to aggregate $400,000.

PROPOSALS.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply, at its offices, twenty-second floor, Municipal Building, Park Row, Centre and Chambers Streets, New York City, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, August 31, 1915, for Contract 154, for furnishing and erecting water-pipe equipment for operating valves in the shafts of the city tunnel of the Catskill aqueduct, in New York City. The equipment consists of iron, copper and brass pipe, pumps, valves and fittings.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders, and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address, at the office of the Secretary, by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. For further particulars apply to the office of the Principal Assistant Engineer at the above address.

CHARLES N. CHADWICK,
JOHN F. GALVIN,
Commissioners of the Board of Water Supply.
RALPH T. STANTON, Assistant Secretary.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Governor Whitman today commuted the sentence of William Swartz, whom, as District Attorney, he prosecuted for manslaughter. Swartz, on June 1, 1910, shot John Stump in Seventh Avenue. His sentence was for a term of six years and six months to nineteen years and six months. The sentence is commuted so that Swartz may go before the Parole Board.

WABASH-PITTSBURG LIQUIDATION URGED

AGAINST $300 ASSESSMENT

Suggested That the Company Sell Its Coal Lands and Pay Its Debts with Proceeds.

Dissenting first mortgage bondholders of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal Railway to the number of about twenty-five, said to represent about $2,000,000 of the $30,000,000 bonds outstanding, at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the offices of Daniel B. Ely, 25 Broad Street, voiced their protests against the proposed reorganization plan of the Wallace Protective Committee.

As the result of yesterday's meeting another bondholders' protective committee will be appointed, and this committee will seek to get deposits of the first mortgage bonds. With the Philadelphia committee there are now three committees in the field.

The reorganization plan, as approved by the Wallace Committee and another committee representing holders of the $20,000,000 second mortgage bonds, calls for an assessment of $300 on each first mortgage bond of a par value of $1,000. If the assessment is not paid by the first mortgage bondholders the second mortgage bondholders can contribute the unsubscribed part.

Mr. Ely, who acted as Chairman of yesterday's meeting, analyzed the plan and declared that if a modification of the reorganization plan could not be obtained he and those associated with him would insist on a liquidation of the property of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal Railway. The property consists of about eighty-five miles of single-track, held in the name of two separate companies, about 15,000 acres of coal lands in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and real estate and terminal property in the heart of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Ely proposed certain provisions of a counter plan which he favored. The most important feature called for the sale of the railway company's coal lands. He sprang a surprise when he announced that he already had a buyer for the coal lands in view. He did not give the name, but said it was a company that meant business and that it had proposed to buy or lease the lands. He said these lands should bring $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 and that this money would pay off the receivers' certificates, about $3,000,000, and other claims against the coal company amounting to about $4,000,000.

If this plan were carried through, Mr. Ely said, the assessment would be only $30 to $50 on each bond, just enough to pay the expenses of the attorneys and the committees.

He also suggested as another feature of the modified plan that ten directors be elected, each representing one-tenth of the first mortgage bonds or about $3,000,000 each. He estimated the maximum earning capacity of the road would be $16,000 gross per mile or a net total earning power for a year of $740,000. If the first mortgage bonds were scaled down from $30,000,000 to $15,000,000, he said, this maximum income would insure a return of 4 per cent. on these bonds. Mr. Ely's estimate of a maximum earning power is about $100,000 above the figure given by the receiver of the road as the probable net earning of the company in the first year after reorganization.

Albert Rathbone of Joline, Larkin & Rathbone, attorneys for the Wallace Committee, spoke in defense of the reorganization plan. He asserted that the first mortgage bondholders had only a paper equity in the coal lands. He pointed out that there were about $3,000,000 Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal Railway Company notes outstanding behind which the coal property was pledged as collateral. These notes were given originally to the Wabash Railroad, but were hypothecated by that railroad to borrow other funds. The holders of these notes, Mr. Rathbone contended, while verbally pledged not to foreclose, could force a sale of the coal lands over the heads of the first mortgage bondholders.

The Wallace Committee announced yesterday that approximately $27,000,000 first mortgage bonds remained on deposit with the Central Trust Company. This would indicate that these bonds would assent to the reorganization plan. The first installment of the assessment on these bonds must be paid tomorrow.

It is not quite clear how the minority bondholders can block the plan if a great majority of the bondholders accept it, but at yesterday's meeting there was a suggestion that the case could be taken into the courts on a plea that a liquidation be ordered.

Fine Outlook for Silk Sweaters.

Makers of knitted silk sweaters, particularly the high-grade ones, see prospects of an unusually good business this Fall. Many novelties in real silk sweaters are being shown, among them sleeveless basque and bolero effects for wear under a coat or a suit jacket. The boleros are made with and without collars, and run about fifteen inches long. They have a small breast pocket, and are decorated daintily with a number of tiny buttons. They retail at $8 to $10 each. A novel basque effect shows smocking, both in front and in back. The body of this garment is twenty-two inches long, and it is finished with a detachable, hand-embroidered collar in self or contrasting color. It is said to be especially fine for golf, and retails at $18 to $20. A novel combination for skating and other out-door wear consists of a fur-trimmed sweater and "tam," the trimming being of skunk, seal, beaver, ermine, or other desirable fur. These sweaters range at retail from $28 to $40 each, while the "tams" sell at from $10 to $12, according to the kind of fur used. Separate knitted silk "tams," with large buttons, are offered in solid color and two-tone effects. They retail from $8 up.

$150,000 outstanding; authorized $1,000,000
Second Preferred (Par $10.)
Common (Par $10.)
$2,141,300 outstanding; $2,800,000

The common stock of this company has lately been traded in on the Curb in fair quantities at prices ranging between $14 and $19 per share (par $10.)

To the best of our knowledge no first or second preferred has ever been offered.

The relatively small amount of first preferred gives it a strong investment status, when the equities behind it are considered.

The first preferred is now paying dividends, and has paid all dividends when and as due.

It has voting power equally with the common stock.

It participates equally with the common after the common shall have received 10%.

The unusual investment opportunities offered by this stock accord it a most unique position in the investment and speculative field.

Compared with the common, which has recently sold as high as $45 per share, its situation is impressive.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Convertible Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds deposited under the Plan and Agreement of May 12, 1915:

The offer to stockholders to subscribe to the new Convertible Bonds of the Company has resulted in the purchase by said stockholders of all new bonds offered, with the exception of $457,000 thereof. In accordance with the provisions of the above Plan, said new Bonds not subscribed for by the stockholders will be distributed pro rata among the depositing bondholders, who will receive cash for the balance of their deposited bonds at the rate provided for by the Plan, viz.: 105 and accrued interest.

On and after September 10, 1915, as of which date interest on the deposited bonds will cease, depositing bondholders, upon surrender of their certificates of deposit at the office of the Depositary, will be entitled to receive for each deposited bond:

Fractional Certificate exchangeable for new Convertible Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, when issued 32.68

Fractional certificates issued to represent the new Convertible Bonds will not bear interest but will be exchangeable for permanent engraved bonds bearing interest from July 1, 1915, when prepared and ready for delivery, on surrender of such certificates at the office of the Depositary, in amounts of not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof; and, pending the date of delivery of the permanent engraved bonds, said fractional certificates may be exchanged for Full Paid $1,000 Receipts for such Bonds. On any such exchange any fractional amount of such certificates over $1,000 or any multiple thereof will be redeemed by the Company at 112% and interest, or, at the option of the holder, a new fractional certificate will be issued therefor.

Full Paid $1,000 Receipts, exchangeable for new bonds when prepared, will be issued direct to depositing bondholders entitled to fractional receipts aggregating not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof, a fractional certificate being issued for any fractional amount in excess of $1,000 or any multiple thereof.

THE AMOUNT OF FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES TO BE DISTRIBUTED BEING SO SMALL, THE COMPANY HAS DETERMINED FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF THE DEPOSITING BONDHOLDERS TO MAKE AN ALTERNATIVE OFFER TO PAY CASH AT 112% AND INTEREST FOR THE FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES DISTRIBUTABLE AS ABOVE RECITED. SUCH CERTIFICATES WILL BE PURCHASED AT SAID PRICE IF TENDERED AT THE OFFICE OF THE TREASURER OF THE COMPANY, NO. 165 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, ON OR BEFORE OCTOBER 10, 1915, AFTER WHICH DATE NO CERTIFICATES WILL BE SO PURCHASED.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The decline in sterling exchange to a new low level was a factor in the reaction which marks the closing dealings on the Consolidated Exchange. Earlier in the day there were further advances in some of the war issues, while a better tone was in evidence among the railroad shares, several of the latter recording substantial gains at that time.

Court Directs Receiver Not to Pay Interest Due Tomorrow.

B. F. Bush, receiver of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain system, said yesterday that at a conference with Elmer P. Adams, Circuit Judge of the Federal Court, he was directed to take no action looking to the payment of interest due Sept. 1 on the company's principal outstanding bonds. He received permission to pay the interest which fell due June 1 on the unextended notes, and both principal and interest on all equipment obligations as they mature. Interest will also be paid on the small amount of Verdigris Valley, Independence & Western first mortgage guaranteed 5s.

The Missouri Pacific has more than $2,000,000 in interest due tomorrow. The Iron Mountain has no payments to make on that date. The most important Missouri Pacific issues on which interest is due are $14,376,000 trust indenture 5s, $32,261,000 first and refunding 5s, and $37,255,000 collateral trust gold 4s. For the fiscal year ended June 30 last the company fell short of its interest charges by $1,250,000, and earnings for the current year are rnuning behind those of 1914.

PRIOR LIEN BONDS

NEW ORLEANS & NORTHEASTERN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The undersigned, the New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad Company, offers to extend the above-mentioned bonds so that they shall mature November 1, 1940, with interest at the rate of 5% per annum, payable at the office or agency of the Company in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, semi-annually, on the first days of May and November in each year, the present First Mortgage lien of said bonds to remain unimpaired, both principal and interest to be payable in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness. Payment of the normal Federal Income Tax, as now constituted, is assumed by the Company.

By Larz A. Jones, President.

New York, August 30, 1915.

Referring to the above notice, the extension privilege applies only to the holders of such bonds, who shall deposit the same with us at our office, 23 Wall Street, New York City, on or before October 1, 1915.

At the time of deposit the coupon due November 1, 1915, for seven months' interest, will be cashed.

Upon such deposit, temporary receipts will be issued, exchangeable for bonds, with the Extension Supplement and new coupon sheets attached, for a principal amount equal to the principal amount of the bonds deposited. Copies of the Extension Supplement may be had on application at our office.

On or before October 31, 1915, at our office, we will buy, at par and accrued interest, the bonds of holders who do not desire to avail themselves of the above privilege of extension. On and after November 1, 1915, such bonds will be purchased at par, ex coupon.

STERLING EXCHANGE AT NEW LOW LEVEL

LOSS ON POUND 26 CENTS

British Delegates May Arrive on the Steamship St. Paul Thursday to Devise a Remedy.

Sterling exchange rates, which have been making new low records from day to day, not only repeated their performance yesterday, but by dropping to $4.60½ for demand showed the widest break that has taken place recently. Demand closed Saturday at $4.62½. At yesterday's closing price it was selling 5⅝ per cent. under its par value, which means a loss of 26 cents to the English pound in settlements made through sales of exchange.

The arrival of another shipment of gold and securities from England was without the slightest effect on rates, although no effort was made by bankers to utilize the shipment to bolster exchange. Receipt of the $19,500,000 in gold and some $35,000,000 in securities, making the second shipment of those proportions to come here from England, suggested that the London bankers plan to make periodic shipments to protect the balance on deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co. Bankers said that if such a plan were being followed they had not been informed of it, and they did not know of further consignments of gold which might be on the way. It is supposed in the financial district that the American stocks and bonds returned are sent here to be sold and not to serve for long as the basis of credit advances.

The identity of the English delegates who are to meet New York bankers in a series of conferences, having as their object a settlement of the credit problem, is still being kept a secret, as is the time of their arrival. In some quarters it is expected that the London representatives will reach here Thursday on the steamship St. Paul, but recent cables from the other side would indicate that the party had not started up to two days ago.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

New low records for the season were made in the wheat market yesterday when prices broke sharply, after an early bulge, under very heavy and general selling. The early upturn was due to a show of steadiness abroad and to strength in the corn market, but pressure of new Spring wheat soon became apparent, and, in the absence of more than a very moderate cash and export demand, values gave way rapidly and closed with net losses of 2c to 2⅛c. World's exports for the week were 7,560,000 bushels, compared with 10,773,000 bushels last year. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.10½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, prompt; No. 2 hard, $1.12½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, to arrive; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 99¼c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 93¾c, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

Prices in the corn market advanced over a cent a bushed early in the day on covering and a more general demand prompted by reports of light to killing frost in Nebraska and Iowa and predictions of frost east of the river. The weakness in wheat and prospects for warmer weather west of the river caused a subsequent decline, however, and at the close of the day values were net unchanged to ⅜c lower. The visible supply showed a decrease of 440,000 bushels for the week, compared with an increase of 1,727,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 86c for ten days shipment.

OATS.

The oats market was easier in sympathy with wheat and corn and owing to large receipts at interior points, closing at ¼@⅜c net decline. There were rumors of export sales of nearly 1,000,000 bushels in the West, and this had a tendency to check the decline. The visible supply increased 694,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 1,234,000 last year. The local cash market was weak; No. 3 white, new, quoted at 44c and No. 4 white at 40@41c, nominal.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was irregular early, with lard slightly higher, while pork was lower, but during the day the whole list developed weakness owing to a decline in the price of live hogs and in sympathy with grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 34,000; estimated for Tuesday, 14,000; Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 9,300.

COFFEE.

Reports from Brazil that the President had approved the bill, recently passed by the Senate, providing for the issuing of $191,000,000 in paper money for the protection of the national products of Brazil, including coffee, had a stimulating influence on the coffee market here at the outset and first prices were 8 to 13 points above the final of Saturday. BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,333 packages. Feeling a little stronger on the choice and fancy grades of creamery. The Exchange sales included 50 tubs creamery, 93 score, at 27c; 25 tubs at 26⅞c; 50 tubs extras at 26½c; 25 tubs at 26⅜c, and 25 tubs, 91 score, at 25⅜c. The business from store showed an advance of about ½c. Supplies promise to be a little lighter this week. No change in renovated, ladles, or packing stock, though the feeling is firm. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) 26@26½c; higher scoring, 26¾@27½c; firsts, 24@25¾c; seconds, 22@23½c; thirds, 21@21½c; State dairy, finest, 25½@26c; good to prime, 23½@25c; common to fair, 20@23c; renovated, extras, 23½@24c; firsts, 22½@23c; lower grades, 20@21½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 22@22½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 21@21½c; seconds, 19½@20c; lower grades, 18@19c; packing stock, June make, fine, 20c; current make, fine, 19½c; No. 2, 19c; lower grades, 16@18½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 11,249 cases. Arrivals continue light. Western advices indicate light supplies in transit, and the market is strong and in sellers' favor for all grades of fresh Western goods. Values are somewhat unsettled, but the advances quoted are fully established by the sales reported, and some goods are held for even better prices. There is an unusual scarcity of cheap eggs, and high grades of dirties and checks show a marked improvement. Storage eggs are moving moderately from dealers' stocks, but the trading on the wholesale market is light. There are ample offerings at the prices quoted. Nearby white eggs without material change. A good deal of stock was carried over from last week, and the medium and lower qualities are dragging at irregular prices. Very fancy, large, new-laid, chalk-white stock held steady, but there are few that command top quotation. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 27@28c; extra firsts, 25@26½c; firsts, 24@24½c; seconds, 22@23½c; thirds and poorer, 20@21½c; dirties, No. 1, 20½@21c; No. 2 and poorer, 18@20c; checks, good to choice dry, 18½@19c; culls and inferior, 15@18c; refrigerator, firsts, 23@24c; seconds, 21@22½c; thirds or poorer, 18@20c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery whites, fine to fancy, 32@35c; ordinary to good, 27@31c; gathered whites, as to size and quality, 26@32c; Western gathered whites, 25@28c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 29@31c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 24@28c; nearby refrigerator whites, 26½@28c.

REORGANIZATION

Stock of M. Rumely Company:

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to said Deposit Agreement, that the undersigned Committee, constituted thereunder, has approved and adopted a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization of M. Rumely Company, dated August 26, 1915, and has filed a copy thereof with The New York Trust Company, the Depositary under said Deposit Agreement, and said Deposit Agreement has been terminated.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit issued under said Deposit Agreement, desiring to become parties to and avail themselves of the privileges of said Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, must surrender such Certificates of Deposit on or before September 30, 1915, to The New York Trust Company in exchange for its Certificates of Deposit, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization. By acceptance of the Certificates of Deposit issued upon such exchange, the holders thereof will be conclusively deemed to have accepted and assented to the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization and will be bound by all the terms and provisions thereof.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit not desiring to avail themselves of the privileges of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, will be permitted to withdraw the stock represented by such Certificates upon the surrender of such Certificates and the payment of fifty cents per share for each share of stock withdrawn.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization may be obtained from the Depositary or from the Secretary of the Committee.

M. RUMELY COMPANY (Rumely Products Company) REORGANIZATION

TO HOLDERS OF
Two-Year Six Per Cent. Convertible Gold Notes,
Six Per Cent. Commission Gold Notes,
Other obligations and claims,
Preferred and Common Stock,
of M. Rumely Company or Rumely Products Company.

Notice is hereby given that the Plan and Agreement for the Reorganization of M. Rumely Company and Rumely Products Company, which has been approved by the Noteholders' Committee and the Stockholders' Committee, acting under Deposit Agreements of May 25, 1915, and February 1, 1915, respectively, has been approved and adopted by the undersigned Joint Reorganization Committee, and copies of said Plan and Agreement have been lodged with the United States Mortgage & Trust Company and The New York Trust Company, Depositaries under the Plan.

Holders of Two-Year Six Per Cent. Convertible Gold Notes and Six Per Cent. Commission Gold Notes who have not already deposited such Notes, and who desire to participate in the Reorganization, must deposit their Notes, bearing coupons maturing March 1, 1915, and subsequently, with United States Mortgage & Trust Company, Depositary, on or before September 30, 1915.

Holders of Preferred and Common Stock of the M. Rumely Company and of Certificates of Deposit of The New York Trust Company, issued under the Deposit Agreement dated February 1, 1915, who desire to participate in the Reorganization, must deposit their certificates of stock or Certificates of Deposit with The New York Trust Company, Depositary, on or before September 30, 1915. All stock so deposited must be assigned in blank or be accompanied by assignments or powers of attorney in blank, and, if required by the Committee or the Depositary thereof, duly stamped. Application will be made to list on the New York Stock Exchange all Certificates of Deposit issued by The New York Trust Company, as Depositary under the Plan.

Holders of other obligations of and claims against the M. Rumely Company or Rumely Products Company, desiring to participate in the Reorganization, must do so on the terms and in the manner provided in the Plan and Agreement, by depositing with the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, Depositary, New York City, or with any one of its agents named below, such obligations and claims, if evidenced by an instrument in writing, or, if not so evidenced, by depositing a statement of such obligations or claims, and in either case accompanied by an appropriate assignment or transfer thereof without recourse and duly acknowledged, and in such form and bearing such stamps as may be required by the undersigned Committee, and transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued therefor by such Depositary in form as may be determined by the Committee. The Committee in its discretion may at any time require proof of any obligation or claim deposited or offered for deposit under the Plan, or proof of allowance thereof by the Receiver. In default of such proof the Committee may at any time reject or exclude any such obligation or claim.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, Depositary, under the Deposit Agreement of May 25, 1915, who assent to the Plan and Agreement, may be required by the Committee in its discretion to present their Certificates of Deposit to the Depositary under the Plan, in order that there may be noted thereon the assent of the holders thereof to the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, and any holder of any such Certificate of Deposit may present the same to such Depositary for such purpose.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization may be obtained from either of the Depositaries, or the Agents, below named, or from the Secretary of the Committee.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Holly Arms, an Upper West Side Apartment House, Traded for New Jersey Property—Bing & Bing Buy East Side Plot—Small Investment Purchases in Manhattan and the Bronx.

The realty market opened unusually active yesterday for a midsummer Monday. Several resales of properties located in both Manhattan and the Bronx were reported and there were a number of small investment deals, a feature of the market which brokers and operators look upon as very encouraging.

The small investor, the buyer of tenements, private dwellings and suburban plots, who was the backbone of the market a few years ago, as he kept things moving and supplied the cash for large improvements and developments, has been sadly missed for many months past.

By far the most important transaction in yesterday's trading was the resale of the Holly Arms, a six-story elevator apartment house, occupying a plot 100 by 100 at 402 to 410 West 148th Street. It was sold by Frederick Brown to a woman investor of East Orange, N. J.

In part payment the buyer gave seventeen one, two, three, and six family houses at East Orange. They are situated in various sections of the town, the larger ones being located on Carnegie Avenue, North Fifteenth, and North Eighteenth Streets. C. A. Westervelt of East Orange negotiated the transaction, and Julius H. Zieser, as attorney, represented Mr. Brown.

The Holly Arms was acquired three weeks ago by Mr. Brown from the McKeon Realty Company, controlled by the Larkin family, which concern secured it a short time previously from the Seamen's Savings Bank. About $400,000 was involved in the trade.

Bing & Bing Buy East Side Plot.

The two three-story private dwellings, 109 and 111 East Ninety-first Street, have been resold by L. Simon to Bing & Bing. The structures which occupy a plot 30 by 100.8, located between Park and Lexington Avenues, will be altered into an American basement dwelling.

Bing & Bing recently purchased the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Ninety-second Street, 116 by 150 feet on which a twelve-story building is being erected to the rear of the two houses just sold. Leon S. Altmayer negotiated both transactions.

Holdings Enlarged.

A. M. Bostwick sold to the Sterling Realty Company, 21 West Sixty-ninth Street, a four-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 100.5, located between Columbus Avenue and Central Park West.

Hanna C. Romaine has increased her holdings by the purchase of the three-story dwelling at 256 on a lot 18 by 22 by irregular. The buyer is the owner of the two abutting houses at 290 and 292 West End Avenue, occupying a frontage of thirty-six feet.

East Side Deal Reputed Pending.

Negotiations are reputed pending for the sale of five three-story private dwellings 208 to 216 East Seventy-ninth Street. The structures form a plot 100 by 102.2 feet between Second and Third Avenues.

Investor Buys Tenement.

Bronx Sales.

Daniel H. Jackson has re-sold, through Sussman, Gibbs & Karlin, the two apartment houses 906 and 914 Simpson Street. The structures occupy a plot 75 by 100 in the rear of the six-story Hunts Point apartment house. The buyer, who is a minister, paid all cash above the mortgage.

Anthony W. Horenburger has sold 424 East 159th Street, a two-story dwelling, on lot 25 by 100, near Elton Avenue.

Joseph A. Blackner sold for Joseph Zeller, the eight-family flat 1,160 Simpson Street, on a lot 25 by 100, located just south of Home Street. Also for Max Miller, the two-family brick dwelling 1,727 Anthony Avenue, on a lot 26 by 75, located just north of 174th Street.

Interborough Company Buys Substation Site.

Negotiations were closed yesterday whereby the Interborough Rapid Transit Company took title to a plot 50 by 100 feet, fronting on Jackson Avenue, 100 feet east of Barn Street, Long Island City. This property is about two blocks for the Queensboro bridge plaza and is to be used by the Interborough for the erection of a substation power house. The property was held at $25,000.

Immediately upon the closing of title George H. Pegram, engineer and architect for the Interborough, filed with the Queens Building Bureau the plans for the new substation. It will be a one-story of re-inforced concrete structure 50 by 50 and will cost $40,000.

Long Island City.

The Cross and Brown Company has leased, with option of purchase, the water-front property, known as the Ward Lard factory, at Tenth Street, near Vernon Avenue, extending to the Standard Oil Slip, Long Island City. The property is 100 by 231 feet in size and comprises several two-story buildings. It was formerly occupied by the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Company.

Long Island.

The house and plot 59 by 100 located at 87 Prospect Avenue, Flushing, owned by Mary Soltan, has been sold through the J. Albert Johntra Company to A. C. Sluiter, of Flushing.

The Rickert-Finlay Realty Company has sold to Clifford Sterrett, a large plot fronting on Arleigh Road, between Park Road and Beverly Lane, Kensington-Great Neck, on which the purchaser will at once build a house for his own occupancy.

Julius Kluger has sold to the Bayside Estates Company three lots on the southwest corner of Crocheron Avenue and Jackson street, in the Bellcourt section of Flushing, L. I. The Bayside Estates conveys to Mr. Kluger a dwelling on the northwest corner of Wildwood Road and Hollywood Avenue in the Penwood section of Bayside.

New Jersey.

Deeds Filed For Eighth Avenue Block Front.

Deeds have been filed in the Register's office recording the sale of the block front on the west side of Eighth Avenue, Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth Street, size 197.6 by 120 by irregular, by Archibald D. Russell and Percy Pyne, owners of the block front, and Cornelius F. Sheehan and Margery S. Ruttman, owners of the abutting houses on Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, to the 461 Eighth Avenue Company, which is the building company formed by Larkin Bros.

Demolition of the present buildings will be commenced at once and a twenty-one story fireproof building, which will be the home of the Allied Printing Trades, publishers, &c., will be erected. A $1,800,000 building loan has been secured from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Joseph P. Day was the broker in this transaction.

Bible Society to Foreclose $135,000 Mortgage.

Supreme Court Justice Shearn has appointed Benjamin Bernstein receiver for the rents of the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and 118th Street, three five-story store and apartment buildings on plot 100.11 by 99.9, pending a suit brought by the American Bible Society to foreclose a mortgage of $135,000.

$35,000 Brooklyn Flats.

Shampan & Shampan have prepared plans for an apartment house to be erected on the southeast corner of Avenue H and East Thirteenth Street, on a plot 40 by 100, for the Lancastershire Realty Company, as owners, to cost $35,000.

Commercial Leases.

Cross & Brown Company has leased the store 1,579 Broadway (Strand Theatre Building) to Harry Kaufman, Irving Parker, and Benjamin Sweig for a long term of years for the Mitchell H. Mark Realty Corporation.

Daniel Birdsall & Co., Inc., have leased the entire building, 29 Leonard Street to Clarence Whitman & Co. for a term of years.

Nelson, Lee & Green have leased the store in the Apeda Building at 216 West Forty-eighth Street, just off of Broadway. This building is part of the Strand Theatre property which has been recently rebuilt, and the Apeda Studios, formerly of Thirty-eighth Street, are occupying the entire building with the exception of this store.

Louis Kempner & Son have leased for the Eighty-ninth Construction Corporation the store at 2,412 Broadway, for ten years, to Sidney Burger.

Realty Notes.

The 130 to 134 West Seventeenth Street Company has been incorporated at Albany to take over the nine-story loft building. The company is capitalized at $2,000, with John M. Bell, Janet Bernhart, and Louis R. Bogert as the directors.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

O. Sommers & Co., St. Paul, lost before the Board of General Appraisers in the claim that bordered flax crash was properly dutiable at 30 per cent. ad valorem as plain woven fabrics. The Collector was affirmed in classifying the merchandise as manufactures of flax, with a tax of 35 per cent. ad valorem.

O. G. Hempstead & Son, Philadelphia, acting as agent for the C. H. Wheeler Manufacturing Company, makers of steam pumps, heaters, and condensers, protested the Collector's tax of 20 per cent. as metal manufactures not specially provided for on merchandise invoiced as "yellow metal circles." The claim was for entry under the tariff as 5 per cent. under Paragraph 147. It was shown at the trial that the circles are used as tube heads and serve to support tubes running through condensers. Judge Fischer affirmed the Collector's assessment, on the ground that the circles had been sufficiently advanced in condition to warrant regarding them as parts of condensers.

J. J. Gavin & Co. were sustained in a claim that complete steel window sashes with steel sides, fitted with gun-metal stays and gun-metal handles or hinges, all fastened together, are properly dutiable under the present tariff law at 10 per cent. ad valorem as "sashes of steel." The Collector was reversed in holding the merchandise dutiable at 20 per cent. as manufactures of metal.

The board decided that potato flour, obtained by reducing entire potatoes, with or without the skin, to the state of flour by desicating and grinding is properly dutiable under the tariff at 10 per cent. under the provision for "desiccated potatoes." The Collector was reversed in exacting a higher rate of duty not mentioned by Judge Waite in his decision for the board.

GUILTLESS, HE SAYS, BUT SERVED 7 YEARS

LEARNED ENGLISH IN PRISON

HASTINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Seven and one-half years ago Joseph Soko, a Hungarian, 30 years of age, was arrested here charged with spiking a New York Central switch in an attempt to wreck an express train. Soko knew little English and less about American laws, and though he protested that he was innocent, his protest bore little weight.

In the usual course of events, according to Justice of the Peace James E. Hogan of this town, Soko would have been arraigned before him for a preliminary hearing, but Soko was taken to Dobbs Ferry, where a Justice of the Peace held him for the Grand Jury.

Soko was indicted in due course and brought to trial before County Judge Platt at White Plains. He was convicted and sentenced to from seven and one-half to twelve years in Sing Sing.

Soko went to prison despite his declarations, in broken English, that he knew nothing of the crime charged against him. While in Hastings—he had lived here for five years and bore an excellent reputation—he had worked for the National Conduit and Cable Company. He took up the duties assigned to him at Sing Sing with the same spirit of good-will toward everybody that he had shown in the cable factory. In three and one-half years, as a reward, he was sent to the Great Meadows prison. He found life easier there and made no complaint, but he always maintained that he was not guilty.

In the meantime everybody in Hastings, even Judge Hogan, forgot Soko. But some two years ago Mr. Hogan, who had never believed Soko guilty, heard of another railroad arrest, and that set him thinking again. He wrote to the Board of Pardons about Soko's case, and was asked to collect what evidence he could to back up his contention that the man was serving time for a crime of which he was not guilty.

A few days ago Judge Hogan heard that the Board of Pardons had decided to parole Soko, and then received a letter asking if he would receive Soko's parole reports. If Soko's record is good at the end of one year he is to receive a full pardon.

The Judge talked it over with James Magee, Superintendent of the National Conduit and Cable Company, who also believed Soko was committed wrongfully, and Magee promised to give him his old job and an increase of 50 cents a day. They wanted him to have every chance to prove that their faith was warranted.

Soko arrived in Hastings yesterday morning and gave his two sponsors a happy surprise. He had gone away a bit uncouth and scarcely able to make himself understood in English. He came back smiling and ready to start in again. He was neatly dressed, and during his stay in prison had mastered the English language so that he spoke with hardly a trace of accent.

Judge Hogan told him about the job that was waiting for him. "I am glad of that," he said. "I want to work to earn money so that I can get at the facts of my case and find out why I was sent to prison when I was not guilty."

"I am sure that Soko was not guilty," said Justice Hogan last night. "He was a fine young fellow. He never drank and so far as I know, had no bad habits. Everybody here liked him.

"Then came his arrest, and it was most unexpected to everybody. I know that Soko wasn't even in Hastings when it was alleged he spiked the switch, but at the home of a friend who had a farm near Ossining."

MUNITION WORKS BURNED.

Rumor That Illinois Plant Was Working for Allies Causes Inquiry.

ST. CHARLES, Ill., Aug. 30.—Rumors that the malleable iron works was manufacturing munitions of war and that horses were being shipped to the European war from the Wild Rose stock farm, will cause an investigation of mysterious fires which occurred at the works last Friday and at the farm tonight.

Five valuable horses were burned in the blaze tonight. The owner, Herbert Crane, was said to be in the East attending a stock show. The iron works was entirely destroyed.

A fire at the Doolg File Company yesterday also will be investigated.

The losses in the three fires were said to total $300,000.

MOTOR CYCLE HITS GIRLS.

Then, Ambulance Coming to Aid Kills a Peddler's Horse.

As Loretta Farrell, 20 years old, and her sister, Josephine, aged 17, living at 1,340 Webster Avenue, were crossing Park Avenue at 170th Street last evening a motor cycle driven by Eric Froh of 2,912 Washington Avenue approached them at full speed. Froh blew his horn, but the two girls were too panic-stricken to act quickly and the motor cycle crashed into them, knocking them down.

In response to Policeman Adams's call a motor ambulance was sent from Lebanon Hospital, driven by Edgar Hondhart of 3,137 Third Avenue. As it made the turn at 170th Street Hondhart saw a wagon belonging to Michael Billotti, an Italian fruit dealer of 3,605 Holland Avenue, directly in his path. There was no time to turn aside and the ambulance ran head on into the horse. The radiator was slightly damaged, but the machine was able to continue on its way without loss of time. The horse had to be shot.

The girls were attended by Dr. Rosenfeld, who found that Miss Josephine was not hurt beyond a few lacerations, and she went home. Her sister was unconscious and was taken to the Lebanon Hospital, where, it is said, she has concussion of the brain and is in a very serious condition.

There were no arrests, as both accidents were said to be unavoidable.

JOSEPH L. MYERS RETURNS.

New Yorker Was Badly Injured When Lusitania Was Blown Up.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday from Bordeaux on the French liner Espagne was Joseph L. Myers of 176 Madison Avenue, one of the survivors of the Lusitania, who received injuries in the disaster which kept him in the hospital at Cork for three months. After the explosion, Mr. Myers said yesterday, we got into one of the lifeboats on the port side, thinking that he would be safe when it was lowered into the water.

"Instead of that," Mr. Myers continued, "I was blown into the air when the boilers exploded and fell into the sea, where I floated about for nearly four hours clinging to some wreckage. When I was taken to the hospital at Queenstown the surgeons discovered that I had broken my right leg, torn my left one, burned my arms, and broke several ribs. From Queenstown I was transferred later to Cork, where I remained until shortly before sailing on the Espagne."

Mr. Myers was accompanied by his wife and daughter, who went over to him after he was in the hospital.

Tetanus Case Puzzles Doctors.

Ill for nearly three weeks at her home, Mrs. Frances Kumaszka of 74 Belmont Avenue, Newark, was removed to the City Hospital yesterday, where it was found that the woman is suffering from tetanus. She knows of no injury from which infection might have entered, and the doctors are puzzled. Hed condition is critical. Mrs. Kumaszka cut her finger several months ago, but the wound healed quickly and gave no trouble. The physicians think that Mrs. Kumaszka may have swallowed a pin or a bit of metal and became infected internally.
